Stirred daily with the controversial issues of the Second World War the staff of the 1943 Murivian faced another controversy in its decision concerning the theme of this yearbook,—whether to stress the issue of the war in its global aspect of destruction or to stress the accomplishments of Brookline High School in its narrower field of construction. After a rational and intelligent weighing of the possibilities; after a consideration of how much more and better material newspapers and current periodicals had at their disposal to present of the United States at war as opposed to what we have concerning the 100th Anniversary of Brookline High School the staff decided in favor of the latter theme. The presentation of this theme supplemented by as much of a war tone as possible is the purpose of the 1943 Murivian. To reach our goal, to show the comparison between the Brookline High School of 1843 and 1943, many changes were necessitated and advisable in this year book,—the cover was made somber and formal by its contrast between black and white, its simple picture of the first Brookline High School and its old-fashioned lettering; the Senior pictures were framed in fancy ovals with individual writeups to help carry through the theme of how pictures might have looked in the 1843 Murivian had there been one; the atmosphere of the new building was added in the homeroom pictures to show that Brookline High School modernizes as the world modernizes. These are merely a few of our revisions.

With these brief but explanatory remarks we have tried to explain to you the position of our staff. We feel that upon a careful consideration of the material within these covers you will find that for the most part you are in common agreement with us in regard to certain aspects of the book. Hoping these introductory comments will suffice we invite you to continue your reading of the 168 page issue of the Centennial Anniversary Edition of the 1943 Murivian.

MR. WILFRED H. RINGER

Headmaster

To the Graduates of the Class of 1943:

Yours is a place unique in the history of your high school. Not only do more than five hundred of you leave to take your places in the world—the largest of our graduating classes—but you receive your diplomas as we observe the One Hundredth Anniversary of the founding of the Brookline High School, and many of you will add your names to the Roll of Honor like the graduates now worthily representing us in our armed forces in the present global war. To you we entrust the name and traditions of this school.

We do so in the sure knowledge that you will keep faith with this trust. To the story of the earlier days you will add your own bright chapter, your contributions to the generation. On the contrary, your contributions to the service of your country, to the Four Freedoms, and to the new world order will carry us from the dawn of that day to the full glory of the sunshine of a greater international understanding of unity and good will based upon a brotherhood of men. Yours to accept will be the privileges, the responsibilities, and the obligations which the passing of what now appears to be chaos will bring to you. You will create where others have destroyed.

In spite of war, of desolation, and of sacrifice you are living in the Fortunate Forties. As graduates of one of the outstanding public secondary schools of this Nation, you will not be denied the limitless opportunities constantly offered by your Mother Country. As the children of her heart and the pride of her oncoming years, as citizens of her Democracy, as bulwarks of her faith and freedom, she offers to you even now more of the best in life than has ever been her gift to preceding generations. You will see the fulfillment of what to others has often been a hope and a prayer.

Your achievements have set for us new standards. We appreciate every effort made to assure our honored position of leadership. We thank each of you for the loyalty so genuinely given. Together we lift up our eyes unto the hills and courageously face the new adventures. Your faith in the best which is yet to come, and your belief in the eternal goodness in life, will strengthen you for each experience. May He continue to give to you generously from His abundance. Godspeed. Your Alma Mater salutes you!

MISS MARY W. SAWYER

Dean of Girls

My cordial greetings to the Class of 1943, the one hundredth anniversary class of Brookline High School! Fittingly, you are the largest class ever to be graduated here, yet many who entered school with you are already serving in the armed forces or working in essential war industries. You of course are eager to join them as soon as possible, but it is with mixed feelings that you leave the familiar school routine behind you and it is with equally mixed feelings that we see you step out into the uncertainties that lie ahead. Seldom has a graduating class faced such tremendous problems as you face today, problems that you cannot solve alone, but problems that united effort must solve. In your lifetime the world has shrunk so that we must try to understand the peoples of all countries and races, their history, their problems. Beyond doubt, loyalty to our own country demands a world point of view; we must have tolerance, tact, patience, clear thinking, self-discipline, a determination to develop to the utmost whatever talents and abilities we may possess, a willingness to give of our best for others. Our best is none too good for the task ahead. To some the future, even with victory, may seem dark, but it is the challenging opportunity of the years ahead that is of real interest: first the struggle and victory, then the years of readjustment and reconstruction. A new world lies before you offering breath-taking opportunities to young men and women with talent, initiative, self-control, trained abilities of all kinds. The days of the pioneers are not over, but the pioneering is different now. Far horizons beckon us onward to a future that challenges the best in us all. That you may have a worthwhile share in such a future is my sincere wish for each and every one of you. Good luck to you all.

Loyally yours,
MARY W. SAWYER,
Dean of Girls

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

There have been many changes at Brookline High School this past year. Some have affected a large number of us, others only a few. However, the one that we regret most deeply is the departure of ten of our faculty. And so it is with genuine sincerity and appreciation that we acknowledge the following:

Miss Annie Burnham has retired after many years at Brookline. During her tenure, the Social Arts Curriculum was greatly enlarged, aided by her extensive interest in sewing, needlework, and related household arts.

Lieutenant (j.g.) Samuel Gould's presence has been felt throughout the entire school. As housemaster of Packard House, faculty advisor of the Dramatic Society, and teacher of English and Radio Appreciation, he has given unselfishly of himself.

Miss Faith Hale resigned this year in favor of a new job as Mrs. Charles Ferguson of Springfield. Her versatility in the many phases of Art, including the costuming for Class Day emphasized necessary values for our cultural side.

Mr. Ralph D. McLeary, who contributed substantially to our Math Department as its head, is now Superintendent of Schools in Great Barrington, Rhode Island.

Lieutenant (j.g.) August C. Miller's history classes have become a legend. We who graduate eagerly hope that future students will have a chance to know him in coming years.

Miss Florence Perkins retired after twenty-two years as an unfailing member of the Mathematics Department. She is held in esteem by our faculty and student body alike.

Lieutenant (j.g.) J. Newton Rodeheaver, object of many freshman crushes, has a real wanderlust. He's lived and taught all over the U.S. We hope, though, that the end of this war will see him firmly re-established at Brookline.

Mr. Benjamin Roman, a popular member of the Latin Department and head of Vocational Guidance is now principal of the John D. Runkle School, where furture B.H.S. students are benefiting from their association with him.

Private John Wall has not been with us very long; yet in his year and a half at Brookline, he has successfully met two crises, marriage and the army. We hope that the conclusion of this war will see him back with us.

Mr. Alfred Webber was one of the most enthusiastic and well-liked members of Brookline's faculty. His teaching of Science inspired all who came in contact with him.

DEDICATION

MR. RALPH W. TOTMAN

Housemaster of Lincoln House

DEDICATION

We, of the 1943 Murivian Staff, take pleasure in dedicating this book to Lieutenant Ralph W. Totman, U.S.A.A.C., Master of Lincoln House, as a humble token of our appreciation. His sincerity, unfailing interest, friendliness, initiative, patience, and wisdom have guided us through four trying years.

We regret that Army duties prevent our housemaster from being with us for our graduation. And we join with the entire school to wish him the best of luck and a speedy return.

HISTORY OF TH

The history of the Brookline High School is the story of a humble beginning and of gradual adaption to changing conditions and to increasing needs in its growth.

In 1841, it was voted in town meeting that it was expedient to have a high school. In 1843, being authorized to go ahead, the School Committee seized the opportunity presented by vacant town property and by means of an appropriation of $300 equipped for high school use a room in the old stone town-hall removed to Sherburne Road, now Walnut Street.

The town seems to have been fortunate in the choice of the first master — Mr. Hezekiah Shailer, a graduate of Brown University. As long as he remained head of the school, discipline was good and the attitude of the students toward their work commendable. The School Committee's report of 1847 comments frankly as follows;—"The school is well managed and orderly but unsatisfactory, and in some respects does not compare favorably with similar institutions in this vicinity, because the one teacher cannot do justice to the task while he has to hear so many recitations and allot only fifteen minutes to each. Therefore, your committee recommends that there be appointed a female assistant in the High School to take charge of the girls in a separate room. The proposed change would obviate in a measure the scruples of those who object to the instruction of both sexes in the same room by a male teacher." In accordance with the above recommendation, an assistant was employed.

The year 1852-53 marked the beginning of a bad slump in the High School achievement, due primarily to frequent changes in the teaching staff. The question was raised whether the High School should be discontinued as such and blended with the Pierce Grammar School in a single institution. "It is in fact," says the report of the School Committee, "nothing more at present than a grammar school in which a few advanced studies are partially and imperfectly taught." Notwithstanding this discouraging report, the committee did not despair, but recommended steps to change the deplorable condition. The school was too heterogeneous; a more rigid examination for admission was necessary to weed out the unfit. Moreover, appreciating the truth of the old adage "As is the teacher, so is the school", it urged the payment of liberal salaries to get and keep the very best teachers.

The recommendation of the School Committee was adopted. Out of blackness of despair suddenly came the dawn with the appointment of Mr. John Emory Hoar, from the high school in Cambridge, to the principalship. This skillful teacher and remarkable character began at once to help mightily in bringing about a swift change for the better.

Mr. Hoar attacked vigorously the evil of irregularity in attendance and succeeded in awakening a public sentiment in the scholars against tardiness and absence. He was constructive in other measures that made for a better school. He called for reference books. "A good library", he said "forms an indispensable part of the apparatus of a high school. The knowledge where to look for information is by no means an unimportant item in a man's education." Within two years there were in the high school library two hundred and forty volumes.

In 1884 Mr. Hoar secured again the appointment of an additional woman instructor. With the approval of the School Committee, he also secured the adoption of a five-year classical course of study. This approval was only a matter of form, for the committee had recommended this extension of the classical course in their report of 1880-81.

In July 1888, Mr. John Emory Hoar resigned the principalship after a splendid service of thirty-four years with scarcely a day's absence in them all. His consistent aim from first to last was to combine the main features of two such representative schools as the Boston Latin and the English High Schools and so incorporate the composite results into Brookline High School that the latter institution would become the peer of any in this Commonwealth in all respects.

Mr. Frederic T. Farnsworth, Principal of Bristol Academy in Taunton, Mass., succeeded Mr. Hoar. The new headmaster modified the course of study, securing more freedom in the matter of elective studies. One of the two courses was now called the General Course and the other the College Preparatory. Selections from the former fitted the candidates for M.I.T.; the latter afforded thorough preparation for Harvard and other colleges.

Mr. Farnsworth remained as principal only three years. He was a strict disciplinarian and an exceptionally skilful teacher, so successful in getting his boys into Harvard College that he earned the commendation of the School Committee who expressed themselves as convinced "from the result of college examinations and the gratifying high scholastic standing in college of recent B.H.S. graduates that Brookline scholars can get all needed preparation in this school to enter creditably on their college or institute course."

Mr. Samuel T. Dutton entered upon his duties as Superintendent of Brookline schools in September, 1890. He brought Mr. Daniel S. Sanford to succeed Mr. Farnsworth in September, 1891. Mr. Sanford was an able man with social graces and suited in every way to cooperate heartily and efficiently with Superintendent Dutton in an educational "new deal".

E HIGH SCHOOL

In Superintendent Dutton's first annual report, doubtless impressed by the representations of Principal Farnsworth, he made a plea for a new High School building "that should be the pride and ornament of the town, so ample in its appointments and so efficient in every department that no parent would think of sending his children elsewhere to be educated." This action was followed later by an appropriation of money sufficient to erect a new high school building complete in all modern appointments. The external appearance of the new building which was erected in 1895 at the corner of Tappan and Greenough Streets facing the playground was somewhat disappointing. Years afterwards an attempt was made to give the structure less the appearance of a shoe factory by adding something of the beautiful in adornment that the building committee had not felt justified in supplying.

The decade of 1890-1900, the period of Superintendent Dutton's administration, was a time of rapid educational development like a spring awakening in nature. Manual training and domestic arts were receiving recognition. The advanced Manual Training School established in 1894 was consolidated with the High School, and manual training and domestic science were offered as electives to all high school students. The dream of Mr. John Emory Hoar was coming true. Brookline High School was becoming a fitting school for college, competing on favorable terms with the Boston Latin Schools, for an opportunity was given to begin French in the seventh grade, Latin in the eighth and elementary algebra and geometry in the ninth. There were now four courses of study:—the classical with Greek, the sub-classical without Greek, the technical, and the general. No special class of student was favored although it was recognized that preparation for college carried with it a beneficient influence that tended to elevate standards of scholarship.

Superintendent Dutton ended his ten year term of conspicuous service on July 1, 1900 to enter a larger field of labor in New York City. Mr. George I. Aldrich succeeded Mr. Dutton as superintendent. Superintendent Aldrich undid very little that his predecessor had done. French was confined to grades eight and nine; Latin, algebra and English history to the ninth grade. On the other hand, Mr. Aldrich continually effected an enlargement of educational opportunities just as Mr. Dutton had done. As to policies, both men believed in the wise practise when vacancies in the teaching force occurred of seeking the best talent to be found in all the sections of the country so that the Brookline system might be strengthened and made more fruitful by fresh life and new ideals.

In 1905 a local innovation of great import to scholastic sports was established. Coaching was put on a parity with other forms of instruction in that the coach must be in the future a member of the faculty and assigned to some academic department.

In June, 1905, Headmaster Daniel S. Sanford, after fourteen years of notable service, left Brookline. Mr. George P. Hitchcock came from the Pratt Institute. Brooklyn, New York, to take Mr. Sanford's place. Some years later the same institution called him back to be vice-chairman. During his administration the commercial course was established. This department was lodged at first in the manual training building but shortly, when the municipal gymnasium was completed and the high school students went there for their physical training, the equipment of this new course was transferred to the main academic building and occupied the two large rooms in the semi-basement formerly used as gymnasia.

Mr. Winfred C. Akers, headmaster of the high school in New Britain, Connecticut was the choice of the School Board for a worthy successor to Mr. Hitchcock.

The decade of 1909-1919 was marked by steady increase of numbers and prompt recognition of successive educational needs as they appeared. The High School building first occupied in September 1895 was designed to provide adequate accommodations for six hundred pupils. In twenty years the school had grown to six hundred sixty-nine and twenty-nine teachers.

In May 1919, much to the regret of the teachers and citizens of the town, Superintendent Aldrich resigned and was voted the title of Superintendent Emeritus, an honor bestowed neither before nor since upon a holder of this office. His successor, Mr. Oscar C. Gallagher, took office in October 1919. Superintendent Gallagher introduced into all the schools of the town a course in money management. Penny savings had been instituted in 1891, but was confined to the grades below the high school and was continued successfully for many years. While systematic saving was again made one feature of this new course, a comprehensive treatment of wise spending, giving, and saving characterized the instruction in economic education.

By the year 1920 an increase in the number of pupils to nine hundred twenty-one forced the town to plan for additional space in the accommodations. At the town meeting in March 1921, large appropriations were made for an additional story for the Manual Training building, for the purchase of land in the rear and adjoining the High School lot, and for the erection of the first section of a big new plant to be connected with the main High School building and to be constructed unit by unit as growth of the town necessitated. Material improvements were not, however, the chief gains made in the administration of Headmaster Akers. Changes for the better in the inner life of the school constituted a far more real and discriminating cause for congratulations. Besides the several musical organizations such as boys' and girls' glee clubs, mandolin club, fife and drum corps, band and orchestra and the more numerous supervised sports of all kinds for both sexes, there were other student enterprises no less valuable, among them, to name only a few, the school paper—the Sagamore—the year-book, later called the Murivian. school dramatics and the girls' league.

Mr. Akers saw organized sports that came into the school life during the headmastership of Mr. Sanford approach their highest development in his term of service. They had multiplied among both sexes until the boys had, with the exceptions of polo and wrestling, all the varieties of contests found at Cambridge, including a crew on the Back Bay; and the girls all but one of the varieties of feminine sports practised at Wellesley, including Lacrosse, archery and horse-back riding. Furthermore, Brookline High School graduates, owing to their expert training in their preparatory days, supplied not infrequently captains and star athletes for the football, baseball and track varsity teams of Harvard, Yale and Pennsylvania and for a score of smaller similiar institutions as well.

In June 1930, owing to ill health, the beloved and venerated Mr. Akers resigned from the headmastership of the school and in the following year for the same reason Mr. Gallagher from the superintendency. Mr. Ernest R. Caverly, Headmaster of the Brookline High School for the year 1930-31, whose administrative ability had impressed the school committee, was appointed the successor of the latter and Mr. Wilfred H. Ringer, for ten years successful principal of the Gloucester High School, was picked to take the place of the former.

The rapidly expanding high school enrollment had now reached a total of seventeen hundred students and ninety-one teachers. The town rose to the exigencies of the situation by making a prompt appropriation of two hundred eighty-five thousand dollars for the erection of a second unit of the extensive plant for the whole of which the architects had drawn plans. Without delay ground was broken and construction begun to provide additional class rooms and new enlarged laboratories for all branches of science.

After the Roberts auditorium was built and there was no longer need for Shailer Hall for desk room and study periods, the question how to make the best use of the old assembly hall became pertinent. This was satisfactorily answered when federal funds became available to remodel and redecorate the old auditorium and transform it into what was probably in respect to spaciousness, utility and beauty, the finest high school library in existence. This unfortunately was not long enjoyed, for hardly had it been furnished and put to use before it was involved in a ruinous fire that broke out in the afternoon of September 25, 1936. Before the flames and smoke could be brought under control, the interior of the main building was so seriously damaged that the school committee felt that the expenditure of a large sum of money in rebuilding a forty-year old out-of-date plant was unsound from an economic point of view. Therefore the grand old building, as firm as the rock of Gibraltar, was with difficulty taken down and the present south and central sections of the quadrangular plant erected.

One last unit remains to be built to provide two superimposed gymnasia, additional classrooms and enlarged science laboratories whenever the time is ripe for the completion of the architectural whole. There is no question but that the Brookline High School plant will then be a fitting and practical memorial of the generosity of the tax-payers and of their firm belief in the value of the finest educational equipment.

The Brookline High School has kept faith with the citizens of the town and justified large expenditures by the quality of its work. This was never better than in the last decade if we may trust the evidence of the scholarship records kept on file in the school office.

Brookline graduates not only do remarkably well in the College Board examinations as the results published in the annual school reports reveal, but maintain a good rank in college. That fact is proof that their preparation was thorough, that a broad, firm foundation had been laid by their whole training in the Brookline schools, and that habits of industry and the will to learn had been ingrained.

It is yet too soon to appraise the contribution toward winning the second world war that the Brookline High School is making. At present, the endeavor is to maintain a balance between the demands of the national emergency and the basic needs of education for life in time of normal peaceful conditions. Teachers and students are adjusting themselves heartily to the exigencies of war, responding to every call for preparedness. The High School buildings have been freely made available for all sorts of courses, not only for the older boys and girls in the junior and senior classes to fit them for employment in national defense industries, but also for hundreds of men and women from metropolitan Boston who are being fitted by the regular manual training instructors to do work assigned to them by federal agencies. The High School is meeting intelligently and in a spirit of fullest cooperation its new obligations imposed by the transition from peace to war without, however, neglecting those things in education that are indispensable for the building of the post-war world.

These pages contain in an abbreviated form, material written by Mr. William Snow in connection with the 100th Anniversary of Brookline High School.

ROBERT M. ABRAMS

This "little brain" just lives from day to day. (So pathetic.) Although Bob insists he's an "awful wise guy", we know better. He is interested in good books and better music and thoroughly enjoys English with either Miss Allen or Miss Lewis. Bob's taking care of his health . . . so he can witness the turn of the century.

ALPHA PI

Basketball 3; Marshal 1, 2, 3, 4; Rep. Court of Justice 2; Kaarina 2; Boys' Club 2, 3; Sec., Lincoln House 3, 4; Junior Prom Com. 3; Usher, Newton Game 2, Prize Speaking 3, Graduation 3; Senior Prom 3; Lunch Room Staff 4; Boys' Glee Club 2, 3; Band 1.

WINIFRED ACHESON

Since Winnie's ambition is to be successful and she has taken the stenographic course, she might be able not only to see, but also help make peace if she wanted to go to Washington and be secretary to some big-wig there.

Girls' League 3; Red Cross Rep. 5; Pep Com. 5; Marshal 5.

NORMA M. ADELSON

Never let it be said that Norm shirks her patriotic duty. Anything but that. She keeps all the "boys" (Marines) happy . . . and likes it! Harry James, clothes, shoes, "La Pompadour," Biology, and especially Rhumba, manage to keep her occupied during her spare time. At odd moments, Norma, can be found discussing Chemistry with Mr. Hall.

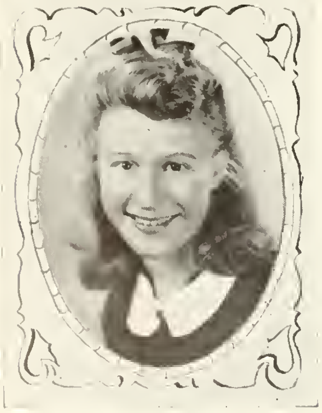
ROBERT JOSEPH ALBERT

When you think of Bob it's with a grin on your face . . . a girl on each arm, "Freud" propped up in front of him. This "natural wit" likes Mr. F's neckties as much as he likes serious thoughts. Bob's a very ambitious lad . . . he wants to marry a banker's daughter and retire at 21.



DEBRA ALLMAN

Dorothy, or Debby, as she is known to her public, is a delightfully outspoken young lady, whose quips and witticisms are known to many. Debby's accomplishments are of the most outstanding type. She's bowled 124, an outstanding feat among B.H.S. students in the alley. Debby's also very good at art, but do not think that this young lady's talents begin and end with art. Her special skills in other activities are legion.

Girls' League 2, 3, 4; Dramatic Soc. 4; Lost and Found 2, 3.

ROBERT H. APPLEBAUM

Bob, the fellow some people call "Apples"—because of his rosy cheeks?—has a yen to join Dutch Schultz's mob. Sadistic, huh? Bob is aiming at college and an engineering job, but in his lighter moments he listens to Benny Goodman. Filene's Fur Storage and the Girls' Foods Club often see his smiling face.

Baseball 1; Football 1; Track 1; Basketball 1.

ELEANOR B. ARNOLD

Tall and charmingly blond, Ellie is rarely seen without her steadfast companion Evie. You'd never know to look at her, but chocolate ice cream is her dish. She hates to be asked how tall she is with heels, but she is consoled if you give her an escalator to ride or trumpets to hear.

Basketball 2; Hockey 1; Tennis 1, 2; Archery 1, 2; Marshal 3, 4; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, Sec. 4; Girls' Auxiliary 4; Senior Adviser 4; Sagamore Reporter 1, Distributor 1, 2, 3, 4; Banner Bearer 1; Waitress, Senior Banquet 1; H. PEARLIA F. AVERBACK

Let's hope that the war will be over long before "Dimples" becomes old enough to join the WAVES. Right now she hates her glasses—perhaps that is because she wishes to become a "Powers Model". Her serious thought is her future and it's no wonder because her interests are so many and varied.

Tennis 1; Archery 3; Basketball 2; Girls' League 1, 2; Red Cross Rep. 2.

HELEN BAKER

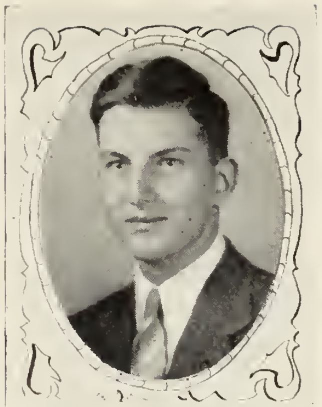
Though Blondie's ambition is to be Tommy Mansville's private secretary, she will probably settle for a job at the Watertown Arsenal. There's quite a conflict in her mind as to whether the U. S. Marines or English with Miss Johnson is her favorite subject. We wonder which will win.

Girls' League 2, 3.

MARTIN H. BARGAD

With making gold from brass as his pet passion, how can Bargy help but realize his ambition of becoming famous? When not experimenting in this field, he spends his time on the tennis court (he's a second Don Budge). His idol is Martin Bargad. Okay, "Bargy", "if you say so."

Entered B. H. S. 4.



BENEDICT G. BARKAN

One of the stamp club's most avid workers is Benny, whose outstanding accomplishment is pulling the club out of a depression. That's only for the very immediate present though, for he plans to become Private Barkan soon after graduation.

Stamp Club 1, 2, Sec.-Treas. 2; German Club 1; Spanish Club 3, 4; Boys' Club 3, 4.

RAYMOND S. BARNSTONE

Starting out as president of Lincoln House in his freshman and sophomore years, Ray has steadily become more firmly entrenched in school affairs. That's the reason for his interest in Student Government—which is now practically in eclipse. Einstein's Theory of Relativity and Howard Freedman's kitchen both intrigue him . . . one mentally and the other gastronomically.

DAVID BARR

"Limey" 's heading back home to his beloved Britain this June to join the Naval Air Arm. We hope he takes with him as fond thoughts of us as we have of him. No doubt Dave will return some day as the famous Dr. Barr, if he can forgive us for our weather and habit of saying "England" when we mean "Britain." "Rally now."

Football 3; Track 3, 4, 5; Swimming 5; Cross Country 4, 5; Bicycle Club 3, 4; Var. Letter 5; Square Dancing 4; Boys' Club 3, 4; Red Cross Rep. 5; Murivian Com. 5; Sagamore 3, 4, 5.

Entered 3 from Haberdashers' Aske's School, London, England.

BEVERLEY R. BARSTOW

Beverley is in more ways than one an unusual person. His idol is "that redheaded brunette with the blonde hair". Figure that one out if you can. Both his pastime, chasing butterflies, and his chief failing, always late for chow, will be things of the past if he achieves his ambition, any branch of the flying service.

Orchestra 1, 2; Boys' Club 1, 2.

M. BARBARA BENNETT

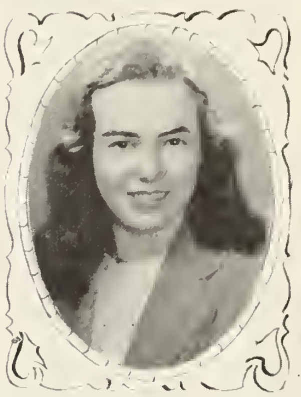
Talking on the telephone all night long the way Babs does, will not help us attain an earlier victory, but "supporting" the U.S.O. and launching into a nursing career may help. Her chief failing used to be arguing with the wrong people, so now she takes care of three-year olds.

Tennis 2; Archery 1; Basketball 2; Girls' League 1, 2, 4; Dramatic Soc. 4.

SALLY E. BENSUSAN

Sally loves dancing, talking on the telephone, and chemistry. These three things may seem unrelated—but that's Sally—she loves to mix business with pleasure. She's still looking for her idol—maybe she'll find "it" in college next year. Sally thinks that all she needs is Ruth Wecker's brains and maybe a dash of Mr. Bates' humor.

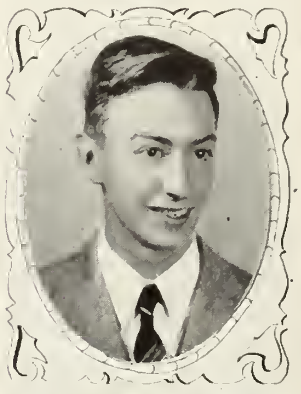
Archery 2; Golf 3; Girls' League 1, 2, Rep. 3, Rep. 4; Senior Adviser 4; Red Cross Rep. 1, 4; German Club 2, 3; English Club 3, 4; Murivian Rep. 2; Spanish Club 4; Bank Teller 2; Ass't to Math Dept. 4; Girls' Auxiliary 3, 4.



BEATRICE BERNSTEIN

The "little brain" of B.H.S. isn't always thinking of her A's—she likes to hear "Begin the Beguine" played by Artie Shaw,—and who wouldn't? Her red hair and sunny disposition don't go together, but Bea is an exceptional lass in many ways. Her time is usually taken up with the French Club, of which she is the President.

Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Debating Society 4; French Club 1, 2, 3, Pres. 4; English Club 3, 4; Library Staff 1, 2, H. R. R. 3, H. R. R. 4; Senior Adviser 4; Sagamore 1, 2, 3, Rewrite Ed. 4; Hostess, A.L.A. 3; H. R. V. Chm. 1, 2, 3; Archery 2, 3; Tennis 2, 3; Swimming 3.



EDWARD E. BIES

Although "Breeze" plays a mean bass violin, he wants to be a doctor. But not to be overlooked are Eddie's outstanding Chemistry marks. (Mr. Anthony, how does he do it?) Koussevitsky, psychology and college campuses are subjects for his serious moments. Over six feet with an Ooo-la-la smile, Ed is headed for big things.

Orchestra 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; Band 2, 3, 4, 5; Science Club 4, Pres. 5; Orpheus Ensemble 4; Boys' Foods Club, Pres. 3; Glee Club 1; Electrician, Stage Staff 5.

SARAH L. BIRKBECK

Sally's really an ardent patriot. Anything wearing a uniform gets her expert attention . . . N.B. Did she ever hear of such a thing as discrimination? In her more serious moments, though, Sally confesses that she wants to become a nurse. She plans to train at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Tennis 2; Girls' League 2, 3.

Entered 2 from Boston.

RITA A. BIRMINGHAM

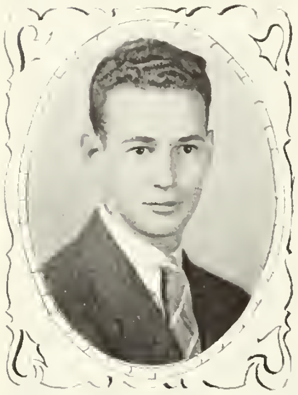
This young lady astounded B.H.S. by suddenly appearing in a government issue haircut. Why, we don't know, perhaps it was because of her interest in soldiers, sailors, and marines. She plans to enter a school of nursing, and hopes that through that she may make her parents the happiest people in the world.

Girls' League 1; Glee Club 1; Bank Teller 1, Messenger 2, 3, 4; Murivian 2, 3.

BRYCE BLAKELY

"Red" wants to join the Naval Air Corps as a fighter pilot, in part, to get away from women who smell like a walking cosmetic counter. He thinks seriously about the future, but won't be ready to tell you his outstanding accomplishment for at least fifty years. In the meantime he'll pass the time at "The Greeks".

Football Mgr. 2; Baseball Mgr. 1, 2; Basketball Mgr. 1, 2; Marshal 1, 2; Library Staff 2; Touchdown Club 2; Orchestra 1, 2.



CHARLES HERBERT BLOOM

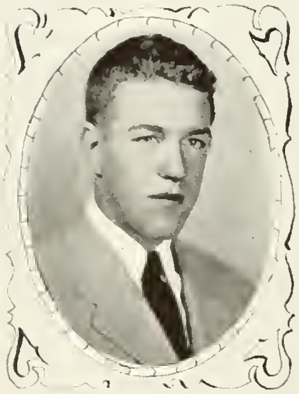
Can anyone design a plane better than the "Thunderbolt?" If so, speak to Charlie—he'll be all ears. When he's not arguing with Mr. Hall on the merits of the slide rule, he is laughing at Mr. Williams' jokes (anything for an "A" you know). "Chuck" is interested in the atmosphere and the stuff that roams around therein.

Glee Club 1, 2; Choral Reading 1; German Club 2, 3; English Club 3; Marshal 4; Science Club 1, 4; Boys' Club 1, 2, 3, Rep. 4; Kaarina 2.

DAVID ALAN BLOOM

Dave is a fellow with brown eyes and a distorted sense of humor . . . don't worry, he tells us that himself. Anyway it shows up in his ambition—to get a "coke" in the lunchroom, or in his pet passion, "her name begins with x".

Basketball 1; Sagamore Distributor 1; Camera Club 1; Stamp Club 1, 2; Chess Club 2; Kaarina 2; Boys' Club 1, 2, 3, 4; Red Cross Rep. 1, 2.



RAY BLUE

We're sure it will be a "snap" for "Blue . . . s" to get into the Naval Air Corps after passing Mr. Bemis's Commando course, an outstanding accomplishment for anyone. Although "Pat" is his serious thought, Bob Cusick—all 200 pounds of him—is really the object of his affection. Well, well, well!

Basketball 1; Football 1, 2, 4, 5; Touchdown Club 1, 2, 4, 5; Hockey 4, 5; Baseball 1, 4, 5, Var. Letterman 3, 4, 5; Red Cross H. R. R. 1, 2, 4; Home Room Chm. 1, 5; Robert House Council 5; Marshal 5; Boys' Club H. R. R. 5.

SHIRLEY EDITH BORENSTEIN

Shirl is the constant companion of Natalie (see Poorvu). The gas rationing had its deep effect on her 'cause Totem Pole keeps beckoning. But anyway, "men, the root of all evil, bless their little hearts", if there are any left, will smooth matters out.

Riding 3, 4; Tennis 1; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Girl Scouts 1; Science Club 4; Poster Club 4.

BETTE ARLENE BORTMAN

"Miss 2′ x 4″" with her pleasing sense of humor and ever increasing interest in the U. S. Army, spends her time annoying her friends with puns. If she gets her wish, she'll be a medical secretary to some nice, fat doctor with a black moustache. Of all the things amusing about Brookline, she picks "Debby".

Riding 1, 2, 3, 4; Girls' League Rep. 2, 3, 4; Senior Adviser 4; Sec. to Miss Sawyer 4; Marshal 4; Poster Club 4; Red Cross Rep. 3; Bank Teller 4; H. R. Sec. 4.

MALCOLM FREET BOUVÉ

Handsome Mel has a very noble suppressed desire—i.e. to do something great for posterity. In line with this wish he intends to join the Navy immediately after graduation. But he does not plan to make this his life work; becoming a newspaper reporter is his ultimate goal.

Science Club 1; Nature Club 2.

WILLIAM RICHARD BOWEN

"Guillaume", who intends to enter the Submarine Service, evidently takes French. Elementary, my dear Watson. Lawrence, Mass. is a special hangout of his, with the Lawrence Social Club taking the honors. When he's not "slinging it", he's wondering when he'll learn to dance and speak French. Bill believes that it's "better to be—than a dope."

Library Staff 1; H. R. V. Chm. 1; Boys' Club Rep. 1, 2; Marshal 3, 4.

HILDA BOYER

Hilda has set for herself a most intriguing ambition. It is to be a hospital technician. Right now, though, Hilda is involved in the intricacies of la langue Française and related subjects. Among her pastimes, none rates higher than reading. Hilda hopes that next fall will see her in the halls of Westbrook Junior College.

Girls' Auxiliary 3, 4; Senior Adviser 4; Girls' Leauge 1, 2, 3, 4; English Club 3, 4; Science Club 4.

GLORIA C. BRAND

Gloria or "Skippie" is v-e-r-y devoted to the Naval Air Corps—her future plans are even a naval secret. People who are never on time had better stay away from "Skippie"—she has a temper. She can play the piano and knit and she believes that "opportunity knocks but once."

Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4.

ILSA BRANDT

The little girl with the eyes, nose, ears, and mouth (that's the way she describes herself) is Ilsa. She wants to be a dietitian and, as is to be expected, Foods is her favorite subject. She thinks the English Club is tops . . . but Math. doesn't even rate. "Come let me clutch thee", says she, quoting Shakespeare.

Basketball 2; Tennis 2; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Foods Club 1, 2, 3; English 4; Science Club 4.

ROBERTA BRENNAN

"Bobby" says she has a remarkable ability for getting into trouble, but Mr. Grinnell and Mr. Bartlett must soothe her or she wouldn't idolize them. She likes sports, all of them, and she's headed for Sargent College to become an instructor in physical education. Just where that ties in with her favorite subject, Chemistry, is a bit vague.

Archery 1, 2; Tennis 2; Var. Swimming Team 1, 2, 3, 4; Field Hockey 1, 2; Var. 4; Basketball 3; Old English "B" 4; Red Cross Rep. 4; Bank Teller 5.

ROBERT BREST

Bob, of the wide smile, takes great interest in any sport, and especially in the Braves. St. Clairs, the 920 Club and the big man himself, take up a good deal of his precious time, that is, of course, when he's not thinking of ways to answer the 64 dollar question.

Ass't Mgr. Swimming 1; Bank Teller 3; Red Cross Rep. 1, 2, 3.

MAJORIE BROIDE

Here we have another Harry James fan in Margie, whose pet peeve at the same time is Guy Lombardo. She wants to be a medical secretary and perhaps her favorite subject, Chemistry, will help her along. Her suppressed desire is to hit the bald man at the bowling alley on the head . . . a desire that may be realized. Quién sabe?

Swimming 2; Tennis 1; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Dramatic Soc. 4.

NORMA BROMBERG

While Norm will have to suppress her desire to pilot a plane until the war is over, she still spends her time at the mail box when she isn't writing thousands of letters. At any rate, whether it's at her pet passion or piloting an air plane, may she always be successful.

Sagamore Reporter 4; Girls' League 4; Dramatic Soc. (Bus. Staff) 4; Stage Door 4; Red Cross Rep. 4.

Entered 4 from Newton High School.

ANDREW BROWN

Baseball, swimming, and horseback riding are only a few of the things in which Andy is proficient, for when it comes to Biology or Physics, he's your man. Right now he hopes to join the U. S. Marines so that he may aid Uncle Sam in making the world safe for his women.

ROBERT BROWN

Retiring in good health at the age of 40 is a desire we hope isn't suppressed, but "Brownie" will have to have more serious thoughts than just "her" to attain that goal. "Brownie" isn't planning on the army (now he should know better than that) but wants a good job now.

J. V. Baseball 2; J. V. Letterman 2; Track 3; Hockey 2, 3; Freshman Numerals 1; Red Cross Rep. 3, 4.

FAY BUCHHALTER

Fay's long nails are the talk of the school, along with her nice singing voice. She has a great liking for History, but Chemistry leaves her cold—in fact she'd like to slip a little arsenic in a "chemical reaction." She can generally be seen at the Statler Hotel—surrounded by Dartmouth men.

Horseback Riding 3, 4; Girls' League 3, 4; Science Club 4; English Club 4; Girls' Auxiliary 4; Murivian Com. 4.

Entered B. H. S. 3.

CARLITA BUNKER

Lincoln House is proud to have as one of its members, a lovely young lady from Puerto Rico. Carlita has found our school system quite different from hers; our customs, too. Carlita mentioned one custom we pass on to you. In Puerto Rico, girls may go on dates only if chaperoned by one of their parents.

Entered 4 from Puerto Rico.

EDWARD FRANCIS BURGESS

"Ed", whose idol, needless to say, is Edward F. Burgess has set his course straight for Annapolis, though his immediate plans (more likely those of his draft board) are for the U.S. Army or Navy as a private or seaman. He is a versatile fellow and claims the ability to play four instruments. All at once, Ed?

Baseball 1; Basketball 1; Marshal 3; Orchestra 1, 2, 3; Dramatic Soc. 3.

EDMUND JOSEPH BURKE

All types of girls are Ed's failure, although he sometimes wonders what will become of the men now that women wear slacks. Sports, aviation, and the Navy are his pet interests and his one big accomplishment in life has been passing three years of Latin.

Baseball 1; H. R. V. Chm. 4.

CATHERINE BURNS

If anyone knows anything about this girl please report to 239. She's very non-committal but we do know that she plays the piano and that her favorite organization is the Navy. Also, our research bureau has discovered that her nickname is "Pinky". As to her future plans, they're just one more undisclosed item.

ELAINE BURTON

Burt's suppressed desire is a universal one—she wants to see her brothers again. She wants to speed up victory by going into some part of the service. Through her chief interest is out of the country she still manages to keep late hours. That's quite an accomplishment, don't you think?

MARIA A. BUSALACCHI

This young lady with the architectural tendencies (she says she has a Roman nose), is quite an accomplished person. She has the distinction of having had her art work exhibited at the Art Museum. When interviewed, she told us that she hopes to make art her life work, but she's very fickle, so we really can't tell.

EDWARD A. CAHILL JR.

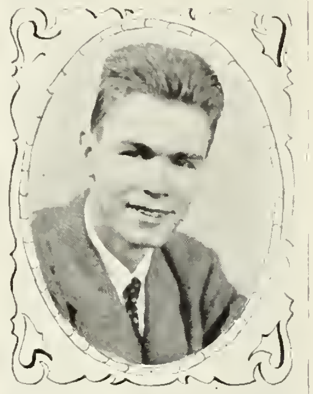
On the track "Ace" has proved his ability, not only in running, but in humoring F. Dean. "Da Woman," however, is his main interest. But no woman can take Bud's interest off the U. S. Marine Air Corps, for that's where he's going after graduation, and where he's sure to be a credit to B. H. S.

Football 1, 2, 3, 4; J. V. Letter 3; Track 1, 2, 3, 4, 5; Var. Letter 3, 4, 5; Cross Country 4, 5; Class Day Relay 2, 3, 4, 5; Track Club Treas. 3, 4; Baseball 5; Var. Letter 5; Freshman Numerals: Baseball, Football, Track; Participant, Fitchburg Relays 2, 3, 4, 5; Usher, Junior Prom 2; Usher, Senior Prom 3; German Club 3, 4; H. R. Chm. 2, 3, 4; Marshal 2, 5; Usher, Newton Game 4; Boys' Club 1, 2, 3, 4, 5.

NUNCIATA LORETTA CAMPAGNA

Nancy must have an eye out for either hard work or what, in her mind, is glamour, 'cause she wants to be an Army nurse. She also is on an all-out campaign against little freshmen wearing those long, long shirts. Will they protest if we say we agree, too?

Hockey 3; Girls' League Rep. 1, 2, 3, 4; Lost and Found Com. 2, 4; Glee Club 1, 2; Senior Adviser 4.



ALAN B. CAMPBELL

He isn't kiddin', when "Bruise" says he wants to be a Prof. at M.I.T. U.S. Marines and Lou Costello rate high with him. But his deep passion is Charles Boyer (ain't Lana Turner good enough for him?). In his five years at B. H. S., Scotty has proved his likeability with a capital "L".

Boys' Club 2; Science Club 2, 3, 5.

JAMES CAROLAN

A red-head with a cheerful disposition . . . that's Jim. Although he's active in other sports, his main interest is golf. Jim wants to be a success in life. The way to accomplish this, in his estimation, is to be the pro at the Pinehurst Country Club in North Carolina . . . and maybe teach Veronica Lake!

Football Mgr. 1, 2, 3, Ass't Mgr. 4; Hockey 1; Hockey Mgr. 2, 3, 4; Golf 1; Touchdown Club 1, 2, 3, Sec. 4.

Entered from Horace Mann School, Roxbury 1.

JAMES CARSON

Husky Jim is an all-round athlete. Not only is he an ardent member of our football team, but he also wishes to become either a member of the Phil Spitalny Orchestra, or to play quarterback for the Chicago Bears. He has a lazy ambition . . . to test mattresses for a living.

Baseball 1, 2, 3, 4; Basketball 1; Football 4; Touchdown Club 4; Murivian H. R. R. 4.

VIRGINIA A. CASEY

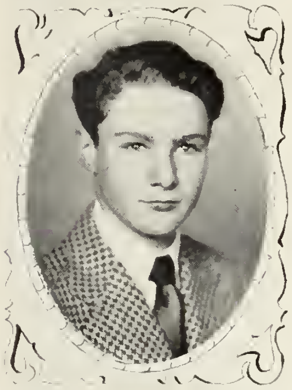
As soon as "Ginnie" gets her diploma, she (all 5′ 6″ of her) plans to go to nursing school. She will have to stop spending her time in that black La Salle, but we're sure it's worth it. After all, she'll be helping her "interest", the rest of the Army Air Corps, and doing a necessary job besides.

Field Hockey 1, 2; Basketball 2; Badminton 1, 2; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4.

MARJORIE L. CHALMERS

Meet 5' 2" Marjorie, the gal with the Jenny Lind voice. We owe the success of the Vocal groups to her, and the Girls' League entertainments would be lost without her. However, we have it on the strictest authority that Marge will drop her operatic career and become a brain surgeon. No matter what career she follows, she is sure to be a great success.

Archery 1; Red Cross 1, 2; Girls' League H. R. R. 1, 2, 3; Senior Adviser 4; Spanish Club 3; Glee Club Rep 1, Sec. 2, Sec., V. Pres. 4; Girls Vocal Ensemble 1, 2, 3, 4; Kaarina 2; Cheerleader 3, 4; Science Club 4; Sports Dance Com. 3; Pep Club 3, 4; Girls' Auxiliary 4.



A. HARVEY CINAMON

The pastime of this lad, whose nickname is unmentionable, is waiting for February 29. After seeing that, we can readily believe his conviction that "he should have been a quiz kid." As soon as June 17 rolls around Harvey plans to enter the Marines, so that he won't feel bad about Wake Island.

1st prize, Poster Contest 3; Bank 3, 4; H. R. V. Chm. 3.

RUTH CLARK

Blue-eyed Ruth Clark is one of those people whose burning ambition is to travel and see the world. (Guess she'll have to wait a while). In the meantime, Ruth has successfully completed her four years at dear old B.H.S. and is planning to enter secretarial school after graduation.

Girls' League 3, 4; Dramatic Soc. 4.

RUTHE F. CLAYTON

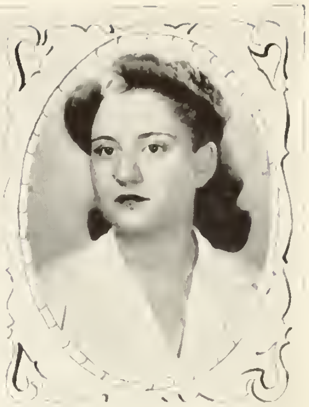
"Ruthie" enjoys teasing . . . probably because she's a "younger sister". Her favorite organization is the Dramatic Society . . . her favorite subject ought to be history . . . she got an A in a history monthly . . . once. She spends her time reading Superman, and wondering when World War II will be over.

Basketball 1; Archery 2; Tennis 2; Girls' Auxiliary 4; Science Club 4; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; H. R. Sec. 1, 2, 3, 4; Bank Teller 1, Messenger 2, 3, 4; Dramatic Soc. 4; Murivian H. R. R. 4.

GERALDINE S. CLEGG

"Chickie" wants to be a secretary, but 'till then she'll settle for dates with Phillip Monahan. The football team amuses her . . . the movies please her . . . and Guy Lombardo intrigues her. Right now she would like nothing better than to leave B.H.S. in 1943 and pass office practice. . . the former sort of depends on the latter.

Basketball 1; Tennis 1; Bank Teller 4; Girls' League 1, 2.



BEVERLEY HARRIETTE COHEN

Bev wants to be a doctor—love of humanity, no doubt. She gets teary when she hears people say "I didn't open a book last night." Although she hasn't any suppressed desire, she has a passion for Chinamen with pigtails, Spanish idioms, Scottish Highlanders, Chemistry and knitting.

Girls' League 1, 2, 4; Science Club 2; Glee Club 1.

CARL PHILIP COHEN

This young man is probably the most distinguished looking boy in the high school. Don't think it's due to any outstanding accomplishment (look at his list of organizations); those "graying temples" have done the trick. Zeke's anathema is "Giggling girls" . . . and his current heart throb is Rita Hayworth. But then Carl is a fickle land . . . we just don't know what other actress he'll go with next!

Boys' Club 1, 2, 3.

CHARLOTTE COHEN

Charl, otherwise known as the great luffer, is simply nuts about sailing at Marblehead. Her suppressed desire is to be an American Spy in Germany; since it's suppressed, she spends her time watching Harvard play football. Her interest is selling War Stamps and Bonds.

DAVID O. COHEN

Seemingly gifted with scientific tendencies, Dave considers physics his favorite subject, but then fails to follow through in chemistry, for he says that his outstanding accomplishment was going from A to D in that subject in one month. However, if his future plans materialize, neither of these will be of paramount importance, because in the Marine Corps he will be kept busy with other things.

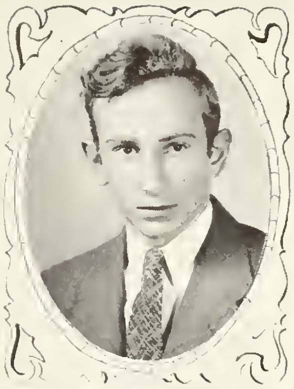
Track 1, 2, 3, 4; Touchdown Club 4; Track Club 2; Bank Teller 1, 2; Boys' Club Rep. 3, 4.

GERTRUDE COHEN

Gerty pronounced with a Brooklyn "e", would like to go to Grinnel College, Iowa. (We don't like where it is either). But when it comes to boys, Gert is strictly a believer in mono-maleism—one man at a time—(but the question is . . . how many times?) Red's fondest thoughts are all focused on Camp Swift, Texas.

Girls' League 4, Rep. 5; Bank Teller 5; Library Rep. 5.

Entered 4 from Brighton High.



HYMAN COHEN

As advice to his pals, Hyman says, "Live and Learn"—after all, he should know! He seems to be a rabid bicyclist as his favorite hangout is the bike room and his favorite organization, the bike group headed by that versatile "Uncle Art." However, waiting outside Mr. Totman's office and aviation are good time-wasters for him.

Boys' Club 1, 2, 3, Rep. 4; Murivian H. R. R. 4; Usher, Newton Game 3.

RAE ELIZABETH COHEN

Sugar has a real peeve in egotistical men. She says in a sage way that it isn't where you come from, it is what you are. Besides, her interest is 6′ 1″ and a football player. Chemistry is her favorite subject and she'd like to be a lab technician in the future.

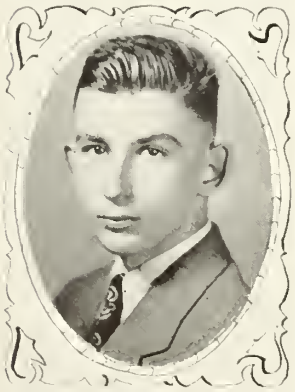
ROSALYN COHEN

Gullible Roz, with those enchanting green eyes, is, sad to relate, not interested in us, but rather with something "over there". She states that her outstanding accomplishment over here is controlling her temper in 2nd period on Tuesday. Shoes, shoes, shoes, what would Roz's world be without them?

English Club 2; Girls' League 2, 3; Bank Teller 4.

Entered 2 from Lowell High.



NORMAN COHN

This patriotic young man is willing to give up his pet passions, sleeping and going to the movies, to become a radioman in the Navy. However this is only a means to a certain end . . . Hitler's. When not worrying about Adolf's future, Norman spends his time rooting for the Boston Red Sox, his favorite organization.

Baseball Mgr. 1; Bank Teller 4; Boys' Club 1, 2, 3.

THOMAS COLEMAN

"T", who hopes to be a retired Marine very soon, should like very much to come down Corey Hill with no brakes. Perhaps that's why his favorite quotation is "to be or not to be." He tells us that his interest is the same as any other he-man. Are you referring to the Marines, Tom?

THEODORA B. COMMONS

Teddy is most well-known by her long, glamorous blond hair. Another characteristic of Teddy's, although pretty well hidden, is her temper, she says. Considering how much she talks about it and how often she does it, we gather she loves roller skating. She sincerely believes that "this is worth fighting for" and so has high hopes to be an A-1 nurse.

Basketball 2; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Girls' Foods Club 1; Girls' Auxiliary 3, 4.

JOAN F. CONNELLY

Joanie hopes never to be disappointed in life. She likes art—her own and other good stuff, red—real bright, and Gary Cooper, but not hats. She is uncertain about her future and devotes her serious thoughts to it. However, for the present Joan'll spend time being lazy.

Girls' League 1; Poster Club 2; Banking Staff 3.

JOHN A. CONROY

"J"—you know, the fellow who spends his time inflating tires on locomotives—is still wondering about the strong box under John Nason's bed. His favorite hangout is the corridor outside 124 where he can ask "Who did the homework" without disturbing anyone. Future plans include B. C. and engineering.

MURIEL RUTH COOPER

Dark-eyed Muriel is, one of B.H.S.'s foremost pacifists. "Peace on earth, good will towards men," is her motto, and her most serious desire is to see this war over with peace insured forever. She is one of the Murivian committee's essential artists and is going to be a great success in her career of commercial art.

GLORIA CLAIRE COPELLMAN

Gloria is one of B.H.S.'s aspiring Jenny Linds as those of you who saw Kaarina may recall. "Glo", however, has many other interests at the moment, interests which include reading, acting, History and College. Gloria has the admirable "failing" of being frank and on the asset side of her character ledger is her attitude on friendship. Says Gloria, "The only way to have a friend is to be one."

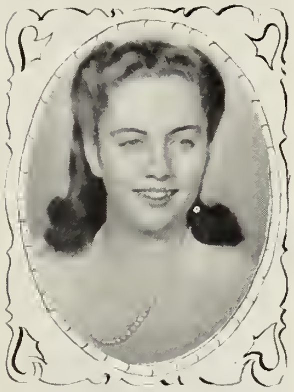
ARTHUR CORMAN

This "cold-blooded" critter with the steel blue eyes doesn't like the way U.S. planes are being designed. He wants to design good ones; to get in practice, he makes models. Although Art has yet to meet the girl of his dreams, he has no difficulty in deciding who his idol is . . . Jimmy Doolittle.



JUNE MARY COTTER

June's penchant for typewriting will help her to become a secretary after she's been to business school. Now she keeps busy with bowling and thoughts of the Army Air Corps. Incidently, her suppressed desire is to see Chickee Clegg join the Wags. June's another one of those Monday-morning haters whose outstanding accomplishment has been getting to classes on time.

Tennis 1; Golf 1, 2; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Foods' Club 1, 2.

PHYLLIS ANN COTTON

Phyllis is one of those breezy gals as her nickname "Windy" suggests. Phil hopes some day to be a career woman in the business world, but right now her career at B.H.S. is uppermost in her mind. Phil has a more than passing interest in the Navy these days, all because of a certain guy called Art. On graduating, Phyllis wants to do secretarial work.

JOHN P. COX

As popular a boy as Lincoln House possesses, is John Cox. John's swell personality and sense of humor have won him hosts of friends, but by deeds rather than words has Johnny gained most fame. His star performances on the gridiron have done much for our football fortunes. Whether in college or the armed service John will make an outstanding record for himself.

GERARD CRAFT

Jerry is another one of those fellows who may regularly be seen haunting the Science department after 1:30, intrigued by some new phase of this vital work. Jerry has been in uniform as long as any fellow from this school; explanation: he has been in the band since they got red and blue uniforms. Right now Jerry has hopes of attending the University of Pennsylvania.

Ed's ambition was to go to the B.U. School of Administration . . . but it looks like the U.S.M.C. will get him first. This 6' 3" Adonis with the personality plus spends most of his time at the Bowlaway, and talking about his favorite subject—Machine Shop.

BARBARA LORRAINE CROWLEY

Barbs has a smile and a joke for every one. When it comes to puns (or other low-life jokes) Barbara knows just what to do . . . kill 'em. She wants to become an x-ray technician or a floor-walker in a telephone booth. Mr. Webber, Mrs. Ginty, the Dramatic Society, and Priscilla Alden's are tops to her way of thinking.

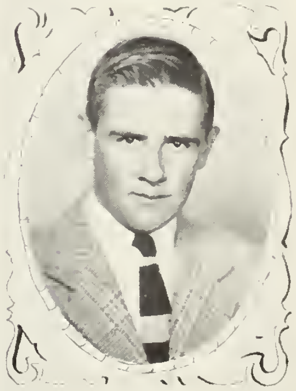
GEORGE F. CUNNINGHAM

Red would like to own the Brookline Theatre and a certain girl in Texas. An interest in education leads him to a certain unmentionable place where he spends much time. Red's a great jokester, but not when it comes to his mother and dad . . . they're pretty much all right.

Baseball 1, 2; Football 2; Bank Teller 1, 2, 3; H. R. V. Chm. 1, 2; Red Cross Rep. 2; Boys' Club Rep. 1.



ROBERT J. CUSICK

Bob's a four year man with a varsity letter and a dream of a "White Christmas." He's not too keen on the classics, but when it comes to baseball, football, hockey, and track, he's out there doing his best for the "old alma mammy". Cus likes to argue; he rants about the Bible and the natural color of J. Saunder's hair.

RICHARD COTTER DALTON

A most outstanding member of the senior house is "Dirty" Dalton. Boasting the honor of being the shortest boy in Lincoln House he has aptly proved the maxim that the "best things come in small quantities". His very fine record culminated in his election to the vice-presidency of the graduating class. Dick's cheerfulness and sincerity have made him one of B.H.S.'s favorite sons.

WARNER G. DALZELL

Gus's main ambition in life is to drive a Lincoln 200 m.p.h. up the Worcester turnpike backward (let me recommend the Mattapan hospital for mental incompetents). After graduation, he wants to commit suicide. (So what, I bet he thinks the head of America's armed forces is General Electric). Among the campfire girls, he's known as "Baby Face" Nelson (he's just a killer).

STANTON H. DAVIS

Stan is a great patriot: President Roosevelt is his idol; the service, his plans; and Tokio, his ambition. To make up for any time he might lose in the future, he is making heavy dates his pastime, taking care, however, that they never, never, interfere with his studies.

ZALMAN DAVLIN

"Will you PLEASE sit down!" These words, a hank of unruly hair, and a scientific approach, best characterize our Editor-in-Chief. As to the job he's done . . . we're slightly prejudiced, but just look at the book you're holding. We wouldn't know, but the most reliable sources have it that, on the afternoon of April 7th at 2:11 P.M., Zal was not in 239. Is it possible?

What B.H.S. will do without its greatest track star Gunga, remains to be seen. Not satisfied with his present swiftness, he still wants to achieve the hoped-for four-minute mile. His favorite subject is math, even though he dislikes sharing his lunch with Mr. Bates.

Kay likes hockey, Howard Johnson's, Bing Crosby, and Office Practice. A sensible girl, her future plans include getting a job.

Red Cross Rep. 3, 4; Library Staff Treas. 3; Waitress, Senior Banquet 2.

GEORGE DeLORIE

George is one of B. H. S.'s heppiest hep-cats. His pet true love, is hot records of which he is a real connoisseur. George ranks Biology and History high in his choice of favorite subjects. As for future plans, George is headed U. S. Navy way.

ALEXANDER CONSTINSTINE DEMETER

Alex is the boy with the great big grin. The reason for this lopsided expression is his pride in himself. Explanation—he is graduating from Brookline High School in four years! Alex would like to head the Gas Rationing Board . . . who wouldn't. To eat, to sleep —to sleep, to eat—that's the life, says this Glenn Miller fan.

Football 1; Baseball 1; Hockey 1; Boys' Club 1; Science Club 4.

NICOLETTE DOROTHY DEMETER

Nicki's modest ambition is to go everywhere and to do everything, but the statement that her greatest interest is her home life proves that underneath it all she is just a home-body. Nicki has the very masculine interest of Army Tactics. She plans to go to college after graduation.

DOROTHY MARIE DEVLIN

Dotty has a real wild ambition—to be referee in the Brookline vs. Newton football (?) game. She has a passion for a southern accent and is another one of these roller skating fans. She says her interest lies in roller skating, roller skating, and more roller skating, and she can be found every night at the Co-Ed rollerdrome.

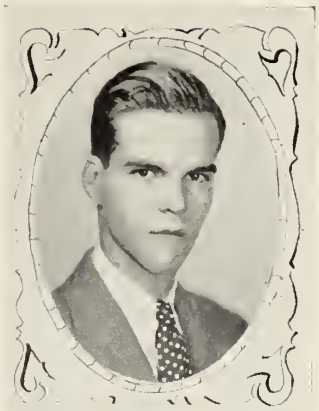
SELMA DIANA DICKSON

This young lady has set for herself the ambitious goal of making a success of whatever she does. Right now she is interested in sports and music, so it is in those things that she now strives for success. Sally has the very commendable pastime of "knittin' for Britain." Right now, college is uppermost in her thoughts.

Golf 2; Girls' League 2, 3, Rep. 4; Science Club 4; Sec. to Miss Sawyer 4; Girls' Auxiliary 3, 4.



PHILIP DIMMITT

Phil. or any other name you happen to think of, dislikes freshmen and girls who wear slacks, but best of all he likes Blood Donors who have something which he hasn't. Phil's favorite hangout is Jefferson City, Missouri (those southern gals, you know) and he's heading for the U.S.M.C. and then Missouri University.

Red Cross Rep. 2, 3; H. R. Chm. 4.

LAURA A. DIMOND

This charming (broad "a") miss has flat feet—of all things. We never would have guessed. People who put an "a" in her last name let themselves in for a tirade—a positive storm of wrath. Laura either catches colds or doodles, but through it all she remains faithful to Falstaff Openshaw.

ROGER B. DiPESA, JR.

Besides baseball and football, Rog is interested in Chemistry. In fact, he wants to be chief (no less) chemical engineer at DuPont's. He thinks that student government at B.H.S. is something to laugh about—maybe the day will come though, when our student government will be taken seriously.

J. V. Football 2; J. V. Baseball 2; Bank Teller 5.

NORMAN DIZEK

Here is Brookline High's leading exponent of Malapropism, genial Normie Dizek. Norm, however, has gained fame in larger measure by his prowess in baseball. For those of you who never seem to get any laughs for your jokes, meet the answer to your problem. Norm guarantees to laugh at any joke, the cornier the better. In a more serious vein, we state that Norman's immediate future plans involve some branch of military service.

Baseball 1, 2, 3, 4; Track 2, 4; Basketball 1.

DOROTHEA ILENE DONNELLY

As her idol Dot has chosen one of the least idolized persons in the country, Mr. Whimple, who will surely be very happy to know that he has at least one ardent admirer. "Dot's" future plans call for an entrance to Lasell Junior College, where she will have a chance to go on with her favorite subject, chemistry.

Field Hockey 1, 2, 3, 4; Library Staff 2; Girls League 1, 2, 3, 4; Poster Club 3, 4.

SORELIE RUTH DOREN

Notable for her "red-red" hair, Ruthie exposed a fallacy by keeping her temper throughout the year. Taking care of a "dummy" would have exasperated anyone less equable. Indeed as Layout Editor of the Murivian, she had very little time left in which to indulge in her favorite pastime . . . square-dancing.

MARY LOUISE DORNEY

Mary Lou has a rabid passion to be a WAAC. So we pass along a bit of advice to her—don't put off for tomorrow what you can do today—even if in civilian life it is your chief failing. She shows an interest in magazine illustrating as her pastime is sketching and her idol Norman Rockwell. Good luck on either career, Mary Louise.

Archery 1; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4.

BARBARA H. DOYLE

Here's a girl—a pretty little blonde—who actually wants to be a brunette. She's really a rarity. Her favorite organization is the football team . . . what there is left of it. "Barb" intends to go to the Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School and she's one girl who doesn't have to say "if I graduate—"

ELEANOR H. DROURR

"Jerry" is already finding herself well absorbed in the literary and dramatic world with her interest in the Sagamore, and Stage Door. She's entertaining fond hopes of being a second John Steinbeck, or, what's better, a first Eleanor Drourr. She can also make claims to having had a story published, and that's a lot more than most of us can say.

OLIVE PATRICIA DUBUQUE

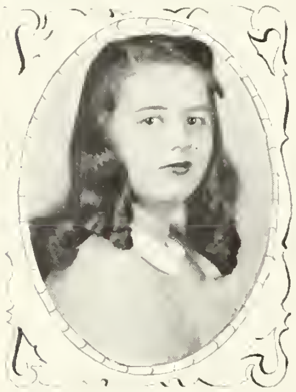
Pat's accomplishment is getting to school before the 8:30 bell, and the secret of her success is her favorite quotation, "vouloir c'est pouvoir". She considers the outstanding thing about B.H.S. is its would be Don Juans, and this probably accounts for her ambition, to be secretary to Clark Gable, who's the real thing.

Gym Team 2; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Foods Club 1, 2; Senior Adviser 4.

SYLVIA L. DUBUQUE

Although Sylvia dislikes the twenty minute lunch period, she guesses that's better than nothing at all. A very patriotic young lady, she told us that the Girls' Auxiliary is her favorite organization. She dislikes French as do other of her friends.

Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Girls' Food Club 1, 2,; Senior Adviser 4; Girls' Auxiliary 3, V. Chm. 4; Waitress, Senior Banquet 1.



MARY M. DUHIG

Mary has one main interest. It takes up most of her waking hours and occupies a goodly portion of her dreaming nights. . . . Science, fair science—thou'rt it. Mary's only desire is that her course be shortened to Chemistry and Biology. She intends to go to College and then to Medical School.

VIRGINIA ELIZABETH ELDRIDGE

Ginny has her whole life set up for herself. She wants first to be a successful journalist . . . then to get married and have twins. However to get on in life, she really ought to overcome all her little pet peeves—people who are late, a certain drum majorette, and umbrellas, but definitely not Jack.

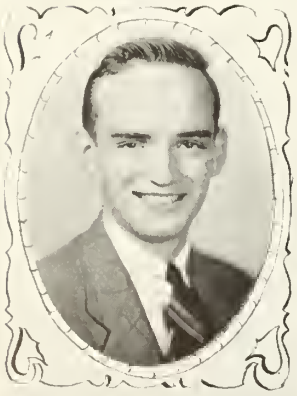
THOMAS J. ELLIOTT, JR.

The first thing that Jack plans to do when the war is over is to lead a U. S. Marine Parade down Unter Den Linden, Berlin. After that, he's coming back to the good, old U.S.A. to erect a monument in honor of himself. I suppose if you don't like yourself, no one else will.

Track 4; Hockey Mgr. 2; Boys' Club 1; Usher, Graduation 3.



JOHN RICHARD ELLIS

"Never do today what you can do tomorrow." Don't think, though, that "Big John" applies this fond remark to everything. When it comes to Math (any and all forms of that gruesome subject) he's ready and willing to pitch in imediatemente (as "Doc" Shepard would say). Generally the possessor of an unruffled countenance, John flares up when he hears the school's nickname, "Wealthy Towners."

Swimming 1; Track 1, 2, 3, 4; Class Day Relays 3, 4; Co-Captain Cross-Country 3, 4; Spanish Club 4.

MARILYN ELLIS

This little Miss called "Mickey", spends most of her waking hours studying to be a kindergarten teacher, since her ambition is to have a private kindergarten. Though her idol is her little brother Eddie, she still manages to find plenty of time for her big brother(?), Bobby.

Girls' League 4, 5.

HAROLD L. ELTERMAN

"Al" will undoubtedly become a commercial pilot—after he helps to win the war as a Marine. He spends most of his time in a little diner in Dorchester—that's where he writes most of his poetry. He likes Mechanical Drawing—but not Chemistry. Oddly enough, he likes girls, with green eyes especially.

Track 2; Basketball 3; Boys' Club 4; Pep Com. 3, 4.

CORRINE LEE ENGLE

Corrinne has a very interesting physical characteristic—her little toe nail. She wants to join the WAACs because they just won't let her spend the rest of her life watching Mr. Wells smile in physics. If you hear something that sounds like a frog croaking—it's Corrinne trying to sing.

CONSTANCE R. EPSTEIN

"Things are seldom what they seem." Ostensibly the words of a sour, disillusioned cynic, Connie's cheerful smile indicates that it's all an act or Gilbert and Sullivan. Football games, old-fashioned square dances, dramatics, and history, share honors as her favorites. The three "M's" . . . Michigan, Mass. State and Murivian have somewhat distracted Con . . . you'd never tell it from her marks, though!

English Club 3, 4; Dramatic Soc. 4; Murivian Com. 4, H. R. R. 4; Girls' League 3, 4; French Club 3; Asst. Bank Teller 4.

Entered from J. H. Burke High School, Dorchester 3.

ELISE EPSTEIN

Lolly, the girl who can rhumba like a dream, just can't stand being called Elsie—says it reminds her of cows. She thinks her chief failing is being tactless at times—but all her friends know she has good intentions. After dancing, on her "hit parade," comes listening to Artie Shaw beat out "Temptation."

THOMAS J. FAY, JR.

Tommy is an ambiguous fellow—says he doesn't like to boast about his outstanding accomplishment! Sports are his meat and the Boston College A.A. doesn't seem to help suppress his desires one bit. Here's a funny thing—the guy don't like blondes—say, ambiguous wasn't quite the word we wanted there, was it?

MACEY FEINGOLD

Macy's a boy who never talks unless he is spoken to, never whispers in class, never forgets to do a home lesson, and wonders when man will be governed by reason. (No, he's not superman!) He intends to further his education at M.I.T.—that is, if the army doesn't get him first.

RUTH DORIS FEINSILVER

Ruth wants to be as fine a woman as her mother, and as good a physics student as her father. Well, we'd say she's got what it takes to be both. Ruth has a great deal to do with the Stage Staff and can generally be found puttering around backstage.

ADELE G. FEINSTEIN

"Dellie", whose ambition is to get happily married, tells us that when not delving into her favorite subject, History, she's probably deep in serious thought. Her plans for the future contain the prospect of entering college or nursing school. Too bad, but she would like to join the Air Corps.

HOWARD S. FELDMAN

Howard's favorite word is "ego". He likes blondes, brunettes, and redheads; not fussy at all . . . as long as it's female. Howie would like nothing better than to join the Waves or live a life of ease. Daydreaming is a nice way to waste class time . . . he thinks. Unfortunately the teachers have different ideas.

LOREN B. FELDMAN

Another of those who is disturbed by certain existing conditions is Loren (interest—drumming) whose ambition is to take over Krupa's orchestra, and to, no doubt, show Krupa how it's really done. Those who remember "This is the Army" will pardon Loren for boasting a little when he recalls his outstanding accomplishment—getting two tickets for said show.

Likeable Norman Fink has made himself well-known in the halls of B.H.S. during the 4 years that he has graced them. His outside activity list speaks for itself, and those who know will attest to the excellence of his work as President of the Dramatic Society. Norman expects that next year will find him at Dartmouth.

When Patty isn't staying after school for Dr. Shepard, she cruises around in 627-873 (it's a black ford coupe, we understand)—but we'd certainly like to know where (s)he gets the gas. JIM FISH

"J. Fish—Sterling Hayden"—that's the title that this very chawming person, Jimmie, modestly gives himself. He simply loves school, especially English in 221. But the thing that gets his goat is getting up at 7 o'clock in the morning. He'd like to join the U. S. Navy Air Corps, and if a laughing personality does it—there's your man, Navy.

Helen could no doubt be useful to our intelligence corps, with her handwriting that she boasts no spy could possibly decode (N.B. editor). Maybe it is this handwriting which is responsible for the fact that she considers passing third years French after five years as her outstanding accomplishment. However, it is obvious where her sentiments lie, for her favorite quotation is, "No homework tomorrow".

Jackie, one of the most ardent workers in the Girls' Auxiliary, hopes to emulate the nurses in Bataan, who are her idols. As a further evidence of her passion, it may be noted that her ambition is to be a second Florence Nightingale. Perhaps that accounts for her great interest in the Girls' Auxiliary.

"Schnitzlefritz" Fishstein, who rivals, if not surpasses, a snail for slowness in everything, prides himself in his lackadaisicalness. He idolizes "Mr. Five-by-Five", hates his alarm clock at 7:00 a.m., and loves Pennsylvania railroads. Ben loves danger, as is evidenced by his answers on his Murivian questionnaire.

NORRINE FREUND

Norrine is a girl who looks forward to flinging conventionality to the four winds someday. Then she'll do what she wants when she wants to. If it were not for Emily Post, bleached blonds, and conceited people, life would be one continuous song. However, she does like sports and North Carolina.

Also, if a nice, presentable girl would like a tall, handsome dancing partner . . . well, he's just dying to be taught the rudiments of that fine art.

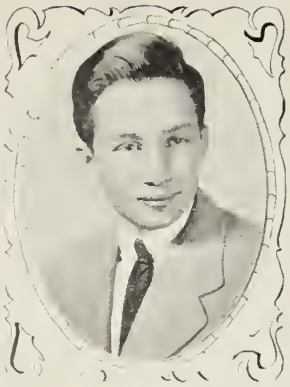
ARTHUR FRISHMAN

Master of subtle humor and cagy dig, Arthur has quietly wisecracked his way through four years of B.H.S. He really has a serious side though as can be attested to by his home room teller who notes his perfect record of buying at least one war stamp each Tuesday they have been sold, a record attributed to his ardent patriotism.



SIDNEY CARL FURST

Sidney Carl Furst (please, don't forget the Carl) needs no introduction. The bona fide "Wittiest Boy" of B.H.S. certainly deserves his title. His humor is abundant and, as far as we're concerned, the oftener he sprays it around the better. And if you don't agree "your number's up!"

WALTER F. GALLAGHER, JR.

Popular, witty, Walter is one of the many at B.H.S. whose favorite subject is areonautics and whose future plans are enlistment in the Air Corps. In fact his ambition is to pilot a "Flying Fortress." "Kippy's" ambition is to be successful at last . . . a conservative estimate for anyone who manages to graduate in four years. His interest in 99 9/10%; we don't know what, but it's in Somerville. Although "Kip" has yet to discover his favorite subject, he likes to spend his spare time attending movies and plays—with "Jo"(?).

FRANKLIN SEWARD GARFIELD

Franklin with his beautiful head of hair (mop to you) is the envy of everyone, for his outstanding accomplishment is eating a good lunch for nothing. Being a home boy at heart, Franklin hopes to become the man his mother taught him to be. Whether it's college or "U-no-what", we know he'll be a success.

Lew really goes in for art, and if you drop in at 314 any time, you'll see him there. He's a master at corny jokes, and the best one is his wanting to make a million dollars overnight (us, too!). But just to pass the kidding on, we think Garlic is going to go far, in fact he wants to travel in Europe.

What with having girls—just one—established in the shop, we think it wise to say—business is business, pleasure is pleasure—don't mix the two!

RITA H. GINSBERG

And on the left we have a great girl—a lover of sports, women, Miss Campbell, Chemistry, Girls' League, 110(?) etc., etc. Rita admits that her main physical characteristic is her wild hair but she feels there's an excuse—dashing up the stairs at 8:29 o'clock to the B.H.S. penthouse.

JOAN GURVITZ

Joan, (accent on the second syllable please) desires to be a president's mother—that's a new angle! Music, dramatics and L'il Abner occupy all her time, except for little someones with wings who aren't angels. Joan (accent on the second syllable) hangs out at Harvard yard! wonder why?

BARBARA HALL

Barbara's out "to do well, that for which I was born." No further comment needed! She sincerely dislikes narrow mindedness in anyone and wishes that schools taught tolerance, being very sympathetic herself. Her future plans include nurses' training, but if wishes were horses . . . Babs would be singing in a night club.

MILDRED HANDLER

Millie, whose one chief desire is to pass her P.F.I. warns us that some day she'll "let George do it" as quoted by Miss Liden. As of now, her great accomplishment is taking a "good" Purdy picture. She's really a whiz at Latin translation and, Millie, don't let vocab. tests get you down.

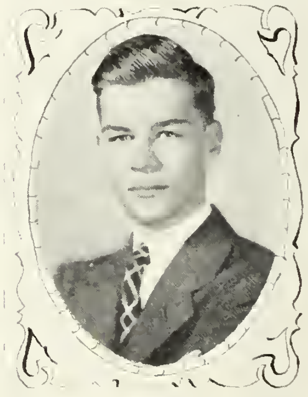
GLORIA HARRINGTON

Gloria . . . you know, she has unmistakably attractive blue eyes and blonde hair . . . informs us that skating, dancing, and sports are tops with her. Her dislike is a far from unusual one . . . school. Although she likes sports we have an idea that she doesn't . . . like many others . . . care particularly for the girls' gym classes.



FRANK HARRINGTON

Frank can be seen miles away when he has one of those loud ties on. Unfortunately though, he won't be half so distinctive next year, when he exchanges those screaming plaids for the comparatively conservative maroon and gray stripes of the M.I.T. freshman tie. Besides Science, F.D. is interested in loafing or a reasonable facsimile thereof, and seeing fires.

"Anchors aweigh, my boys" sings Charlie Hart, one of B. H. S.'s future sailors. In his opinion the Sagamore is the best organization around. He has a definite dislike for staying after school, and doing homework. Typewriting is his favorite subject here at B. H. S.

Sagamore 3, Treas. 4; Boys' Club. 4.

BETTY HATCH

Blonde hair, blue eyes, what more can you ask? and she's got it. 17 High St. is Bet's hangout. After four years in our hallowed halls, she still wants to make school at 8:14 (of course, she's just joking). Dancing, eating and sleeping fill her life full over with fun. She desires very much to be like Helen McElroy but just being Betty isn't so bad.

Golf, golf, and then for a change, some golf . . . that's Jim. Even though his pet peeve is looking for lost golf balls, Jim's always ready to make up a foursome for 18 holes. With all his interest in golf he still manages to find tune for his favorite subject, Chemistry which interest probably arose from trying to change to irons from brassies.

MARY HEIDER

Mary possesses the unusual distinction of having for a nickname the title "student"; she's also known as "shorty". Mary's chief interest is Art, in which has done some work. High among her list of favorite organizations are the Marines and Boston College. No doubt her interest in Art is the reason for her plans to be a drafter when she graduates.

Gloria is the only girl this person has found who declares that her suppressed desire is to shrink. Aside from this phenomenon, Gloria follows the accepted pattern that makes up a B.H.S. female. Gloria goes in for Miss Nichol's History classes in a big way. Her future plans are expressed in the one word, "college".

JEANNE MORRILL HERWITZ

Jeanne wants to be a success in life—even though she hasn't any future plans. She has one chief failing, though—Mr. Friedland could probably explain it more eloquently—while frothing at the mouth. "Smitty" indulges in sports, music and entertaining service men—accent on the latter.

Dit-dah dit-dah-dit dah H U R Hobden calling Flight Control—yes, it won't be long now until "Hart Hobby" is a flying radio man. Art, who detests homework, looks forward to his date with Uncle Sam. He is silly over brunettes, and is often heard to say, "Are you kidding?"

KENNETH B. HOBDEN

"Brains", "Greckle", 'Gracki", Tiberious", "Hobble Gobble", "Ken", "Hobby"; answering to all of these names is a boy who will make us all proud when he enters the U.S. Navy. Ken dislikes dancing and baby talk. He is very particular regarding girls who must be blond, brunette, or red-head.

Her chief failing is speaking correct English and she'd like to learn our "argot." But if it's jokes you're looking for, Lottert thinks the funniest thing about B.H.S. is the freshmen boys (we were freshmen once—and look at us now.) Bonne chance, Rougi.

Trying to hit curve balls of any type seems to be Jerry's main activity right now. He's getting a little tired of it though, so he plans to join the Marines to rest up a bit. CHARLES A. HUBBARD

"'Ten-shun—Ri' Dress—Lef' Face—For'ad March!!!" That's top-sergeant Charlie Hubbard, and if he has anything to do with it, some day it'll be General Hubbard. Charlie can't get too many vanilla milk shakes, think's the Red Sox are terrific, and thinks math isn't.

BETTY HUGHES

You can usually find him down at Tech Field pleading to be allowed to play left-field for the B.H.S. varsity.

Handsome Bill, who prefers to hang out on the washline, is one of those lucky people who's realized his suppressed desire. Until he enters the Navy in June "Tanglefoot" is dividing his time between trying to win a race at the Garden and sleeping. NORMA TALBOT JOHNSON

ANNETTE LANGER

Annette's ambition, to travel to far distant lands, is one which will be an impossibility for some time, so she will have to content herself with her interest, outside activities, and favorite subject, English. Her serious thought, "what to do after graduation," is one which has been puzzling many others besides herself.

Horseback Riding 1, 4; Girls' League H. R. R. 1, 2, 4; English Club 2; H. R. Sec. 2, 3.

ELAINE C. LEAVITT

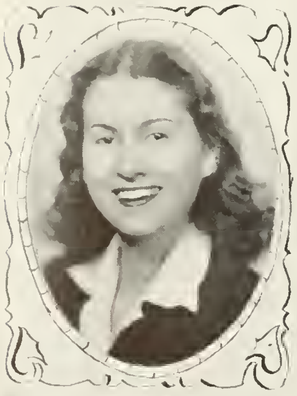
"Larry" has a very unusual outstanding accomplishment—she actually goes to school five days a week. No "sick (?) days" at all? The braces on her teeth cause her a bit of anxiety, but maybe if she thinks of what a beautiful smile she'll have when they are removed, she'll be consoled.

Tennis 1; Archery 2; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4.

CONSTANCE J. LE BEAU

Connie transferred from Wellesley High School this year and she still misses her old alma mammy. She is one of the more fortunate seniors, in that she has already been accepted at Simmons College—with a scholarship! Although she says she wants to drive a fire engine, we know (inside dope) that her first, last, and only (?) love is nursing.

Entered 4 from Wellesley High.



LOUISE LEHNER

Lou's ambition, a rather unusual one, is to be an interior decorator. Right now, though, she lists English as her favorite subject and sleeping as her pastime. Maybe she's conserving her energy for an exhausting study of that subject at Junior College, which she plans to attend after graduation. Incidentally, she says that her serious thought is "Thank goodness, I graduated in four years."

Archery 2; Tennis 2, 3; Golf 3; Swimming 2; Girls' League 2, 3, 4.

ELIZABETH A. LEONARD

Betty's ambition is to become a private secretary; to help gain that end she intends to go to business school after graduating from B.H.S. When not spending her time dancing, sleeping, or eating, her pet passion, marshmallow sundaes keep her rather busy. She is not alone in considering Chemistry as her chief failing.

Basketball 1; Hockey 1; Girls' League 1, 2, 4; Glee Club 1.

ALAN J. LEVENSON

Mr. 6 x 4 or, more popularly, just plain "Filibuster", spends most of his time at Ivy's Variety Store. Such an attraction. "Ulp", says Al, when asked what his favorite organization is. We'd tell you what Ulp means but it'd only lead to bloodshed. Al wants to be a politician (such magnitude) but until he's of age he'll go hunting Japs.

JANICE LEVENTALL

Fond of people in general and (ed. note) men in particular—Janice has passionately hated, for four years, the mistakes that our lunchroom calls sandwiches. Incidentally, if any of you care looking for a best friend, Janice has the necessary qualification . . . she lists as her main personal characteristic, keeping her friends' confidences to herself.

DVARA-LEE LEVIN

All you people who don't wear size 9 had better keep away from "Dev" for we're not sure just how suppressed she can keep her desire to punch plump people. Don't be too worried about it though; if she isn't writing to Bill, she's walking in town with Marilyn.

JANICE R. LEVIN

Jan says that her outstanding accomplishment is yet to come. We would advise her to learn to cook if she ever wants to become a successful dietician. Her chief failing is punctuating correctly. She, should talk? (That doesn't look right, does it!)

CECILE D. LEVINE

Cissy is the best-natured kid of all times. By now quite famous for her "Baby Face" (aw, please, Cis, we don't mean any harm), Cissy is an ardent Macbeth fan. She can change her mood at the snap of a finger, but she's always laughing. If you want to have a good time, try being with Cis.

NORMA M. LEVINE

Black-haired, brown-eyed, and the proud possessor of two beautiful dimples—"Norm" definitely fits into the Brookline scheme of things. Although she has only been at B.H.S. for one year, she has done a good job on the Sagamore. What's more important is that Norm manages to keep her name on the honor roll.

French Club 4; Girls' League 4; Sagamore Reporter 4.

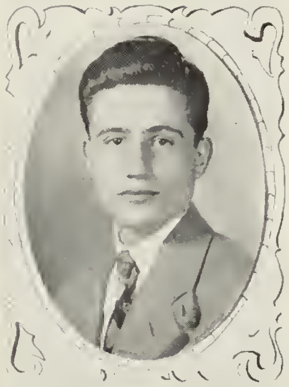
Entered 4 from J. E. Burke School, Dorchester.



ALBERT LEVY

"Moe" wants to discover how to pass cooking and learn English. Without these accomplishments however, "Moe" makes easy money. How? — matching coins. That illustrious member of the Hobos' Society spends his spare time wrecking cars and trying to carry a tune.

Orchestra 3; Stamp Club 3; Camera Club 3; Bank Teller 3, 4; French Club 3.

ELEANORE JUNE LEWENBERG

Ellie is so very fond of B.H.S. that she's been commuting from Newton for the last year and a half. Newton High doesn't know what it's missed as El's fine record would be a credit to any school, even if she is always trying to act wise and acting otherwise.

GERALD LEWIS

"Riggie Mortis," the bulb snatcher, aspires to fly like superman. Outstanding accomplishment . . . passing Chemistry, his favorite subject. G. L. has two serious thoughts. First, how to win friends and influence people, secondly to shave Hitler's moustache. Horseback riding and scorning corny jokes take up most of his time.

PETER G. LIACOPULOS

Pete's future plans to join the Marine Corps jar harshly with his ambition—college and a peaceful life. Only after one, can the other be possible, as he realizes. He shares with most, if not all, of B.H.S.'s students, his pet peeve, Monday mornings, and his interests, music and sports.

Basketball 1, 2; Baseball 1; Marshal 1, 2, 3, 4; Sagamore Treas. 3.

CAROLYN L. LINDNER

Did you ever see blond hair (à la Lake) around? That's Cal. She not only acts (Stage Door) but knits, too. She claims the Boston Symphony to be her favorite organization, but as her outstanding accomplishment . . . she's graduating? She idolizes a certain Mr. Merrill, and after leaving ol' B.H.S., she marches on to bigger things.

RUTH C. LINSKY

To make all her dreams come true is Ruth's outstanding ambition, and among those dreams comes the thought of living on an island. Her interests are horse-back riding, dancing, and people; not to mention the U.S. Army Air Corps. She spends her spare time writing letters and admiring Katherine Hepburn.

BARBARA CAROL LIPSITZ

Betty, but not Elizabeth, and more often Claudia (you guess why) is the witty member of the Murivian Committee. Blame the candid captions on her. Bet spends most of her time in 239, or eating spearmint leaves with Ruthie D. At college she'll devote her time to becoming a good wife and mother. However, we predict a more brilliant future.

ARNOLD LITVIN

Having been a member of Roberts House, Room 420, for 4 long years, Arnold's serious thoughts lean toward the financing, erecting, and dedicating of an elevator which will run from the cage to the "penthouse." A natural suggestion, Arnold, but not very original!

FRANK M. LOEWENBERG

Frank, the school authority on Parliamentary Procedure and Constitutional Law, can usually be found in the Sagamore Room, if he isn't in six or seven other places. His interest in everything under the sun has led him to join many extra-curricular activities, yet Frank still feels badly about all he might have done in four years . . . (when?).

EMELIE M. LONGMOORE

Lee, who wonders what Brookline High is going to do without us seniors, thinks the senior-looking freshmen, and vice-versa are really amusing. As to filling her out-of-school hours, "Sis" revels in sailing at the Cape during the summer months; however, she enjoys knitting and reading, too.

Here's Ginger, Mr. Totman's swell secretary, with those laughing eyes, bringing a honey of a quotation—"The optimist sees the doughnut, the pessimist the hole." Besides her heavy secretarial duties, Marion has been your Murivian staff's secretary and thereby carried an extra heavy load on her shoulders. Hats off to a swell "Bug"ology fiend.

Jerry, or if you wish, "Mugsie" or "Peaches", lists as his one serious thought, that he get as much college as possible before going into the Army. His ambition, if fulfilled, is to get out of B.H.S. in four years and then to attend B.U. Business School, where possibly his personality, which he calls "impressive" will be of great use.

GRACE LOUISE MacDONALD

Like all residents of the "pent house", Grace dislikes trying to reach there by 8:29; heretofore she has been successful but would feel far safer if a ski-tow was installed. Ga-Ga's interest at present is school—it has to be—and for the future she looks to Junior College and then success.

FRANCIS MacGILLIVRAY

"Butch" is the guy whose pet passion is a great big meal. Perhaps that is an inner motive for his saying that his main physical characteristic is his waistline. Sports are his No. 1 pastime and by the looks of things, that guy's all-out for basketball, the sport in which he's best.

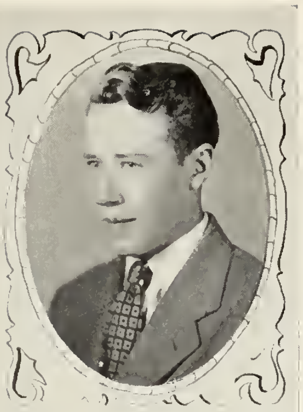
LUCILLE I. MAGNER

Lucille is resplendent in the unique nickname "Twink". She is not so unique in her high regard for Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra and the Marines. Lucille has a suppressed desire shared by many. It is to learn to Rhumba. After she leaves this hallowed spot, Lucille hopes to be a proud member of Boston University.

ROBERT C. MAHONEY

Bob's ambition is to type sixty words a minute. His favorite subject is typewriting and that's probably why. He's mainly interested in sports; his pastime is basketball, his favorite hangout is the gym and who knows but what we have in "Bob" a future sports writer, in which capacity he could combine both typing and sports.

Baseball 1; Basketball 1, 2, 3, 4.



JOSEPH MAHONEY

Joe can't wait to get out of school so that he can join the Navy. However, he seems to feel that he would be just as happy at Vassar, if the Navy won't take him. Thus far in life, his accomplishment is playing at a Tech Tournament. Congratulations, Ol' Boy!

James, "Big Jim", or just plain "Big Professor", besides being a member of Geller's Gestapo, has gone through 18 years of his natural span without making any enemies (wonder boy—or maybe it's just wishful thinking.) Talking, St. Clair's, and any and all form of athletics leave him limp—yeh, like a rag.

JULIAN MALKIEL

Meet one of B.H.S.'s outstanding representatives from the field of music known as jazz, Julian Malkeil. Do not think that Julie is solely interested in hot jazz, for nothing could be farther from the truth. The home life of a clam, opening his locker without a key, and bright, but precocious children, are all matters to which the versatile Mr. Malkeil has given much time, thought, and indeed, precious energy.

Girls' League 1, 2, 4; Foods Club 4.

PRISCILLA CARTER MARCH

This cute little red head tells us that outside of forgetting her house key, and the large number of catty girls, she is quite satisfied with her lot. "I am the master of my fate, the Captain of my soul," is oft' heard from "Pris", "Prissy", or "Pritzy".

PAULINE MARCUS

According to Pauly there's no place like Girls' Latin School. Is that bad??? Buying bonds, keeping up the morale (you guess how) and worrying about the current world situation make Pauline a pretty democratic lassie. She loves to dance,—jitterbug stuff—and she thinks that the most amusing thing at B.H.S is —B.H.S.

Girls' League 3, 4; English Club 4; Science Club 4.

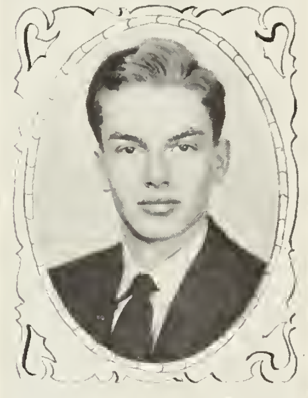
EDWARD L. MARGOLIES

"Cab Calloway", or more familiarly, just plain "Muggsy" is, in his own words, terrific—"thas all brother". He has a peculiar fondness for pegged pants à la Rochester, hot jazz, the Savoy, and the Girl Scouts. Although he twiddles his thumbs, he insists he cannot make his fingers crack!

Spanish Club 4; Debating Soc. 4; Boys' Club 4.



MYRON MARKELL

An ardent Dramatic Society supporter, Mickey's talents don't end with his Thespian ability, physics marks, dimples, or wink. He can tickle the keys and make them give forth jazz, hot enough to please the jivin'est hep-cat, or, on the floor, he can really show them how. And say . . . the way he does a stem-christiana on the fifth turn of the Nose Dive is Terrific!

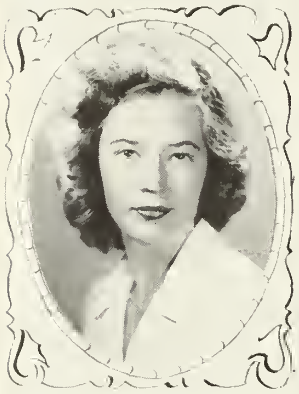
THERESA C. MARTELL

Tiny Terry is a great Navy fiend. She keeps every interest in it, knows all about its men, and intends to be one of their very "bestest" nurses. Dancing, popular music, trying to grow to 5′ 3″ and Chemistry keep her hands full 'till that long-awaited day of Graduation comes.

Tennis 1; Badminton 1.

GLADYS MATHEWS

Although Gladys left B.H.S. a while back, we remember her as a skating fan. Music . . . all kinds, jazz and otherwise . . . are popular with her. Although averse to school, she is definitely pleased by California, skiing, and dancing. Seems she wants to be a secretary someday.



DOROTHY R. McCARTHY

"Ah! to be a secretary and sit on the boss's knee." Dot certainly has a remarkable ambition—or is it? She likes to roller skate and listen to M. Sawin's heartbeat, and when it comes to skipping school without being caught she's an expert. Raising holy cain and typewriting occupy most of her time.

Girls League 1, 2, 4; Lost and Found 4.

EDITH MAE McCAULEY

This unusual looking lass who boasts of two eyes, ears, arms, and legs as her main physical characteristics, spends her time looking out for "Zeke" Madden to do her Chemistry. Watch out all you kids who elected "Mac" to the library staff, for she's on the look-out for you.

Field Hockey 2, 3.

WILLIAM N. McCONNELL

Anytime you're around Priscilla Alden, just drop in and Mac will take care of you (from the rugs on the floor to the pictures on the walls). Bill really likes the Navy and he hopes to make a career of it. And in our opinion we think you can watch for a D.S.C. on Mr. 5 by 6's chest any day now—Hey Mac!

"Pooche"—you know, that phenomenon who boasts eleven years perfect attendance—blithely trips over Margaret Jean to counsel us: "Suzie, watch your weight". On the serious side of things, "Mac" favors Economics, Typing, Mr. Totman, and Miss Berriman. Incidentally, "Pooche's" suppressed desire is to be a street car conductor. You, kid!

Her chief failings are History, English, and reducing—poor Phil, she's got "fat troubles". To take her mind off her troubles and to satisfy her aesthetic tastes, Tubby listens to Boogie-Woogie music.

Girls' League 3, 4; Senior Adviser 4. Entered 3 from St. Aidans School.

RALPH MELLEN

Ralph has had two years of English with Mr. Williams, and he's still alive and kicking. He never has any serious thoughts—doesn't believe in being serious. He does spend a lot of time thinking about the Marine Corps, though. Ralph doesn't think much of "those big, strong, Jr. Commandos."

Perhaps that's the result of watching hungry Mr. Bates eat his own and everybody else's lunch, four times a day. Overawed by the prospect of college next year, "Mendy" will make sure that she never has to get up at 7:30 A.M.

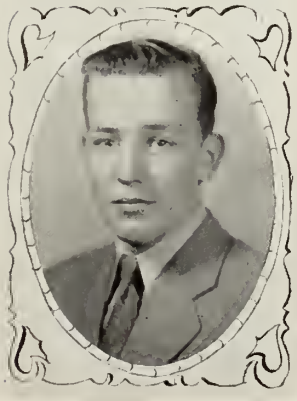
CORRINE MERRITT

Conny, who has very definite artistic ability, was, before she left school, a valuable member of the Murivian Art Committee. Easily distinguished from "the madding crowd" by her distinctive lock of white hair, she will, we are sure, be a success in her chosen field.



WILBUR B. MERRIT

"Two-legged Dears", the Y.W.C.A., the Franklin Square House, and Mr. Wells (where does he fit in) take up most of little Willy's time. Some of his spare moments, however, are spent in deriding 4th lunch. Poor Willy! His chief failing's failing.

DORIS PHYLLIS MILLER

Doris is an all-round gal who's headed for Syracuse University in the very near future. Her ambition is to fly (like a bird or in a plane, Doris?) and her pet passions are convertibles — preferably black, so perhaps she can put them together and make something out of them —wot?

JAMES F. MILLER

Although Jim's favorite quotation is "No homework tonight", when he joins the Navy "there'll be some changes made." Bowling, skating at the Co-ed rink, and listening to the 920 Club, and in particular, Gene Krupa, are his dish —and the antics of the Bruins particularly delight him. All you stuck-up girls better watch out when he walks by in his Navy uniform.

ADOLF F. MONOSSON

Taking pictures is Sonny's meat. Look at the Candids and see how well he's done. He wants to be a second Einstein —he's got a long way to go. In his evil moments Sonny thinks he'd like to give a gym workout to Freshman. Such cruelty.

CONSTANCE L. MOORE

"I thought I'd have a cat fit"—that's what Connie says when her pen runs out of ink. Seems to us we've heard those words before. Maybe from a sailor? Connie is the proud possessor of the Moore nose—added attraction. Taking iron pills and being a cheer leader are full-time jobs, she thinks.

MARILYN RUTH MORRILL

Witty and clever Marilyn, although admitting to an incurable procrastination, has never the less managed to get her studying done on time . . . as those honor marks prove. She's chiefly remembered by the school at large for her numerous roles in Dramatic Society productions, but her friends prefer to cherish her excruciatingly funny and impromptu characterizations.

MARGARET JEAN MORRISON

Sports in general, hockey in particular, are tops with "Lefty". French with Miss O'Brien also enters the picture as a favorite. But when it comes to Victor Mature and being called "Red"—thumbs down. Although her pastime should be writing letters, Peg spends it weighing the pros and cons of Katherine Gibbs and Lasell Junior College.

ROBERT ALEXANDER MORRISON

Bob, former mercury-like messenger of Mr. Totman, is still amazed at the American system of education. In some way or other he just can't get used to it after his long years with the English system, and that isn't the only thing either, for he still speaks, not American, but a heavily-accented English.

Boys' Club 1, 2, 3, 4.

CLAIRE MULLIN

Claire wants to be a success, and from all appearances Spanish might have something to do with it. Although she says her chief failing is getting to places on time, right now she has her eye on college (and Fred Astaire). In the meantime, "Have a cookie, Jeanne?"

HELEN MURPHY

We hope that "Dutchie" Murphy will always have success tagging after her, or if her own type of shorthand is as good as Gregg's and Pitman's, she can't miss. Mr. Ehnes, as her idol, has probably given her the desire to work and also to attain a speed of 175 in dictation.

Swimming 3; Girls' League 1, 2; Sagamore Bkpr 3, 4; Stockroom Bkpr 3.

WALTER A. MURPHY

"Murph's" ambition is to be a second Byron Nelson, and he seems to be on the right road having finished a five-year course in four years. He spends his study periods thinking about his favorite sport, hockey, and dreaming of playing a teacher's team. Are you kidding, "Scrogger"?

Hockey 2, 3, 4; Golf 2, 3, Co-Capt. 4, Champion 2, 3, 4; German Club 3; H. R. V. Chm. 4.

ROBERT W. MURRAY

Bob, whose chief failing is science, hopes to go to college when he graduates. That is, of course, if the army has no other plans for him. Though Bob's pet peeve is people who expect others to do their homework for them, we're sure that he's done it more than once.

Marshal 2, 3; Glee Club 1, 2, 3, 4; French Club 3; Red Cross Rep. 2; Kaarina 2.

ANNE MYERSON

Warm-hearted Anne "loves the world". With a sincere interest in everything and everybody about her, she's a friend to all. Anne's most favorite organization is Harvard University. There's no connection, of course, between that and the fact that she hasn't outgrown her favorite pastime—playin' "jacks".

IRENE MYERSON

Though she isn't sure who her idol is, there's no doubt in Irene's mind that her favorite subject is art. Between knitting, tennis, skating, and swimming she manages to keep herself quite busy, Her pet passion is dancing, which shows what an energetic lass she is. Irene hopes to enter Massachusetts Art School after graduation.

ARLINE NAAR

Arline, who for some unaccountable reason is usually called Jane, is numbered among those ardent followers of "The Duke", a number that is legion. If there is anything about Mr. Ellington, Mr. Saroyan, or Johnny Hodges you would like to find out, look up Miss Naar and learn the answers. Arline has not neglected the sports at B.H.S., and has excelled in swimming and archery. She has not yet decided her future plans.

Basketball 1, 2, 3; Swimming 1; Archery 1, 2, 3; French Club 3; English Club 4; Science Club 4; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4.

JANE R. NAAR

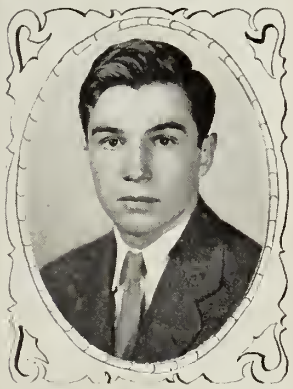
Although Jane has been in America for a good number of years, she hasn't lost her English accent. And if you were to drop in on Jane at an odd moment, you would probably find her listening to Winston Churchill on short wave. Jane's great likes are psychology and England. And we hope, along with her that some day she can go back home.

Tennis 3; Swimming 1; Basketball 1; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, Rep. 4; English Club 3.

DAVID NADEL

One who has it in for Commando Training, is Dave, who hopes to enter the Army Air Corps. Dave wants to fly because his chief failing is speed. He'll even take a horse. Dave's pet peeve is the girls who persist in using the classes as beauty parlors.

Boys' Club 1, 2, 3; Science Club 1; Library Staff 1, 2.



JOHN W. NASON, JR.

"John" would like above all to see B.H.S. beat Newton 20-0 and then to become a teacher-coach. He warns all potential football players that running three laps after practice is really tough. "Cowboy's" serious thought is to be able to get a crack at the Axis as a Marine Paratrooper.

DAVID NEWMAN

A trumpeter of no mean ability is David "Zeke" Newman, the gentleman you see before you. Dave shares his dislikes of French and Ickes with remarkable impartiality. In addition to music, Dave is interested in newspaper work; so when in future years you look in your daily paper and see Dave's name at the end of the dispatch you can say, "I knew him when!"

Basketball 1; Boys' Club 2.

PHYLLIS J. NEWMAN

Phyllis is a very mild young lady, but she does get boiling mad when someone says, "Oh dear, I got a B in Chemistry." Phyl's particular fondness is for the U.S. Army. At the moment, she's making no definite plans for the future, as she believes that it is best these days to live only for the present.

Golf 1; Field Hockey 2, 3; Glee Club 1, 2; Girls' League 1, 2, 3.

FRANCIS NORTON

Handsome Francis likes girls in general, although his pet peeve is red-heads with freckles. Right now the United States Marine Corps is going to be honored by his presence. Incidentally his favorite organization is the Brookline Theatre. How about a raise for him, Sam?

BERNICE NOVICK

Here's one girl who won't stray—Bunny's going to stick to "Home Sweet Home." She can't understand why people don't find humor in her "wit". Here's an example—she wants to "watch a mountain peak to see a salad dressing. Gruesome, eh wot. Jimmy Dorsey and Brahms (from good to better) and the Marines have high ratings with her.

MARGUERITE NOWELL

Marge hates to get up in the morning, loves eating, wants to own 500 records, is interested in a "devil-Dog" and is quite normal in all other respects. She has offered much food for thought in her favorite quotation "Quiet men often surprise us." Patriotically enough, Marge wants to get a defense job, and is preparing for it in the M.T. building.

Tennis 1; Swimming 1, 2; Camera Club 3; Girls' League 3.

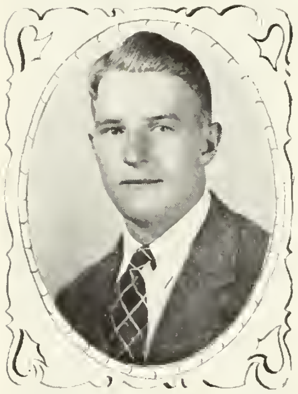
Stretch, or Big David, lives for only one thing, to take the "nip" out of the Niponese as a U.S. Marine. Another typical lunchroom sufferer, his favorite quotation is "neither a borrowerer nor a lender be" and to this he appends a note—lunch-room workers, take note. (Could it be you?)

ETHEL CASEY

Although, after four years, Ethel can't understand how teachers mark, she still considers mark-day the most amusing thing about B.H.S. This young lady, whose ambition is to do the tango on roller skates, hopes to become a telephone operator. Just remember, Ethel, after graduation don't get your wires crossed!



DENNIS J. O'LEARY

Although Denny likes women, generally speaking he detests those who won't take no for an answer. He thinks five years and not caught skipping once is quite an accomplishment—if he only knew! Between beating the 8:30 bell and waiting for 1:30 to roll along, Paratrooper Denny queries "Who drove the mail through Bloody Gulch?"

JOHN F. O'LEARY

John likes mechanical drawing so much that he does special jobs for Mr. Woodlock. Johnny's an easy going lad except when it comes to thinking about the Japs, and then he just boils. A member of Mr. Bemis' Commandos, he is getting himself physically fit for the big job that lies ahead.

MORTON OLIN

"They say I smile pretty" says Mort with a blush. Oh well, don't let us discourage you — go on grinning. The Marines and the Sagamore room run close seconds to his main interest—himself. It really gripes him when he has to put down Civic as his curriculum when he's taken all C.P. subjects—and we don't blame him.

R. JOY ORENBERG

English Club, French Club, German Club—evidently Joy has a liking for languages. She wants to join the Waves—to see the sea and then the world. Her baby brother, chocolate candy, the U.S.O., Henry Kaiser, and Mme. Curie, take first place with French a close second. U.S. History doesn't even rate.

SHIRLEY RUTH ORENBERG

The "Lone-Star" State's contribution to B.H.S. is Shirley Orenberg, who has the cutest southern accent. Shirley is a devoted fried-chicken fan. (Who isn't?) Favorite organization of Shirley's is the Texas Rangers, our version of the Commandos. Shirley's fondest hope is that some day she will be a concert singer.

English Club 4; Girls' League 4; Dramatic Soc. 4; Glee Club 4; Girls' Vocal Ensemble 4.

ANNA L. ORLICK

If Anna doesn't finish knitting her sweater by next winter, it's probably because she was too busy talking on the telephone or writing letters. Anna doesn't like people who don't keep their promises, but it's because of the Army . . . well, that's another story.

BETTY ANN ORLOV

The write-up Editor of the Murivian Staff has her lighter moments too. Although she says she's fascinated by the Yale Record "How-To-Avoid-The-Draft-And-Stay-Healthy" Association, it's a well-known fact that this Clare Luce fan has a more ardent interest in M.I.T. Aside from psychology or what makes people tick, B.A.O. likes History, Politics, and Government. She's the "studious" type—now what'll we play?

LEONARD OSTROW

Lenny secretly longs for a big desk to put his big feet on, but if his future plans (to wear khaki) comes true, it will be a long time before he will get anywhere near a desk, much less a big one. The mysterious type, he lists as his pastime only one word: Hummmmmm!

GERALDINE PALASTRANT

Gerry, the gal with the nice profile and the nicer hair, has some very definite likes and dislikes. Filling the former are Lloyd Nolan, Rhapsody in Blue, Spanish, and Art. Convention, Math, and Guy Lombardo (oh, that man) are heartily disliked by her.

Girls' League 3, 4; Poster Club 3, 4.

Entered 3 from Jeremiah E. Burke High School, Roxbury.

MARY ELIZABETH PARK

Books, music, and tennis are what interest "May", who someday hopes to be a secretary to Wendell L. Wilkie. We would seriously advise "May" to consult her future beaus before she makes any drastic attempt to dye her hair a very brilliant, flowing red. Diplomacy, you know.

LEROY E. PARKINS

Four years ago one of the leaders in the Lincoln House section of B.H.S. was a pale beruffled fellow with definite business tendencies. Leroy's outstanding accomplishment since then has been his ability to grow out of a whiffle in only two years. When he is graduated, B.H.S. will have lost one of its outstanding swing authorities as well as one of its chief humorists.

NANCY PEABODY

Nance's ambition in life is to go places and do things. She can't do otherwise—let her record speak for itself. The D.Y.W.Y.K.A. is a favorite of her's (we don't know what it is either, but it's a bit lengthy for the Washington alphabet). Nancy quotes: "To be was not to be or why didn't we get together?"

CHARLES PESKIN

Apparently "Pisky Chink" thinks rather a lot of Bill Jacobs, although he says his pastime is listening to Bill Jacobs complain, and otherwise. Hats off to all the men teachers C.P. has ever had, for his ideal is a combination of them. Beware of this suspicious character with uncontrolable hair . . . he simply can't do a thing with it!

J. V. Baseball 4; Tennis Tournament 3.

ERVING S. PFAU

Someday he hopes to be called "Doctor", but now he's known as "Foo". Anyone wandering into Rm. 335 after school will be sure to find him peering intently down a microscope or else working on some animal life with awesome, polysyllabic names. If it's about anatomy, physiology, or bacteriology, ask "Foo".

AUDREY JANE PINKSOHN

"Pinky" would like to live a life of ease without being tossed around. She likes good music for which we can't say we blame her. Her favorite organization is MAN (Marines, Army, Navy) Wow! Her idol is her father, 'cause he's never "idle". Oh, murder!

Tennis 1, 2; Archery 2, 3; Red Cross Rep. 1; Girls' League 1.

ARLINE S. PIRCH

Arline, whose thoughts range from the mundane to the sublime, i.e. her pet passion Brigham's sundaes to her pet peeve, insincerity, hopes to travel after achieving success. Whether her favorite subject is psychology or physiology we don't know but we wish it were spelling (viz. favorite—physicology).

Tennis 1, 2; Archery 3; Basketball 3; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4.

SUSANNE PISKO

"We couldn't get along without her. How would we get our homework done?" Add to that much affection and you have the sentiments of Susi's home room. Always willing to help, always able to help, impulsive Sue's done what most of us can't do, though English is our native tongue . . . received an A from her idol, Mr. Williams.

CHARLOTTE NATALIE POORVU

Although "Nat" likes most of the specimens of the "brute sex," she confesses a violent dislike for egotistical men. In fact, she barely tolerates them. In her opinion though, her mother and father could serve as the models for any "ideal mother and dad" combination.

Tennis 1, 2; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Science Club 4; Sec. to Miss Sawyer 4.

PETER POWERS

Pete looks forward to seeing a soldier in a Zoot uniform. Too bad he wasn't around when an M.P. picked one up this past winter. Pete Power's pet peeve pertains primarily to slacks walking down Beacon St. . . . with girls in them. He is noted for a conspicuous mole on his left tonsil.

Library Staff 2, 3, 4; Bank Teller 1, 2, Messenger 3; Band 2; Red Cross Rep. 5; Boys' Club Sec. 1.

RITA G. PRIMACK

"Reet" doesn't like zoot suits, and since she is anxious to do the right thing at the right time, we ought to give her a gun and let her do it. She says that her pastime is not studying and yet her outstanding accomplishment is graduating in four years—I wonder how she does it!

Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Library Staff 2, 3.

JUNE MARION PRINCE

Someone ought to write "Princie" that she'll never catch up to her kid sister if she's going to stand on her head procrastinating. Send her some nice red paint, too, for the day that meek little June lets herself go. "After all," she says, "you only live once."

Swimming 4; Girls' League 3, 4; Debating Society 3, 4; Dramatic Soc. 4.

Entered 3 from Somerville High School.

HENRIETTA L. PULASKI

"Hank" is just nuts about dancing. She also likes swimming and music, but not Monday mornings. A bit of a globe trotter on the side, she looks forward to traveling to South America. Her perpetual smile and "jolly" nature mark her as a "Reg'lar Feller".

ARTHUR QUINZANI

Art is well known to all members of Lincoln House (and Roberts, too) for his quiet sense of humor which is sincerely appreciated if one is to judge by his popularity record. Characterized by a whiffle, Art was most successful in freshman and sophomore football. Unfortunately, however, his enjoyment of it (actively, at least) was terminated by a head injury.

GLORIA M. RACHLIN

This young lady really has the right outlook on life. Although planning to be a secretary, Gloria knows "that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" and takes great interest in popular records and movies. Gloria has suggested the quaint idea of assigning homework to the teacher. That will be the day!

Tennis 1, 2; Chandler Civics Prize 1; Girls' League Rep. 1, 2, 3, 4.

JANICE P. RADKAY

Janice indicates that she fulfills all the requirements for membership in our own generation by her great interest in swing and dancing, and by her refusal to have a serious thought. Janice lists as her outstanding accomplishment the fact that she beats the 8:30 bell every morning but we feel sure that she is just being modest.

Marilyn, or "Mal" as she likes to be called, has a flare for the unusual and funny. She would like to teach her teachers for one day, wants to give a blood curdling yell during a shorthand test, and claims to pass time painting stockings on her father's wooden leg. Possessing a keen wit, Marilyn is a very popular young lady.

M. WHITMAN RAY, JR.

Easy going Whit is a man who does not approve of wasting time in school. Whit would be in heaven if he could meet Adolph face to face. We want to know by what stretch of the imagination anyone could meet Der Führer in heaven.

RUTH ELAINE REINER

Ruthie, whose heart is true to the Navy (an ensign to be specific) hopes to become a medical technologist eventually. She aspires to attend Barnard to prepare for her future work, but right now she's more concerned about sitting home on Saturday nights.

Golf 3; Science Club 4; Girls' League 3, 4.

LEON REITMAN

Leon must have a sweet soul—he insists he has a good character. But he also has a bitter one—for he says, "What fools these mortals be." When he's not trying to type 85 words a minute or get a C in Eng. Comp. he's trying to get rich mighty fast, which, after all, isn't a bad way to spend one's time, n'est-ce pas?

ADRIENNE REYNOLDS

"Tooty's" interests lean toward sailboats, horses, and more especially the Red Sox, even if they can't get that pennant. She hopes to attend Standford and then travel all over the world . . . quite a large ambition for a little girl who would like to be 5′ 6″ more than anything else.

If you ask Elliot what his main ambition is, quicker than a wink the answer comes back . . . "to play football for Brown University." Elliot's glib tongue wins many an argument for him, but when it comes to Math it's that reliable gray matter that carries him successfully through the most difficult theorems. After graduating, he hopes to go to college.

Although Marjorie takes clerical subjects, she is definitely not an indoor girl, as her interests in sailing, riding, and ice skating attests. Marjorie's many friends will tell you about her swell personality, spiced by her sense of humor. Right now Marge's idol is Harry James.

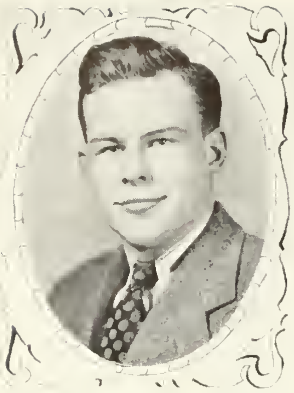
GEORGE WARREN ROBINSON

George, an ardent swing fan, knows all the ins and outs of modern jazz, and plays a mean solo himself. As can be seen from his activity list the Boys' Club is tops with him, for he boasts a four year membership in that organization.

Boys' Club 1, 2, 3, 4; Track 4; Camera Club 1.

JAMES E. ROCHE

One of B.H.S.'s Hep cats is Jim E. Roche. (Nothing but the "Duke" if you please.) Of course you can't tell by looking at his picture, but Jim really has a shock of flaming red hair. Jim has been thoroughly indoctrinated in Mr. Bemis' Commando course which he enjoys despite all the difficulties it entails. Jim tells us that he is army bound.



GEORGE ROCHFORT, JR.

Likeable George "Rocky" Rochfort supports our school teams actively as he's on the football, baseball and basketball teams. George is active in that fine organization, the Sea Scouts. He's the object of much envy as the proud possessor of a car. Rocky'd like to be a second mate on a tanker.

WILLIAM L. ROFES

"Women, women, them wonderful beings." Although Billy has a passion for the fairer(?) sex he does take time out to work on his stamp collection. Billy's really an exceptional lad—he manages to squeeze twelve hours sleep into 3. If he suddenly collapses in the middle of a conversation, you'll know why!

GLORIA R. ROGERS

Meet Gloria "Ginger" Rogers, one of the most popular young ladies of Lincoln House. One very good reason for Gloria's popularity is the go-getter quality in her personality. Her interest is a certain Ensign, chalk it up for the Navy. Gloria has participated in many athletic extra-curricular activities.

JANE ROSEN

Here we have Jane, a newcomer to the school from Buffalo. This sweet girl's pet peeve is conceited people, and we heartily agree. We gather that she dislikes homework next to them, for her suppressed desire is to walk home and throw all her books in the nearest field.

BEVERLY ROSENBERG

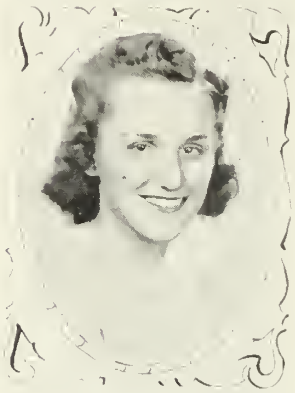
Bev, or "Cookie", as she is known to her civic curriculum comrades, has the same ambition as most of us—to know more than the teachers. Blackouts are her pet passion; maybe because of "C. W." huh? She has two main interests; one, to repay her mother; and two, Georgia Tech.

Girls' League 3, 4.

Entered 1941 from Newton High.

BERNARD ROSS

Bernie, who left school about a month ago, is by now, no doubt, engaged in war work, if he has not already enlisted in some branch of the armed services for which he is especially qualified. Those who knew him remember him as a swell fellow.



MARY ELIZABETH ROSS

Patriotic Mary wants to be a lab technician for Uncle Sam. Her record at the High School has been nothing short of outstanding, and her efforts on the pep club and as a cheer leader have done much for the B.H.S. spirit . . . something which is sadly lacking. Mary's all around nature have made her one of B.H.S.'s best-liked girls.

John is doing nothing about his future, because just now it's all in the hands of the draft board. However, he's preparing for his post-war life by dabbling in law whenever he has a spare moment. To keep him in training, John is an active member of the Debating Society, which training will doubtless help him in his career.

MANUEL JACK ROTTENBERG

Manny is one of B.H.S.'s outstanding male physical specimens, standing 6′ 2″ and weighing 170 lbs. But withal he is really a gentle soul with a very humorous nature. Interested in skiing, Manny hopes someday to outski Mr. Bemis. He plans to go to Pre-Med unless the Army says nix.

Basketball Team 2; Track Team 3; Auxiliary Police 3, 4; Science Club 4.

MARY E. ROZON

Whether it's on land, on sea, or in the air, "Red's" never out of place, for she is not only an accomplished swimmer and tennis player, but has recently learned the manly art of skiing (her skill in the air.) In addition to being a star athlete, "Red" is also one of the outstanding humorists of the class.

Field Hockey 2; Girls' League 2, 3, 4; Glee Club 1.

DAVID RUBIN

Here we have "Brooklyn", a future journalist, who thinks that U.S. History is just about tops. As a matter of fact, he's so fond of it that he's joining the Air Corps to make history for his children to study. At any rate, we're sure that Dave will be a success in whatever he may attempt.

Entered B.H.S. 4.

IRMA SHURLI RUBIN

The young lady with the bangs is Irma Rubin with a very lofty ambition for a girl . . . she hopes to go to M.I.T. Irma is a very talkative miss, but as she generally has something worthwhile to say, we forgive her. Irma enjoys speech and singing and has done very well at both.

LEONA RUBIN

Leona has one of the best singing voices in the High School and she wants to become a singer someday. "Lee" prefers light opera, and her favorite singer is Nelson Eddy. She's a rabid movie fan and is equally fond of Howard Johnson's organization. Her serious thought is one which we all consider—"When will the war be over?"

Girls' League 2; Lost and Found Rep. 5; Red Cross Rep. 5.

SYLVIA L. RUBINOFF

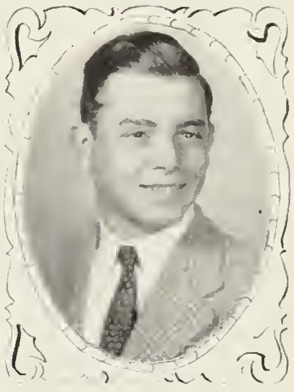
"That which is vital and so permanently characteristic" about Sylvia are her dimples; also her long eyelashes. Syl's favorite subject is chemistry but we think her interests run to less stern stuff. Syl's ambition is "college if they'll take me." We think they will.

Entered 4 from Portland High School.

BEVERLY C. RUDNICK

Beverly Rudnick is one of that great number of girls whose present interests are all "men". But do not think that Bev has no serious thoughts, for that is not the case. Bev. would like very much to become a nurse at Bellevue, which is no easy job. A good indication of her own character is her intense dislike of snobs.

Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Gee Club 1; Lost and Found Rep. 2.



EDWARD SHERMAN RUDNICK

One of the graduating class's most distinguished members is Eddie. He has done a great deal for the Science Club and, as you might guess, is greatly interested in all scientific subjects. Ed's popularity is due to two fine qualities in his personality—he is a very modest lad and also quite a humorist.

Football 1, 2; Baseball 1; Basketball 1.

ADELLE RUTSTEIN

"Blondie" has a real swell future ahead of her if she joins the WAACS, following junior college—that is, if she hasn't been heckled to death by her kid brother by then. What an education—she likes to read her sister's funny books!!

Girls' League 4.

Entered 4.

SHIRLEY G. SACKS

Sackie is one of those people who like to raise a little H-H-Hillarity (I fooled you). She is famous for her little remarks, injected into an otherwise healthy conversation. Leaving B.H.S. in the dust will cause her to walk on air. She's positively out of this world.

Tennis 1; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; English Club 4; Bank Teller 2, 3; Marshal 4; H. R. V. Chm. 4; Lincoln House Election Com. 4.

STANLEY S. SACKS

Stan has quite a sense of humor and absolutely no pet peeves; in short, he's just good-natured . . . even to his big feet, size 11. His time is divided between groping for an A in French and dreaming of girls. Although we don't know exactly what his pastime is, it certainly isn't homework.

Track 4; Boys' Club 1, 2, 3; Science Club 4; Debating Soc. 4.

ROBERT SAGANSKY

Bob's certainly an interesting person: he's just like Gable, (around the shoulders or the ears?) He's interested in his kid sister, sports, jazz records and the opposite sex. Bob says he is enraptured by Sid Furst's stories of adventure but that his failings would read like a Sears Roebuck Catalog.

LILLIAN SAGIK

We might call Lil Brookline's most ambitious girl, since her desire is to write her own dictionary. However, while waiting for an inspiration she will have to content herself with the problem of getting into the gym before the bell rings. She once thought that practice made perfect, but she's given up at last.

JANICE EVELYN SAKLAD

Jan is one of Lincoln House's very eminent members. She has to her credit thé noteworthy accomplishment of making Alpha Pi in her junior year. Although boasting an enviable scholastic record, Janice has not been content to be just a good student, but has excelled also in many extra-curricula activities.

MORTON B. SAMUELS

Mort is the "Mr. 5x5" who never knows his Chem. formulas — or his French idioms. Mr. Barnes' cowboy stories bore him, but not so the Marines, which is where he will probably be a year from now. The "Barbarian Days" interest him, maybe because of his suppressed desires.

ELEANOR M. SAUNDERS

Ellie, who managed to graduate in four years, is all out for success in a business career. Her interests lean toward sports, and definitely not pushing freshmen. Her main difficulties lie in beating the bell and keeping up with her sister, Jeanne. Incidentally Ellie says she has no serious thought whatsoever.

Golf 1; Basketball 1; Girls' League 4.

JEANNE I. SAUNDERS

The thought of the supposedly "natural" beauties of B.H.S. really makes Jeanne angry. Chemistry is rather to her liking, at least next to gossiping. According to Jeanne, she is inclined to be catty and moody, but at any rate, she accomplished successfully the feat of graduating in four years.

Girls' League 1, 2; Red Cross Rep. 1, 2.

JASON SAVAGE

Worrying about Dick Tracy had a stange effect on Jay, for instead of turning his hair gray, it formed hair on his chest—a truly noteworthy accomplishment. After he has done his part for Uncle Sam, he hopes to study radio engineering. Best of luck to you, Doc.

Entered 3 from Roxbury Memorial High School.

MARGUERITE SAWIN

Though Peg will have to curtail talking on the telephone for the duration of the war, she can still realize her ambition of becoming a successful secretary. Her suppressed desire is to see Brookline's football team make class A. Are you kidding Maggie?

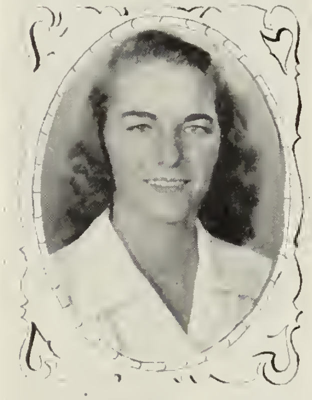
Horseback Riding 3; Girls' League 4; Girls' Auxiliary 4.

Entered 3 from Wacton High, N. Y.

HOPE S. SCHLOSBERG

Hopie, whose long, beautiful eyelashes definitely distinguish her from the other members of the class, dislikes people who say, "Your sister looks just like you." Is it because of that, that she wishes to travel? We don't know, but at present she seems quite busy with her homework (and her pet passion?).

Horseback Riding 4; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Spanish Club 4.



GOLDA SCHNARE

Golda, with the Dutch walk (she admits it, anyhow) seems to have a pretty well balanced mind. At the same time wanting to scream "murder" in a library, she is perfectly willing to admit crocheting and knitting are her favorite pastimes. Hey, will you knit us a sweater?

KENNETH B. SCHNEIER

That tall youth, with the curly hair is good old sociable Ken. We're glad of that sociable part, 'cause Kenny's big serious thought is . . . take a big breath now . . . marriage. He also wants terribly to be a happy-go-lucky guy. Will they tie up? You figure it out.

Red Cross Rep. 1; Banking 2, 4.

ALAN SCHULTZ

If you see a little half-pint walking up the aisle keeping his class mates laughing, you'll know it's "Dutchy". When not sitting in on bull session with Sid and Bob, exchanging all sorts of weird stories about weird things, he's working day and night to attain the heights his dad has.

Basketball Mgr. 3, 4; Bank Teller 4.

RUTH S. SCHULTZ

Between eating and analyzing people, Schultz keeps herself quite busy; consequently she never gets any further than worrying about her homework. Maybe if some of us try worrying like that, we too, can make the second honor roll. Poor Ruthie finds her most difficult job is to get up when the alarm goes off at 7 A.M.

Girls' League 1, 3.

SHIRLEY R. SEGAL

Glamor gal Shirl has perfectly scrumptious blonde hair and blue eyes . . . all the makings of a goddess. She has quite a constant "gift of gab", too and she wants to get ahead . . . but not ahead of herself. But, honestly, between eating, sleeping, and talking, she really has no time for her future. It's a great life, if you like it!

GERALD C. SEIDENBERG

This ardent admirer of Charles Atlas hangs out at St. Clair's and the Opera House. "Big Jerry" and bossy women don't mix (something like oil and water —huh?). Besides the WAAC Jerry likes selling shoes, History, and that "One Woman." Oh yes, he also likes bunnies.

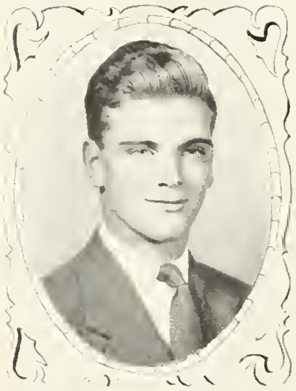
Baseball Mgr. 1; Boys' Club 3.



MARSHAL SEIDLER

Marshall seems to be on the ball in denouncing the B.H.S. theory: "They shall not pass." Although his pastime is studying, he stole a few minutes in which to present a new plan to the school committee, To wit: a four-week vacation every month. If he dood it, he git a whippin'.

CHARLES SHAPIRO

Charlie has been a good boy this year —he hasn't been thrown out of class once. The glamour boy of 422 wonders if he'll ever hear a voice asking him, "Pa, can I use the car?" Charlie isn't making any plans for the future . . . he's going to let Uncle Sam worry about that.

EILEEN SHAPIRO

Eileen is one girl who doesn't have far to go to realize her ambition . . . to have hair like Veronica Lake's. We guess that her pet passion, Glenn Miller's "Serenade in Blue", is the reason for Eileen's nails never being the same length. Understand it? Neither do we.

Basketball 1; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Poster Club 4.

JOANNE M. SHARAF

It's a toss-up for Joanny's pet peeve, Girls' Locker Room or second lunch. Did she ever have fourth lunch? Willing to do her bit for Uncle Sam if necessary, she asks nothing more than a peaceful future. The Ft. Devens Airport and history with Miss Nichols are both "tops" with "J".

Boys' Club 2, 3, 4.

Entered 2 from Solomon Lewenberg Junior High School.

JACK SHEPPARD JR.

Look out Alaska, here comes ski trooper "Shep" Sheppard. Having finally managed to graduate B.H.S., he informs us that his interest is definitely not school, in fact his favorite subject is taught in study period. BEVERLY SCHLAGER

Noted for a versatility in the dramatic field, especially for her rendition of Grannie in Anne of Green Gables, which won her top honors in the 1941 Prize Speaking Contest, superstitious Bev has put aside her theatrical ambitions for the duration and is going to concentrate on becoming "Waac" ky. Swimming 1; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4.

MARY CAROLYN SILVANO

Mary is a gal with so many interests and pastimes you can't count them, but we'll let you in on a few. Dancing and good food are her specialties while short men, haircuts, and marking periods are taboo in Mary's world. She idolizes Clare Boothe Luce and is going to try to equal her.

DAVID F. SKVIRSKY

"Dud" tries to keep an open mind on all questions, and likes to discuss Politics, along with the pros and cons of any subject. As is natural, his favorite subjects are History and Economics. The Poll Tax, gold diggers, and jitterbugs do not rate with him, but he likes dates—that don't grow on trees—(is there another kind?)

JAQUELINE SLATER

Here's Jackie with her curly locks, who just blew in from N.Y. She's wowed all our best men into teaching her math. Since we can see personally how that special "something" of hers wows 'em all, we can say with conviction that her ambition—to marry the boss's son—will be realized.

Entered 4 from New York.

CAROL PAGE SMITH

Carrot-topped and pretty as can be, Carol astonished all with the announcement that M.D. is going to follow her name. Though slightly hindered by her passion for cream convertibles with plaid linings, we know nothing, not even her all-out war against Super Suds and Gene Autry, will stop her.

RUTH I. SMITH

"Trudge, trudge, trudge, for five years now I've been climbing four flights of stairs." Ruth alias "Red", alias "Pakey", alias "Smithy" wants to join, of all the things, the F.B.I. Having her headquarters at H.J. on the river, "Carrot top" wants to live 'till 2000.

WILLIAM SMITH

Smithy's heart is torn between two great loves—golf and the Air Corps. The Air Corps will win for the present, but when he returns, he'll probably think nothing of the number 2 hole at the Municipal Golf Course. Don't give up, Bill, where there's a will, there's a way.

Hockey 2, 3, 4; Golf 1, 2, 3.

ELAINE L. SMITHERS

Date: 1963 "Cut—cut—that's awful, we'll do it over again." Yes, some day "Terry Smitherenes" will be a writer-director. Terry is a girl of many loves: the theatre, Sagamorous, dancing, reading, bicycling, swimming, and ice cream, ice cream and more ice cream. The wee freshmen toting immense brief cases give her the titters.

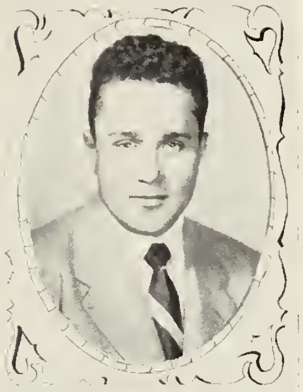
ELEANORE MARIE SMYRNIOS

Elly, or "Cupie", as those special few call her, is going to be an Air Hostess. She likes eating, sleeping, and dancing, and just generally having fun. She's not very different from the rest of us! Gosh, it seems everyone has a tough time with Chemistry, and who is Elly to be different in these times, we ask?

Field Hockey 4; Girls' League 4.



FRED THOMAS SMYTH

Big bruiser, Professor, with the curly hair is one of Lincoln House's foremost students . . . but why call him a student? His thoughts all run to the political side of life, and as he was President of Lincoln House in his junior year, we think that he's got an idea there.

EDWARD C. SNYDER

"Snipper" has a rather unique pastime—mowing lawns in the North End. Is he kidding? "Snip's" serious thought is getting a job, and to see J. Cox do his own homework (but the latter's surpressed). The Navy Air Corps and Harry James' music are tops together with "Mr. Five-by-Five", and U.S. History.

Ruthie, who loves tennis, has a bit of philosophy to pass on to future students —"Everyone can give pleasure in some way—one, by coming into a room; another, by going out." She's all-out for those U.S.O. dances, especially if she can meet Clark Gable at one of them.

HANNAH SOMMERSTEIN

Little, talkative Nan, who is having a hard time growing, refuses to be serious about anything—least of all studying on week-ends. Her very unsuppressed desire is to see Mr. Miller's hair parted on the side, a desire which can't be fulfilled for the duration. Can you wait, Hannah?

When you think of Eddie, you automatically think of his better half—"Master Syd". Each unto himself is a wit, but together—Murder! Versatile Eddie has made quite a name for himself in the dramatic realm. . . . Whenever you're feeling glum or even slightly depressed, just lend an ear to Eddie imitating a store keeper.

Dramatic Soc. 4. Winner, prize speaking 4.

Entered 4 from Roxbury Memorial High School.

ANDRÉ L. SPEYER

Like all good Frenchmen, Andy idolizes Charles de Gaulle; and just to show his interest in the war, he would like to join the WAAC. Andy's personality is definitely negative (whatever that is). Outside of school, Monsieur Speyer is interested in instrumental groups, namely, the Boston Symphony.

PETER P. SPOFFORD

If all you gals want to know who that very tall, blonde, and handsome-looking feller is, it's Pete. He wants to make favorable connections with a millionairess, but for the time being, he's got himself an interest in a blonde, height about 5' 5½". Other than that, he likes to spend his spare time hanging around Mr. Totman's office and parachute jumping. . . . (there?)

SAMUEL STEEN

"Oh, Sam, take my picture". The "fair-haired boy" of the candid camera section of our famed Yearbook, divides his time between his favorite organization, U.L.P. and Murivian meetings, at which he says he never gets a word in edgewise—bashful or just plain shy?

LOUIS LEON STERNBURG

Answering to "Lou", "Louie", "Freshman", or "Hey Bud", this lad with the baby blue eyes once received an A-A in English from Mrs. Harvey . . . for one month. He plans to go to college if he doesn't enter the Army Air Corps first. His pastime is creating situations. Hm-m-m.

MARION STONE

Marion is a rather quiet lass who just doesn't like to be mistaken for her older sister. Pet peeve, or no pet peeve, her sister has a darkroom—and that is where she (Marion) spends most of her time when she's not day dreaming, or exclaiming, "Somebody, help me with this homework!"

Golf 1; Glee Club 1; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Library Staff 4.

ALEX STRASHUN

Alex is that fascinating chap who's always tangled up in wires. He's chief electrician back stage and the important man when the lights go out. He also has interests in radio communication—even hopes to be a radio technician. You'll be hearing about him—so remember—you knew him when!

S. BERNICE STROCK

S. Bernice must be the typical American type of girl. She shows a bright interest in the Jones family—especially one of the Jones boys. When it comes to summer escorts for a swell time, she'll stick up her nose at Florida and the West and pick Old Orchard—is it a place of fond memories S. Bernice?

Archery 1, 2; Golf 1; Tennis 1, 2; Girls' League 1, 2, 3, 4; Marshal 4.

DORIS MARGARET SULLIVAN

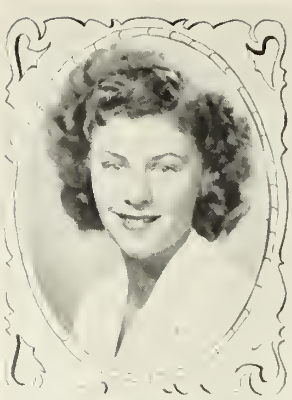
Dot's heart seems to be with "a certain sailor" in the U.S. Navy, although her favorite organization is the U. S. Marines. Although she won't be able to read movie magazines or listen to the 920 Club so much, she might be able to see that sailor if she fulfills her serious thought and joins the WAVES.

Girls' League 1.

WALTER D. SUMNER 3D

"Lucky" has a strange, to say the least, ambition. He'll have to leave it up to Uncle Sam, but he'd like to be a professional bum. We think he's only kiddin' though, cause he says that his interest is the ministry. He's quite a genius, too. His outstanding accomplishment has been getting an "A" from the chief.

Basketball 1; Bank Teller 3; H. R. Sec. 3.



BETTE SWARTZ

Bette's time, when not being occupied with sleeping, is spent thinking of "My Bill." She looks forward to some day driving a street car. The Army is the organization that claims most of her interest. "My legs," she says, "are my main characteristics."

RHONA MARA SWARTZ

A most rabid baseball fan is Rhona. With a steaming hot H. J. hot-dog in hand, she's ready to face anything . . . that is, except Gabriel Heater. Rhona has certainly shown her capacity by being the chairman of tire rationing. Watch out B. U. School of Music—here she comes!

FLO-HARRIET TAYLOR

Introducing the President of the English Club, News Editor of the Sagamore, and representative of that rare species—a first honor-roller from Lincoln House. Busy Flo sagely observes that at 4th lunch—"The rush a girl gets is terrific." She's headed for Barnard and journalism. After that — "say, I knew her when."

RICHARD TILLEY

Blonde, handsome Richard Tilley has a semi-universal reputation for contributing considerably to the enjoyment of home room period, 238, with his pranks. When we approach the subject of interests, we discover that boxing is one of the top ones. (At least if his conversation has anything to do with it.)

Entered 2 from Brighton High School.

HARVEY TITUS

"My mother thanks you, my father thanks you, my sister thanks you, and I thank you," says "Tiger" Titus, when elated. Harvey, who recently appeared in "Kaarina, hopes, some day, to be in a George M. Cohan musical comedy. He collects autographs and records when not otherwise occupied.

SONYA M. TRATTEN

Insisting that her only serious thought is what she'll do when there isn't any more gum. Sonya hasn't fooled those who know of her musical talent. Idolizing Koussevitsky, her greatest ambition is to play with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. At this point, however, her proudest achievement is the completion of six years of French (Miss O'Brien, please note).

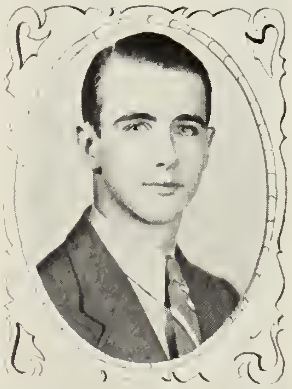
Golf 4; Swimming 5.

ERNEST TRIMPER

Ernest's greatest troubles, these days, seem to center around his car, what with no gas, but plenty of willing passengers. From what we gather, he's interested in mechanics (in and out of school). Future plans include the Army Air Corps. Incidentally Ernest's a misogynist. (Fifty cents, please!)



WILLIAM FIDELIS TROY, JR.

We proudly present the president of Lincoln House and of the graduating class. He's been one of the foremost participants in sports for four years and certainly one of our best politicians. He's a swell kid, and really a smart one, for he hopes to go to M.I.T. after this war is taken care of.

GERARD TURNER

One of Lincoln House's few male singers is Gerard Turner. Gerard is fortunate in being a member of the Sea Scouts, a really wonderful organization. He mixes both cultural and non-cultural likes as his interest in Math affirms. At present, Jerry plans to go into the Army Air Corps upon graduation.

Glee Club 2, 3; Kaarina 3; Boys Club 2, 3, 4.

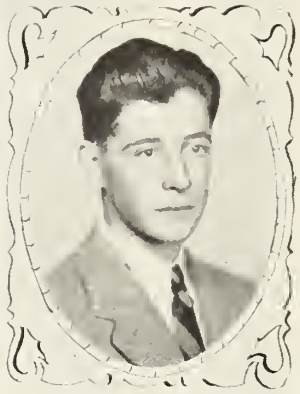
MARTIN L. ULLMAN

Ever since his transfer from out-of-town last year, Marty has haunted the Science department and the basketball court. He does well in both places. But when it comes to French that's his Waterloo. If you girls wonder why Marty is imperious to your wiles, it's because a certain Sydelle R. takes up all his time.

Science Club 4; Boys' Club 4.

Entered 3 from Far Rockaway High School.



MAURICE VAN AUKEN

The startling history of Maurice Van Auken: he entered our fair school this year as a post graduate; and then he left. But all joking aside, Maurice is one swell fellow. He has the personality of an individualist and at the same time, that of a reg'lar guy. The U. S. Navy is his interest!

MARY VIRGINIA VENSTROM

Ginny wants to become a great singer and you can generally find her wherever the Glee Club is. Playing the piano, ice skating, outdoor sports, and listening to the radio occupy most of her time. She has an aversion to sarcastic people and the boys at B.H.S.

Girls' League 2, 3, 4; Glee Club 3, 4; Girls' Ensemble 3.

ANN LEE WAGNER

Ann is quite amused at the little big shots in the High School, but those would-be Casanovas, ugh! She doesn't seem to mind being addressed as "Hey, you!" though. Ann's next stop is Junior college after which she hopes to be a medical secretary—and then. . . !

Golf 2; Girls' League 2, 3, 4; Girls' Auxiliary 4; Marshal 4.

ROSAMOND WALKER

This very energetic miss has run the gamut (in school activities) from the Hockey team to Secretary to Miss Poland. Roddy believes that "brevity is the soul of wit" and in her own inimitable way wants to be a second Peter Hunt. In the immediate future there'll be College, and then a delving into Chemistry. Now she concerns herself with less weighty activities—Hockey and Art.

JUSTIN ENRIGHT WALSH

Justin, in case you want to know, "Jay-Jay," can't wait until he gets into the "scrap." "Jes" just loves studying Aeronautics. He also likes the swimming team and woodcarving (on Japs). According to him Mr. Webber is tops. "Private property—Police take notice" signs have a strange attraction for him.

SIDNEY M. WARSHAUER

We don't know what the Fagan Club is, but we'll congratulate Sid on quitting, since that's his outstanding accomplishment. He hopes to enter the Air Corps when he graduates, and is betrained with the rest of the boys in Mr. Bemis's Commando course, which at this point is his favorite organization.

JACQUELINE WATT

"How can we fill the quadrangle at rallies?" asks "Jackie". Knitting, dancing, tennis, hockey, the "Pep" club, and looking forward to flying her own plane, occupy a large part of her time. Noted for her big feet, (ed. note: Mine are bigger) "Jackie" often says "Smarten up".

JEROME J. WEBBER

"Stop looking at me like that," says Jerry to Mister Williams, (that tall individual in 239, whom he idolizes.) Work, work, and more work take up most of his time. And in between times, he spends his time working . . . a dull existence compared to loafing (oh yeah).

RUTH ELIZABETH WECKER

One of Lincoln House's brightest lights is Ruth Wecker, Latin student "extrordinaire", and generally brilliant otherwise. On looking at her imposing list of outside activities, it is readily understood why Ruth made Alpha Pi in her junior year. Ruth should go far in the college career for which she is heading.

His political views are a bit confusing, but Stan believes in them and himself implicity. "Wow! He's terrific!!"

ELEANOR K. WERSEBE

Ellie is the girl you identify by her soft quiet voice. As she says, her chief failing is not talking loud enough in class. She seems to love all outdoor sports and any science whatever. To balance, she has a love for classical music— probably soft to fit in with her appearance and personality.

Girls' League 2, 3, 4; Library Staff 2, 3, 4; Locker Marshal 3; H. R. V. Chm. 4; Bank Teller 4.

HORACE WESTON

Bud tells us that he just isn't hep to the sharpies in the school, but we know enough about him to disclose that what he does like, isn't in the school curriculum. Bud expects to have no serious thought for the next sixty years. After graduation he hopes to enter the U. S. Marine Corps.

SYLVIA WHITE

Sylvia, a vivacious and charming member of "the penthouse society" wonders how a first floor home room would feel. Her interests are many and varied. On the top of the list we find music, ice skating, swimming. We also have it on good authority that Sylvia is very artistically inclined.

SELMA WHITESTONE

Selma doesn't care what name she is called by as long as it isn't Selma; so, like many a Selma before her, the name is Sally. Sally prizes her position as a senior adviser, and as this honor is only given to the outstanding girls of B.H.S., she may well be proud. Sally is an ardent football fan and she follows the Red and Blue through successful and not-so-successful seasons. Chief aim for Sally now is college.

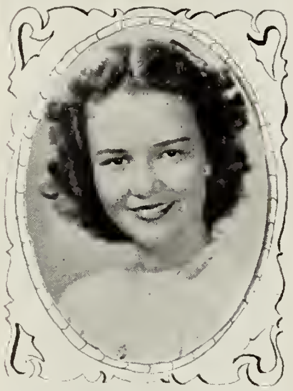
FRANCES ANNE WHITMAN

Fran has a deep desire to use the drill on her dentist's teeth. But she won't say which dentist. Boiled live lobsters, claustrophobia, and foreign correspondenting (all right, so we flunked English) comprise Frannie's inner self. In her more solemn moods Fran can either be listening to Beethoven's 5th Symphony or watching the New York Yanks. But all Yanks aside, Frannie bats .1000.

Tennis 4; Girls' Auxiliary 4.
Entered B. H. S., 3.



MACY LORANA WILLIAMS

Commercial Art and a certain Mr. Merrill (not to mention any names), are dear to Mace's heart. Her most unusual characteristic is her desire for havin' fun. Corn and baseball (or shall we say baseball and corn; or shall we just say baseball—oh, say what you want to) comprise Miss Williams' favorite dish.

Which thing led to the other, we don't know, but she has actually received an A/A from Mr. W. When she's not exercising her brains on paper, she is bouncing herself along the trails—horseback riding, to you.

MAURICE WOLF

Curly-topped Buddy Wolf just can't leave shooting galleries alone. Buddy occupies his spare time telling and listening to good jokes. (Ed. Note—some of them aren't so good.) Radio Comm. is his favorite subject while "I doo'd it" is his favorite quotation.

Track 4, 5; Boys' Club 3, 4; Bank Teller 5.

STANLEY R. WOLFE

Here is a fellow who is certainly living up to his name. "Wolf", is a future engineer, is at present interested in figures, numerical and otherwise. His pet passion is frailty and his favorite quotation is from Hamlet's—you guessed it—"Frailty, thy name is woman." What a man—or Wolf!

LAURA WOLFF

Lore, of Marseille, Brookline, and all points west, is a great sports lover. Perhaps she is new to our country, but anybody who ever was near Dean Rd. playground is acquainted with Laura and her orange shorts. And please notice everyone—her pet peeve is people who ask if there are trees in France.

RICHARD F. WOODHOUSE, JR.

Gym classes irk "Dickie", he'd rather be out playing golf. He wants to become a bank teller but first he has a date in Tokio that he would like to attend to. Dickie likes U. S. History, but biology is a complete mystery to him. And he's a 1st class Boy Scout, too!

Boys' Club 2.
Entered 2 from Junior High School, West Arlington.

ROBERT W. WOODHOUSE

Meet "Bob", who is "Dickie's" other half and a close half, too, except that "Bob" doesn't care what he becomes just as long as he's successful. He has a mania for collecting golf balls but he doesn't say what he does with them. Storing a "green" market, Bob?

Boys' Club 2.
Entered 2 from Junior High School, West Arlington.

VIRGINIA WOODING

All we could squeeze out of Ginny was that her guy is a certain sergeant in the U.S. Air Corps. Well, with that description, I could spot him anywhere! She wants to be a dancing teacher and she likes to write letters. Don't you see the connection, you dope?

Girls' League 1, 2; Bank Teller 3.

MILLICENT YALDEN

Tall, (5′ 7″), fair, slender Millicent has a full life indeed, what with her Presidenting the 12½ club, doing volunteer social service work at the hospital and making sure that she keeps well in touch with Johnson's-across-the-Charles. We wouldn't know if he's the only one, but we've heard that Buddha is her idol.

Elaine is an ardent 920 Club fan, but does not let that fact interfere with her homework. Elaine says that people who eat and eat, but don't get fat irk her; so I'd better duck. Elaine would like to get into the WAACS eventually. Right now she is undecided as to what to do.

Girls' League 1, 2, 3; Camera Club 1; Red Cross Rep. 3; Science Club 4.

EDSON YOUNG

Known to his intimates as Ed, Mr. Young has told us of his desire to be a really successful musician. He has most of the qualifications already, liking zoot suits, fancy clothes, and women. Another good qualification is his vibrant personality.

ADRIENNE CHARLOTTE ZACKS

Adrienne is another one of those courageous people who have stuck to their guns through the thick and thin (mostly thick) of the Latin course. Erudite as she now is, Adrienne manages to keep heavy thoughts from weighing her down but she has many "lighter moments". Her serious thought of late is "when will it all be over."

SEYMOUR ALAN ZISKEND

See, Sy, or Sid wants to invent a machine that will invent a machine that will foretell what a blind date looks like—wishful thinking. When he thinks about the war Sid wonders how Hitler would act with his panzers down and also how the Nazis like the African dates this year. Strictly humorous—if you can call that humor.

Track 1; Boys' Club 1, 2, 3, 4; Science Club 1, 3, 4; Chess Club 1, 2, 4; English Club 4.

RALPH W. BRUENELL

Tall, dark, and gruesome . . . that's the way Ralph describes himself. Radio programs, girls, Mr. Bates' homeroom, Glenn Miller, airplane models—all have "that certain appeal". He likes any kind of sport—as long as it's Track. College is the topic uppermost in his mind now. He prays nightly that the draft board will forget he's living. If so, it'll be a minor miracle.

Track 3, 4.

Entered 3 from Punchard High School.

JAMES CAVANAGH DiPESA

"Skip's" interests are divided: on one side . . . football; on the other . . . well, she's a blonde, five feet six. In addition to joining the Marines, "Skip's" ambition is to intercept a pass and run for a touchdown. A quotation familiar to the fellow in an Hawaiian sport shirt is: "Where's your homework?"

Football 1, 2, 3, 4; Baseball 1, 2, 3, 4; Touchdown Club 1, 2, 3, 4; Marshal 2, 3; Library Staff 1, 2; Chess Club 1, 2; H. R. Sec. 2, 3; H. R. Vice Chm. 4; Junior Prom Com. 3; Red Cross Rep. 2, 3.

LARRY G. FINE

It seems a general opinion that the biggest thing Larry has taken out of dear old B.H.S. are his feet. B.H.S. has been quite a bore to him, especially certain of its older inmates. Other than having an interest in women, and beating children, this guy's O.K.!

Football 1, 2; Track 1, 2; Swimming 1; Hockey 2.

WILLIAM D. JACOBS

"Jake" hasn't had much time to get acquainted with B.H.S. as he transferred from English High School this year. Nevertheless, unlike most transfers, he is graduating with his class. He plans to join the Naval Air Corps, but he is only shelving a college career 'till the war is over.

Entered 4 from English High School, Boston.

MARVIN KEEGAN

Although Marvin entered Brookline High only this year, his pleasing personality gave him an eager welcome in homeroom 129. Although he is rather quiet in study periods, we are reasonably sure that Marv is quite human. His most outstanding quality is his ability to get along with people.

LAWRENCE D. LAVEN

Larry is a Science Curriculum member who has high hopes of becoming a darned good electrical engineer. As many of us agree, he feels that the one thing wrong with student gov't. is that he can't laugh in class whenever he feels like it. Well, if you can pass an Eng. test from Mr. W., you deserve a special medal, Larry!

H. R. Chm. 1, 2; Boys' Club 1, 2, 3, 4.

RICHARD MacMUNN

Good skating seems to dominate Mac's interests; to his way of thinking, nothing is quite so pathetic as a non-skater. All out for the Co-Ed Figure Skating Club. What ho! Having finally graduated after five long years, Mac hopes to be a commercial artist.

Red Cross Rep. 1; H. R. R., Roberts House Council 1; German Club 2, 3.

PRICE MOSHER

When "Moshe" says he's interested in just about everything, he means the University of Virginia, a successful career in business, and marriage. A self-analysis informs us that he is easy-going, not sufficiently self-disciplined and possesses enough nerve to talk himself out of trouble. The pressure in our bubble fountains amuses Price. (What pressure?)

Football 3; Touchdown Club 3; Pep Club 4, 5; Sports Dance Com. 4; H. R. Chm. 1, 2, 3, V. Chm. 4; Red Cross Rep. 1, 2; Boys' Club 1; Bank Teller 3, 4, 5; Roberts House Pres. 5; Pres., House Council 5; School Council 5; Marshal 5; Roberts House Auditorium Com. 5; Justice, Court of Justice 5; Murivian H. R. 5.

FRANCES E. STEARNS

Frannie is just one of the many lasses around who wants to be a secretary and then settle down. She'll get places, has good sense, doesn't like people who do and say things without good reason. She has just one interest and that's a part of the Air Corps. Not a bad investment, eh Fran?

Bank Teller 1, 2, 3, 4; Girls' League 1, 2, 3.

PHYLLIS WHITE

One of the more diminutive members of Lincoln Houe is Phyllis White. Size has been no handicap to Phyll, however, who has made her presence felt on the swimming team and tennis team. On the loquacious side, (what girl isn't?) Phyllis nevertheless manages to keep quiet—some of the time at least—during working hours, 8:30-1:30.

Swimming 1, 2, 4; Tennis 1, 2, 3; Girls' League 1, 4; Girls' Auxiliary 3, 4.

RUTH WOODMAN

Although she is rather quiet, Ruth has won many good friends in Lincoln and Roberts House during her years at B.H.S. Ruth is not entirely averse to school because she enjoys her social customs classes under Mrs. Henderson's able tutelage, but not all of her classes are so well appreciated.

LAST WILL

We, the members of the 100th Graduating Class of B.H.S.—with five of the charter members in our midst hoping they'll make it this year—being of unsound mind and body (after a particularly bad week end) bequeath, willingly or otherwise, unto our successors the followings gems of observation collected during our four years of servitude under the genial guidance of Lieutenant Ralph Totman and Mr. Albert Seamans.

To Joe Gulley for his masterly efforts in the athletic field, we leave a bouquet of four roses.

We leave Walter Gallagher to the scrap drive.

We leave the Sagamore a shot of adrenalin to improve its circulation.

CLASS HISTORY

DAYS OF OUR YEARS

The class of 1943 entered Brookline High School under the cloud of war; a war which prophesied uncertainty for all of us. We knew we had four years of education ahead, but beyond that, we knew nothing.

With the advent of December 7, 1941, conditions changed. New classes developed; in short, B.H.S. went to war. Between September, 1939 and June, 1943, there lies a story—a story of a transition from peace to war.

THIS ABOVE ALL

Above all—we wanted truly democratic student government. To insure this, we elected competent officers in our Freshman year. As a result of the Lincoln House Constitution, drawn up by these officers, the platform of high ideals in student government on which the Senior class now stands was established.

Setting a precedent in B.H.S. political history, Lincoln House adopted the use of the voting machine in preference to the secret ballot formerly employed. The following are the Lincoln House officers for 1939-1943. Going from President, to Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Representative to the School Council: 1939-'40: Ray Barnstone, Arthur Quinzani, Robert Abrams, Irving Gould, no Representative. 1940-'41: Ray Barnstone, Arthur Quinzani, John Cox, Irving Gould, Jane Rickwood. 1941-'42: Fred Smythe, John Cox, Robert Abrams, Helen McElroy, Jane Rickwood. 1942-'43: William Troy, John Cox, Robert Abrahams, William Jacobs, Ruth Gordon. Graduating Class: William Troy, Richard Dalton, Evelyn Kirrane, Helen McElroy.

OUR HEARTS WERE YOUNG AND GAY

As must come to all in their third year, we made our debut on May 22, 1942 at the Junior Prom, which was held at Driscoll Hall. Dancing to the music of Baron Hugo's Orchestra, we reveled at our first social at which Ray Barnstone was General Chairman.

This gala affair motivated a more splendid occasion which was forthcoming. On May 28, 1943, the Senior Prom, under the direction of Norm Fink and Bob Cusick was held, once more at Driscoll Hall. It was within these halls that the class of '43 celebrated its last formal social gathering—an occasion to be remembered by all for many years.

THE STARS LOOK DOWN

In our Freshman year, Marilyn Morrill and Bert Rabinowitz entered Prize Speaking. Still prominent in this contest, Lincoln House boasts of Beverly Shlager, who won the award in her Sophomore year. Mel Gordon also competed as did Leonard Horwitz, both of whom received honorable mention. Jim Barnet represented the Class of '43 when we were Juniors, and during our graduating year Eddie Sostek, Shirley Orenberg, Frank Lowenberg, and Mickey Markell took part. Among the graduating candidates we had three winners—Eddie Sostek in Declamation, Shirley Orenberg in Original Selection, and Frank Lowenberg winning in Extemporaneous Speaking. In the first group Mickey Markell attained honorable mention.

In fields other than dramatics, we likewise excelled. Zalman Davlin won the coveted Lincoln Medal in 1942. In the same year Frank Lowenberg and Mary Silvano won the J. Murray Kay Essay Prize in History and Mickey Geller was awarded the Harvard Book Prize for the all-around Junior.

In 1942 Bert Rabinowitz took over the Sagamore as Editor-in-Chief and Norm Fink became business manager, with Flo-Harriet Taylor, news editor; Janice Saklad, circulation manager; Rosalyn Long, advertising manager; and Jane Rickwood, feature editor. Other journalists of whom we are proud are Zalman Davlin, Editor-in-Chief of the Murivian, and his editorial assistants—Ruth Doren, Stan Weinstein, Betty Ann Orlov, and Norma Johnson. The business staff was headed by Parouhie Gosdanian, Stan Davis, and Marion Lovell.

The Honorary Society had seven Lincoln House members when we were Juniors, and during the Senior year, we increased our number to twenty-two. Bert Rabinowitz became President of Alpha Phi with the greatest number of points, and Nancy Peabody filled the position of Secretary-Treasurer.

Lincoln House is proud of the four members who were chosen from history classes to attend a Post-War discussion at Milton Academy—Frank Lowenberg, Flo-Harriet Taylor, Suzanne Pisko, and Leonard Horwitz.

Still another honor was conferred upon one of the '43's. This was the Boston Herald Prize given to Claire Wilson for the book-report submitted to its judges.

THE ROARING FORTIES

Surging ahead Lincoln House gained control of two of our leading language clubs. Bea Bernstein became president of the French Club in her Senior year, replacing Ray Barnstone who had upheld our house laurels as vice president the previous year. In an effort to establish the high position of excellence and esteem it had maintained in years past and suddenly lost on account of B.H.S. students' lack of interest, the English Club elected Flo-Harriet Taylor as its president and Janice Leventall as its secretary. They were not disappointed. Flo's interest and loyalty were prevalent throughout the year and the English Club owes her many thanks for the unusual and original activities she supervised. Of significance among these is the literary contest which aroused enthusiasm through the school, even to having the themes of the winners published in the Sagamore. Among these Lincoln House claims two, Mickey Geller and Marilyn Morrill.

Heading the club having the largest membership in school, versatile Ev Gorfinkel was President of the Girls' League, with Ellie Arnold, her trusted assistant, as Secretary. Spurred on by the officer's ceaseless aid and leadership, and to supplement local defense units, the Girls' Auxiliary was founded, headed first by Janice Saklad and then by Jackie Fishel. Among its accomplishments the Auxiliary can boast of making hospital dressings, of having served in the Volunteer Hospital Service, in the sale of War Bonds and Stamps, and in Settlement Houses and Playgrounds.

Incorporating the Mercureans in the Dramatic Society, this organization became one of the largest and most powerful ones in the school, with the help of Norm Fink as President, Mickey Markell as Secretary, and Mr. Gould as Faculty Advisor. Taking advantage of one of the Society's most successful years in its history, many Lincoln House members took part in the three productions of the year—Murder in the Cathedral, Stage Door, and The Taming of the Shrew.

Working his way up in the ranks Al Goldberg became President of the B.H.S. Chess Club. Prominent among its members is another "Lincolner", Macey Feingold. If you're ever around the library on Friday afternoon you can usually see some busy students engaged in some thought-twister-move against Huntington or some other private or public school.

Head of one of the most helpful organizations in school is Virginia Eldridge. She is one of the many who has helped us to find that certain book we needed for history, or sent us a slip day after day for that overdue book. (Since there is a paper shortage, or was, we beg forgiveness.)

Blessed with many talents Ruth Wecker has shown her organizing ability in connection with the Red Cross during the past year. When Jim Barnet left B.H.S., the Boys' Club looked to Dick Gilbert to take over. He did, capably, and advanced Boys' Club bicycle trips, bowling teams and ping pong tournaments. In Leonard Horwitz we find not only Lincoln House proficiency in history but also profound interest in science. Any one of the Science Club's members will vouch for the fact that Len has done an excellent job, aided by Ed Rudnick's stimulating programs.

Not only can Bud Rabinowitz claim the title of President of Alpha Pi, but, helped by Zalman Davlin and Flo Harriet Taylor, Boys' and Girls' Moderators respectively, he has also done his best to stimulate interest in interscholastic debates. On the first team are five Lincoln House students—Stan Weinstein, Sid Furst, Dick Gilbert, Frank Lowenberg and Dave Skvirsky.

The aforementioned winner of the Harvard Book Prize, Mickey Geller, has also distinguished himself as Captain of Marshals, assisted by Hazel Simpson, our Drum Majorette. Mickey was equally forceful as prosecuting attorney of the Court of Justice.

We all kept our turkey dinners waiting while we watched Captain John Nason lead our football team which was victorious over Newton for the fourth successive year. Mary Ross and the other spirited cheerleaders cheered the team on to this victory.

It is fitting to mention here that John was also captain of the baseball team and Chief Justice of the Court. Other senior sports' captains were: hockey, Joe Gulley; basketball, Robert Mahoney; swimming, Justin Walsh; track, Kenneth Schneir; and golf, Dennis O'Leary and Walter Murphy.

Two more honored female members are Nancy Lane, Chairman of Senior Advisors, and "Hank" Pulaski, Chairman of the "Pep" Committee.

THE TURMOIL

We spent these four years with a fair amount of security, becoming more mature American youths. We have tried to take advantage of all the opportunities offered us by our Alma Mater—to gain social and political poise as well as a balanced formal education.

When we were Freshmen our High School career seemed doubtful, but now that we have reached this one small goal, the future is even more questionable. Now we are going on to college or business—perhaps—but more likely on to aid our Country.

May we prove our worth!

DR. ARTHUR W. ROBERTS

DR. ARTHUR WELLINGTON ROBERTS

Dr. Arthur Wellington Roberts, was born in Cambridge, the son of Benjamin and Louise Roberts. He prepared for college at Cambridge Latin School and entered Harvard in the class of 1881. He graduated with A.B., A.M., and Ph.D. degrees, being the first person to receive a Ph.D. for two years work. His first teaching experience was in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he spent two years at the Hughes High School. He later went to Philadelphia to teach at the Williams Penn Charter School. He stayed there until 1900, when he left to become head of the Classical Department at Brookline High School. He was forced to retire in June, 1926 because of ill health, and he died a year later, at the age of 67. Dr. Roberts devised the outdoor Class-Day program for the High School, the observance of which was curtailed last year because of the war. This program made Brookline High the only one in New England to have such an elaborate Class Day. In recognition of his great contributions to Brookline High, Roberts Auditorium was named in his honor.

ROBERTS HOUSE

ROBERTS HOUSE

High up at the greatest altitude of Brookline High, affectionately called the "penthouse" by its citizens, dwell the scant group of students who proudly bear the name of Roberts House. Due to the leadership of their friend and advisor, Mr. Albert Seamans, the students of Roberts House have been leaders in school affairs for a good many years.

Many wearers of the red and blue band were also from the "penthouse." Led by Warner Dalzell as floor captain, the marshals consisted of the following as well as the house officers: Ruth Smith, Alan McLaren, Grace MacDonald, Jaquelyn Watt, Charles Shapiro, Sonya Gorden, Irving Pfau.

Keeping the House of Roberts well represented in sports were the following: Johnnie Nason, captain of football and baseball; Ray Blue, Jerry Horwitz, Denny O'Leary, Ed Madden, and Johnnie O'Leary. Not satisfied with simply keeping Brookline represented in the Eastern Mass. Hockey League, Johnnie Nason, and Denny O'Leary earned themselves places on the Eastern All-Star Hockey Team.

Thus the remaining members of the once popular Roberts House did themselves proud in their final year among the hallowed walls and traditions of Brookline High School.

MR. WILLIAM H. LINCOLN

MR. WILLIAM H. LINCOLN

On December 3, 1925, the town of Brookline lost a leading citizen in the death of William H. Lincoln. This man, for whom the senior house is named, is probably best known to the school at large as the donor of the prize speaking medals. He was born in Boston and received his education at English High School and Chauncy Hall. In his first job he was a clerk in his father's shipping office. For a number of years Mr. Lincoln was President of the Brookline Savings Bank, and upon his retirement was made a trustee. Although in his later years, it was necessary for him to give it up, he was very interested in municipal and civic affairs, the local schools in particular. He was a valued member of the School Committee and was also active in the Park Commission. Mr. Lincoln's interest in schools is shown by the fact that he not only did a lot of work on the Brookline School Committee, but, because he was also a member of the corporation of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and a trustee of both the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge and Wellesley College. His philanthropic inclinations led him to donate a fund for the purpose of assisting needy parents to keep their children in school. The class of 1943 is extremely proud to be members of a house bearing Mr. Lincoln's name.

LINCOLN HOUSE

LINCOLN HOUSE

The second war-time graduating house is facing a world of uncertainty. Gone are the prospects of a very carefree four years at college, not only for the boys, but also for the girls, who are discovering that many colleges are closed or partly given over to the several branches of the women's service.

Not content to wait for graduation, many fellow house members felt the urge to do their part and enlisted in the armed forces. Not to be outdone by the students, Mr. Totman, the popular housemaster, who has done much in furthering the democratic principles of Brookline High, has received a commission in the Army Air Corps.

Taking its cue from Mr. Totman, Lincoln House has done its best to further student government. With Bill Troy, President of the School Council, and Mickey Geller and Ruth Gordon, also members, the Lincoln House Council has been able to bolster the School Council with suggestions for improvements which have been accepted and put into practice. The Marshal Force, headed by Mickey Geller, Hazel Simpson, and Frank Harrington has efficiently enforced the School Council's decrees.

The backbone of every athletic team this year was Lincoln House. Our boys have gone forth and vanquished (usually) the foe on the football gridiron, baseball diamond, basketball floor, hockey rink, tennis court, and running track. They are now ready for their anticipated Army career of the near future.

MR. WINIFRED C. AKERS

MR. WINIFRED C. AKERS

Mr. Akers, who was born in Andover, Maine, received his preliminary education in the Andover schools and then entered Wesleyan University, from which he was graduated in 1893, Phi Beta Kappa. He began his teaching career in Quincy and subsequently taught in the high schools of Providence and Somerville until 1899, at which time, he took on the job of headmaster of Holyoke High School. After filling this position for four years, he became headmaster of the New Britain (Connecticut) High School, where he was located for ten years. At the end of this time, he was elected headmaster of Brookline High School and was the administrative head for seventeen years, resigning the post in 1930, because of failing health. He was a leader in civic affairs and the communal life of the town and also prominent in activities pertaining to education. Long one of the outstanding educators of the country, he died on Sunday, February 28, 1937, at the age of 72. His stalwart sincerity, his insistence upon high standards, and his sympathetic understanding of the problems that face young people, were constantly felt, not only in the school, but also in the community and educational groups throughout the state.

AKERS HOUSE

AKERS HOUSE

Two years ago, many people predicted that the Akers class of 1944 would be one of the best in the history of not only the house, but the school. So far it has not failed to come up to expectations; and this year, as in the past, the members of Akers House have excelled in both scholastic and extra-curricular fields. The honor roll always carries the names of Akers House students such as: Alan Alpern, Albert Feldman, Ernest Horne, James Leslie, Ruth Cline, Miriam Haskell, Theodora Lehrer, Dorothy Goldstein and Alice Aeschliman.

After over a year of rehearsing and overcoming obstacles, the full production of The Murder in the Cathedral, directed by Mr. Flemings, was staged and was a huge success. The chorus was made up of Akers House girls, and most of the principles were chosen from the masculine body of that house.

Akers House was well represented in the field of sports, with "Junior Jim" Noonan, "Bob" McPhee, Kent Tice, and Alden Mills, to mention only a few, carrying the name of Akers into battle.

Many of the girls have been active in the Girls' Auxiliary, the war service committee of the Girls' League; while the League next year is to be under the leadership of Anne Meehan as President.

Once again, floor captain Jim Leslie keeps his marshal force alert and efficient at all times.

Akers House, with its own constitution is governed by the House Council, which is composed of the house officers and the home-room representatives.

MR. JOHN C. PACKARD

DR. JOHN C. PACKARD

Born at Bourne, of an old Cape Cod family, Dr. Packard attended Sandwich High School and Wilbraham Academy. He graduated Wesleyan University in 1886, with an A.B. degree, summa cum laude. He taught science at the East Greenwich Academy (Rhode Island) from 1886 to 1890, when he became sub-master of Brookline High School. In 1924, he changed his position from sub-master to the head of the Science Department. His long and valued service to the school was recognized in 1932 by the inclusion of a completely modern laboratory unit designed by Dr. Packard and equipped under his supervision. It was later dedicated as the Packard Laboratories by a vote of the School Committee. In 1935, a signal honor was accorded him, in recognition of his completion of half a century of teaching service,with honorary degrees of Master of Arts by Wesleyan University and Doctor of Science by Tufts College being conferred upon him. He died July 9, 1939 in his 81*st* year. Many years before his death, however, he had become generally appreciated as an authority on matters pertaining to all branches of science. His service in this field of education had been outstanding. Dr. Packard was the inventor of the Packard Inclined Plane and had been the President of the New England Association of Teachers of Physics.

PACKARD HOUSE

PACKARD HOUSE

Packard House entered its second year at Brookline High School in full stride, taking an active and important part in all High School activities.

The home room chairmen, together with the house officers constitute the Packard House Council. Packard House has an unusually fine group of officers. The job of the president was ably filled by Reuben Adams until he left school this year. And then one of the rare instances in school government of a vice-president actually becoming president occurred when Marjorie O'Brien succeeded to the presidency. Ruth MacDonald is secretary and Herbert Broner is the capable treasurer.

Members of this house have been very active participants in both athletic and non-athletic organizations of the school. Football, track, basketball, and tennis have all been engaged in by the sophomore boys, with the girls equally well represented in archery, golf, basketball, and swimming.

In the less vigorous, but equally important activities such as Sagamore reporting, Dramatics, and Debating, the members of Packard House have done their part.

This group, in keeping with their freshmen achievements, have attained a high scholastic standard. They are doing their best to live up to their motto, "Aim High."

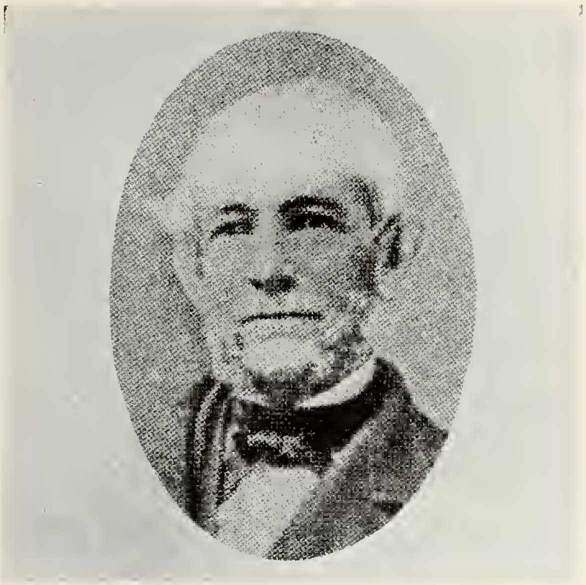
The Great Dictator



REV. WILLIAM H. SHAILER

REVEREND WILLIAM H. SHAILER

The Reverend William H. Shailer was born in Haddam, Connecticut, November 20, 1807. His early life was spent in teaching, and in pursuing a course of study before entering Wilbraham Seminary. He afterwards entered the institution at Hamilton, New York, now known as Madison University. He graduated in 1835. He studied at the Newton Theological Seminary for nearly one year; was in control of the Literary Institute at Suffield, Connecticut; and was ordained at Deep River, Connecticut, on February 26, 1836. His labors at the First Baptist Church in Brookline began on September 1, 1837. He was always deeply interested in the work of education, rendering invaluable service in the public schools. From 1839 to 1854 he was a member of the School Committee. The First Baptist Church of Portland, Maine, called him to service in December, 1853. He was pastor of that church for nearly twenty-four years, and he died in Portland, February 28, 1881. In November, 1895, at the time of the dedication of the High School Building, the assembly hall was called Shailer Hall in his honor. Fire in the fall of 1936 destroyed Shailer Hall, but the house which carries his name will perpetuate the memory of this great man who contributed so much to the welfare of his community.

SHAILER HOUSE

SHAILER HOUSE

With Sept. 2, another bewildered horde of Freshmen entered the halls of B.H.S. The transformation from the gawky, starry-eyed freshmen of the fall, to the poised and self-sufficient freshman of the Spring is an annual phenomenon, but for all that, it happens just once in a student's lifetime. This year it is Shailer House that boasts such a group of boys and girls.

The students of Shailer House have made great strides forward. Its members have taken a part in all school's varied extra-curricula activities. In Freshman football especially, Shailer House made an unusual showing with Dana Estes, Dick Lee, Richard Webber, Harold Moffie and Agimi all showing unusual ability.

Others were more interested in the non-athletic outside activities such as dramatics and Sagamore reporting.

Shailer House, too, has not been deficient scholastically, having an unusually large number of students on the honor roll.

The freshmen started their career at Brookline under the guidance of the very popular Mr. Samuel Gould. Since then Mr. Gould has joined the armed services. The Navy's gain is the school's loss and the students all wish Mr. Gould a speedy return. In the meantime Shailer House will fare well under the expert leadership of Mr. Wendell Smith, their new housemaster.

WAR TIME PRODUCTION TRAINING

A year and a half of war has brought many changes to Brookline High School. Among these is the establishment of War Time Production Training in the Manual Training building for boys and girls interested in obtaining war jobs before and after graduation.

Originated three years ago as the National Defense Curriculum for boys only, the program has been greatly revised since our change from a neutral to a belligerent nation. Its scope has been considerably widened and a course for girls has been added.

The boys started by working fifteen hours a week. However, their time now has been increased so that each boy works thirty hours a week on one of the three shifts into which the hours from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. have been divided.

On December 28th, the girls' program started. They began in the right spirit by giving up Christmas vacation and since then have worked for a minimum of thirty hours a week. As soon as they were broken in on exercise pieces they went into actual production work for war factories. A few girls are employed full time now and although they have left school early, both they and the boys will receive their diplomas in June.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

An inexperienced but determined team answered the opening whistle of the season. In spite of this inexperience, the Red and Blue took over Lawrence 13 to 6, using the T formation for the first time.

Injuries and a peculiar ailment began to plague the team, weakening it considerably. In the midst of this trouble we were soundly beaten by Watertown and Quincy. Sparked, however, by the brilliant and inspiring playing of Capt. Johnny Nason, later named by the Boston Sports Writers to the All-Scholastic Eleven, Brookline rose to great heights to tie mighty Weymouth, unbeaten in her last three seasons. The Brookline boys then proceeded to beat Somerville and Framingham and tie Fitchburg. Showing unexpected strength, Belmont ended our little streak.

Going into the traditional Newton game very much the underdog, the Downesmen pushed a hitherto unbeaten Newton team all over the field and came up with a stunning 6 to 0 victory. This was our fourth successive victory over Newton, a new record.

Although seven players graduate this year we may be very thankful for the regulars who will be back as a powerful nucleus for Coach Downes.

J. V. FOOTBALL

Like most of Brookline's other sports teams, the Jayvee football squad had its season considerably shortened. It played only three games, beating Boston Trade School 7-3, losing to Newton 4-2, and beating St. Sebastian 14-1

In spite of this short schedule, Mr. Ball, the Jayvee's coach, made sure that his boys got plenty of practice. They scrimmaged every day at the field with the regular varsity. As the season progressed, several boys advanced from this intermediate group to the varsity.

The team was managed by Borton Katz, Norman Tarlin, and William Ward. Graduating seniors who received their letters are George Rochfort and Louis Sternburg.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

Although our freshman team did not enjoy a perfect season it has shown some very promising material for Brookline's teams of coming seasons. The team won two games, beating very strong Somerville and Needham teams. They tied Dedham, and lost only to the Trade Jayvees and to the Newton High Sophomores.

All of the backfield has been good with Dana Estes, Dick Lee, Jack Agimi, Charles Webber, and utility man, Harold Moffie doing the outstanding jobs. Webber has been the major line plunger, while Moffie has shone equally on defense. Estes has called the signals, Dick Lee and Jack Agimi have come in with plenty of hard and tricky running.

Other exceptional players are Connolly and Coyne, two frosh who show a great deal of ability.

These boys all have plenty of potential power and again it can be repeated that if the showing of the freshman team is any indication of what Brookline will have next year, the Red and Blue will be one of the real threats in schoolboy football. Mr. Fitzgerald as freshman coach has done a grand job.

TOUCHDOWN CLUB

The Touchdown Club, organized by Coach Harry Downes, has become in the few years of its existence, one of the outstanding clubs in the high school. Its purpose is to give the boys who engage in football a chance to hear outstanding sportsmen and obtain much important information on sports. Members of any of Brookline High's football squads, freshman, J.V., or varsity, may be members.

It is interesting to note that the Touchdown Club is the only sports organization in the school. In keeping with this position, the club took a very active part in the selling of tickets for Kaarina, the operetta given last year which raised the money for our band uniforms. Last year the Touchdown Club sponsored the highly successful Sports Dance. The club has its annual banquet at the end of each year, at which famous figures in sports and other speakers are guests of honor. The entertainment consist of talks by these guests and the showing of moving pictures.

This year under the capable direction of its officers, the club has had meetings at which Faculty Advisor, Mr. Downes, coach of our team, and Denny Myers, great coach of Boston College, have spoken.

HOCKEY

This year the Brookline High School Hockey team finished third in the Eastern Massachusetts League. Such a showing is not bad for any year, but this year, with many of the boys taking defense jobs in the afternoon and Saturdays, thereby cutting down greatly in their practice, it is a really commendable feat.

We lost only to Wakefield and Natick, beating Malden, Lexington and Somerville. We evened the score with Wakefield and tied Hudson, Malden and Dedham.

Brookline placed a record number of players on the Eastern Massachusetts All-Star Team. Joe Gulley, William Ernst, Dennis O'Leary, Jack Phillips, John Nason and Walter Murphy all made the team but Dennis O'Leary, undoubtedly the best goalie in the League, received a tough break in only being placed on the second All Star Team.

As large a factor as any in the success of our team was the excellent coaching job which was accomplished by Mr. Hartigan who just rounded out his second year as Hockey Coach for Brookline.

TRACK

This year our track team showed itself to be weak in field events and strong in running.

Our cross country team showing unusually high calibre, defeated Belmont decisively. In other meets our running was consistently superior and enabled us to defeat Malden, Medford and Dedham.

We fared better at the state meet this year than we did last, with a final standing of 15th in the entire contest. Bob McIlveen was the first Brookline man to finish. The first five Brookline men to finish in the meet were Saul Beck, Ralph Brunelle, Floyd Dean and David Barr. All were in the first 50 with 150 entrants running in all.

Our indoor season reflected our weakness in field events, but the excellent running of sprint star Charles Johnson and the middle distance running of Captain Ken Schneier, John Ellis, Floyd Dean, Donald Gibbons, Kent Tice and Ralph Brunelle brought us through to victory on several occasions.

Our successes this year are due once again in no small measure to the popular track coach Mr. Harold "Bucky" Bates, who keeps after the boys until they are in top condition for the meets of the season.

J. V. BASEBALL

It is becoming a tradition at B.H.S. that any team Mr. Downes coaches is a good team. It began with football teams and now seems to be applying equally well to baseball teams.

Starting with some very fine material Mr. Downes has molded the raw talent into a very efficient team whose smoothness increased as the season progressed.

A very prominent lad of great ability is Joe Capodilupo whose excellent fielding and hitting is something to watch. Big Paul Mullins has proved himself to be a real find in the pitching department as has Roy Gustafson. Also showing far more than average ability are Ralph Collins, Rubin Foy, Jay Larson, Dick Johnson and Dave Kaplan.

With the tough schedule such as the J.V.'s had this season, victories for our side have been really hard earned accomplishments indicative of a very superior collection of players. Boston Trade, Rindge Tech, Cambridge Latin, Jamaica, and Somerville J.V.'s provide our kind of competition.

The J.V.'s of today are the varsity stars of tomorrow; so it is with real optimism that we can look forward to the baseball seasons to come.

VARSITY BASEBALL

Mr. Fitzgerald's charges had a very full schedule this season. Games were played with Cambridge, Waltham, Watertown, Wellesley, Rindge Technical, Arlington, and of course our traditional rival, Newton.

The constant daily practice is what makes a disorganized group of athletes into the smooth efficient machine that is able to earn consistently once the season begins. Outstanding in the squad are Raymond Blue, Jerry Bonnelli, John Conroy, James Carson, Joseph Gully, Jerome Horwitz, Milton Lewis, Robert McPhee, James Noonan and Captain John Nason. Joe Gully has wielded a very potent bat that is most respected by opposing pitchers. On the other hand Milton Lewis has handicapped enemy batters all season by his blinding speed and tricky curves. His success is due in no small measure to catcher Jerry Herwitz's clever handling of his pitchers. Captain Johnny Nason has been an important cog in the machine with his timely batting and fielding. James Noonan is another all-around player who comes through consistently in a pinch.

GOLF

Possessing unusual talent this year the Brookline High School Golf Team played its first match, looked up to by many as one of the state's leading aggregations.

The team was co-captained by Dennis O'Leary and Walter Murphy. O'Leary is one of the longest hitters that B.H.S. has ever possessed. Walter Murphy has shown his ability by winning the school championship for the last three years. The third and fourth positions were held down by William Ernst and John Raftery, lads who have shown much ability. The fifth and sixth shots went to Bill Smith and Dick Guillette. Bill Horton, maintaining seventh spot, is not only a fine putter but also a very steady hitter. This combination was expected to hold its own against any opposition.

The team was coached this year by Mr. Woodlock who hoped for a good showing by the team in this, his first year as its coach. Mr. McDonald who was last year's coach now works in a defense plant; his coaching was missed by the basketball team as well as the golf team.

BOYS' SWIMMING TEAM

Swimming is one sport that has suffered by the losses of other teams they were scheduled to meet. It was necessary to have four swimming engagements canceled because the opposing teams had lost so many of their top men to the armed forces. Thus the three outstanding Brookline High School swimmers, namely Captain Justin Walsh, Don Bernstein and Walter Bullit, were not given a fair chance to exhibit their graceful form in the pool. Most of the boys on this year's team will have another chance at it next year, since few are veterans and will be back for at least another year.

In the Brown Interscholastic Swimming Meet, the Brookline High School Mermen were quite successful. Walter Bullit, whose speed and graceful form is something to admire, won the two hundred yard freestyle race with no apparent exertion. The fifty yard butterfly breast-stroke race was won for the Red and Blue by Don Bernstein. Next, the relay team struggled through to capture the fourth place in the Medelay race in which eight other school teams participated. So the swimming team completed another successful year, that might have been even more successful had it not been for those unavoidable set-backs which we hope will not interfere next year.

TENNIS

Beginning his 12th year as coach of the B.H.S. Tennis Team, Mr. Donovan A. Barnes looks forward to a highly successful season. Returning from last year's state-championship team are two veterans, Myron Sharaf and Murray Levin. These boys will form the nucleus of this year's group.

Continuing his tradition, Mr. Barnes held a tennis tournament this year. The inevitable struggle between Sharaf and Levin climaxed this year's tourney which was won, after a hard fight, by Mr. Levin.

The potential third spot is held by Al Alpern who is backed up by such aces as Bob Harrison, Bill Jacobs, Mort Selin, Harold Ross and Ray Barnstone.

This year we play an unusually large number of private schools which include such schools as Milton Academy, Rivers School, Browne and Nichols and Huntington. Also we have been invited by Harvard University to compete in the New England Interscholastics.

Under Mr. Barnes' able supervision, this very outstanding team should bring glory to B.H.S.

BASKETBALL

This year the fates seemed to have banded together to plague our basketball team. Early in the fall a fire, started by spontaneous combustion, damaged the main Gym so badly that it could not be used for several months. During this time the boys had to get all their practice in the entirely inadequate small basketball court in the basement. Just when the long-suffering basketballers were about to leave their temporary quarters for the renovated Gym, a second fire broke out which set back their plans another few weeks.

This great hindrance to the team's practice, coupled with the fact that no varsity veterans from former years remained to form a nucleus for the team, made this our poorest season in years. Our only victory was that which we gained over Arlington by a close 28-26 score.

The bright side of the picture can be found in the fact that many of the year's varsity members will be back, so that Coach Grinnell will have an able and experienced squad to work with during the coming seasons.

This is Mr. Grinnell's first year as coach and all agree that despite great handicaps he has done a fine job of molding a basketball team that in future year will lead the League.

GIRLS' HOCKEY

The Girls' Hockey team was faced with the serious problem this year of obtaining transportation which would enable it to visit the schools outside of Brookline, with which it had been accustomed to play in previous years. This program was partially solved by playing the private schools in and around Brookline. On account of this, their season was greatly shortened. However, in spite of a brief schedule, the girls were still able to get in the same amount of practice as in past years.

Under the coaching of Miss Norma Allen they played the Windsor School and beat them 2-0. Repeating the same type of fine playing the following week, they beat the Choate School team 8-1. To finish up the season they were invited to participate in play-day at Beaver Country Day School. Here the Jayvees shared honors with the varsity team by winning several games at the meet.

The team itself was an excellent one and congratulations are in order. A great deal of their success can be attributed to Captain "Gundy" Kirrane, whose spirit and enthusiasm stirred the Red and Blue to an undefeated and untied season. Not to be forgotten is Manager Barbara Doyle, who, besides doing a great job of managing, was one of the team's top-notch players.

GIRLS' TENNIS

Existing war conditions have greatly interfered with girls' tennis. No longer do they have time to spend at Dean Rd., for most of the girls are now engaged in war work of one type or another.

In spite of this obstacle there is still some tennis playing and on a bright day the courts are filled with energetic girls.

Plans for interscholastic matches have also gone by the boards. At any rate the courts are always open and all interested girls are invited to come and play.

GIRLS' GYM TEAM

The girls' gym team is one of the most interesting sports groups in the school. It prides itself on its unique set-up, as it is an entirely voluntary affair, originated and carried on by a few energetic and enterprising girls. Officially, it does not exist.

However, the girls who belong are so devoted to exercise that they meet every day after school and put in hour after hour of hard work, stopping only when they are so completely exhausted that it is an effort to sit. Consequently, their exhibitions are the talk of the town and attended by no one knows how many.

All applicants for positions on this team are referred to former members, because another of the gym team's characteristics is its exclusiveness: no one but the members know anything about it.

SCHOOL COUNCIL

Because they fear that the School Council may entirely disappear, in name as in authority and know that an elimination of the School Council will mark the beginning of the end of all student government in Brookline High School, the members of the Council have tried, this year, to make the students more alive to the privileges and responsibilities of student government. It is their aim to establish student government in a stronger position than it has been in the past and to define their authority in order to make a more efficient government for the students.

The foremost problem which the Council has faced this year concerns the condition of the lunchroom. For a long time there has been a careless abandon evident among the students eating in the lunchroom. Papers, dishes, and even remains of personal lunches are strewn around the floor and on the tables. Working in coöperation with the Marshal Force, the Council is endeavoring to remedy this situation.

The five faculty members representing the five houses lend dignity and stability to the Council, while the presidents and the representatives from each house contribute the students' viewpoint and ideas to the meetings.

COURT OF JUSTICE

The Court of Justice acts as the judicial branch of Brookline High School's student government. It passes final judgment on all cases over which it has jurisdiction and which have been brought to its attention by the Marshal Force.

The motto of the Court of Justice is "Let the punishment fit the crime" and they attempt to live up to this. Fifteen cases have been brought before them and in every case the defendant has justly been found guilty. The charges have varied from smoking to disregard for lunchroom regulations. The punishments have been devised to fit the misdemeanor, except in serious cases where expulsion or probation has been recommended.

In the courts of our land, the jury—the body which does the actual deciding of guilty or not guilty—is composed of men and women, fellow-citizens from all walks of life. This makes for a better understanding of the problem at hand and therefore a fairer judgment. Our Court of Justice not only has a jury of students but the justices also are members of the student body. The faculty members form an advisory group—nothing more.

ALPHA PI

Although there are innumerable organizations of different kinds at Brookline High School, Alpha Pi has the distinction of being the only society which has as members students with widely varying interests, and the only society which bases admission on scholarship, personality, and achievement in extra-curricular activities. Thus, a goal is set forth to the ambitious student; a goal which when attained, brings not only personal satisfaction and heightened prestige, but also does much to help prepare a student for future life.

The letters Alpha Pi are Greek, standing for excellence and leadership, summing up the necessary qualifications for admittance. Excellence in studies, and leadership in school activities determine the number of points for each applicant.

The new members are enrolled twice a year: in spring and fall at a very impressive auditorium period. All the members are present to greet the initiates. Mr. Ringer reads the names of each candidate and the number of his points. Then as the proud newcomer steps forward, Mr. Ringer presents him with his pin, symbol of a fine achievement.

Again like no other organization in school, the officers of Alpha Pi are determined by the number of points a member has earned. The president and secretary-treasurer are the two highest ranking students in the group.

A good government, from necessity, must appoint certain people as agents to enforce law and order, and to prevent possible infractions. The Marshal Force here at Brookline is our way of designating those agents. This should not imply lawbreakers, however. They merely need guidance.

This year the Marshal Force is faced with a problem which must be met and solved or it might result in the end of all student government in Brookline High School. This problem is concerned with the lunchroom, which has been the sore spot of the school for a longer time than we care to remember. The faculty has finally decided to hand the job of cleaning up the lunchroom to our Marshal Force, which has been handed similar jobs in preceding years with great success.

Other duties, not so significant or troublesome, with which the Marshal Force naturally concerns itself, are guiding parents to different rooms on Parent's Night, and maintaining logical conduct and traffic in the corridors of the school. However, whether their duties are of little or great significance, the marshals of Brookline High are a credit to the school and students who elect them.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

Because of its interesting and varied programs, the French club appeals to a majority of the French students. For every meeting there is a planned program, something that both teacher and student will enjoy. Each one has a main feature that has taken a good deal of preparation. That this policy is worthwhile is evident in the continued and increasing attendance of its members.

At the first actual meeting this year the junior French class produced a play, "Les Deux Sourds" which was accepted with great enthusiasm by the audience. Their interpretation of the play was exceptional. Their pronunciation of the French language was excellent.

To lead the group in French songs, the Club was fortunate in having Mrs. Hazel Henry Jewett as guest singer. Mrs. Jewett, a former member of the B.H.S. faculty, has contributed to other French Club programs.

The Sophomore French Group took over the April meeting. They enacted three plays: "Au Cinéma", "Nous Verrons", and "Une Cliente Difficile". The plays met with great enthusiasm.

ENGLISH CLUB

The highest goals of the English Club have always been to instill in its members a hardy respect for their native tongue, and to propagate the seeds of creative instinct. Toward these two goals the club set its course again this year, and the results achieved surpassed all expectations. The most interesting meeting of the year was that at which the winners of the annual contest in creative writing were announced. Instead of being limited to English Club members alone, the contest was thrown open to all members of the three upper Houses; and the excitement was intense as Mrs. Pinansky, representing the judges, announced the three top winners and six honorable mentions.

Because of the difficulties in procuring means of transportation due to wartime restrictions, the customary trip to the Wayside Inn was abandoned in favor of a tour to Widener Library at Harvard College. Accordingly, a group of enthusiastic members convened on the steps of the library, and in the custody of a guide pored over ancient manuscripts and volumes and heard recordings of Hamlet and Murder in the Cathedral in the library's famed poetry room.

The joint meetings with the Library Staff, always an enjoyable event, and several lectures completed the Club's varied program.

DIE DEUTSCHE GESELLSCHAFT

With all the restrictions as they are it was a difficult year for the Deutsche Gesellschaft. There were several meetings which were held in the American way rather than in a fashion that had any resemblance to the club meetings of former years.

The Fine Arts Theatre had no German films that could be visited by a group, and trips to the Cambridge museums were voted out on account of the impossibility of car transportation. However, there were some get-togethers where interesting moving pictures were shown. For a matter of records there were fourteen club members this year. For the spring there is an outdoor meeting planned again at Hammond's Pond.

EL CIRCULO ESPANOL

Students of Spanish in their Junior or Senior year, or Sophomores who receive a grade of A or B after the second quarter, are rewarded with an invitation to join the Circulo Espanol. The chief aims of the Club are to promote conversation in Spanish, to further an understanding of South America by lectures and informal speeches, and to set forth general goodwill among the members. Because of the long winter vacation this year, it was impossible to hold the annual Christmas meeting; so plans were laid for a special meeting in February at which the traditional game of pinata and the induction of new members was held. Along with the inductions goes the custom of having each new member repeat the club's pledge and add his name to the list of members; but later, after a few songs and jokes in Spanish, all formality and shyness give way to Latin-spirited fun and cordiality.

Each meeting is planned a month ahead of time by the Junta Directiva, a board of directors composed of the officers of the Club and four nominated members. At these discussions, which are held in English, the program for each meeting is planned with the ever-present idea of making it thoroughly entertaining and enlightening.

SCIENCE CLUB

The field of the future is expected to be Science. The students of Brookline High School are well aware of this and so they are taking advantage of the opportunities offered by the Science Club. With its roll swelled to over one hundred members, for purposes of convenience, the club, this year, divided into four groups; Chemistry, headed by Edward Bies; Biology, headed by Mary Duhig; Geology, headed by the popular president, Leonard Horwitz; and Physics, headed by Gardner Richards. Although these divisions represent only a few of the many phases of science, they are the four in which the club members have shown the greatest interest as, with the exception of Geology, they are all taught in school.

Under the direction of Mr. Hall, who has replaced Mr. Webber as faculty advisor, many successful trips have been taken. The club has continued its practice of having outside lecturers, generally former Brookline students now at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. A most interesting lecture was given by former student, Merton Hubbard, who spoke on "The Spectrum in Chemistry". The club also encourages its own members to talk on subjects interesting to the groups as a whole.

CHESS CLUB

"Lookout for the bishop." "You can't do anything with the king that way!" "Checkmate." Anyone hearing these words might well be surprised. However it's only the Chess Club in action! And this year it has seen plenty of successful action.

The Brookline High School chess teams have copped top honors this year. They have won all their matches, defeating Boston Latin School, Roxbury Memorial School, Cambridge Latin School and the Huntington School. This has won them the championship of the Greater Boston Chess League for both teams, a feat which has never been accomplished before by any high school in the history of the league. In addition, Alan Goldberg was elected president of the league, and Alan Alpern, another Brookline boy will succeed him.

The Chess Club is open to everybody, both girls and boys. Whether you already know anything about chess or not, Miss Allen and the senior members will be glad to teach anybody who has a desire to learn this fascinating game.

The members of the two teams which have had such wonderful success this year are Alan Alpern, Myron Sharaf, Alan Goldberg, Julian Leavitt, Norman Lorie, Macey Feingold, Harmond Harvey, Jacob Mades, Richard Berkowitz, and David Markus.

POSTER CLUB

The Poster Club has endeavored this year to do away with all unnecessary posting of signs throughout the school buildings. This has made for much neater looking corridors and rooms, along with giving more space and emphasis to important subjects. The notices and advertising designed by the members of the club have been most attractive.

The club meets every Tuesday. The first Tuesday in each month is devoted to special programs, which are either social or educational. Some of the more interesting programs were visits to the Art School, exhibits, and special speakers.

On the third Tuesday of the month there are work meetings where everybody designs or paints current posters. And sometimes when it is necessary, very brief business meetings are held.

The Poster Club conducted a War Stamp Contest for the members of the club. Each participant submitted one poster for the promotion of the sale of war stamps and bonds. The first prize was $3.00 in stamps; the second was $2.00 in stamps.

Many thanks are owed to this club, for besides having fun among themselves, they have substantially aided the school.

PEP CLUB

One of the most recent organizations to be established at Brookline High School is the Pep Club. This organization has as its goal the building up of school spirit within the student body.

The club is accomplishing this by sponsoring and planning rallies before all big sports events, such as football games.

Organized and sponsored by the Pep Club, the Cheer Leaders have helped to spur the Brookline High teams on to victory at many an engagement with other schools. The Cheer Leaders have also done much to aid in the promotion of the rapidly waning enthusiasm of the students who support the teams, since a lack of support can only lead to a collapse of all interscholastic sports at Brookline High School. This was pointed out to the student body by two eminent speeches from the alumni association at the annual pre-Thanksgiving Day Rally, in preparation for the traditional Newton game. The next day our boys went out and won that game for Brookline, to show everyone why B.H.S. cannot drop sports and will not drop sports. Now the question is up to the students, and the Pep Club is going to see that they get the right answer.

The Dramatic Society is annually one of the largest as well as most important organizations in our high school. Membership has in the past been limited to only those who received high grades in the Speech courses. Now the society is open to any individual interested in its various functions. After individual auditions, a file, classifying every member is made, to be used by the directors of the Society's endeavors and also by any other organization which might find need of experienced thespians.

Murder in the Cathedral, the choral reading play was the first of its kind to be presented by B.H.S., and, under Mr. A. Flemings' direction, it was put on in a free performance, sponsored by the Dramatic Society.

The famous Broadway hit, Stage Door was presented in the late fall, starring Elaine Maltzman. Eleanor Lewenberg and Frank Kimball handled the business end under Mr. Wendell Smith's advice as they did for the third presentation of the society, The Taming of the Shrew, given on May 7. Mr. Flemings and Mrs. Hennessey took over the director's task when Mr. Gould was called for service. It is hoped that the excellent work of the Society will continue despite the problems which existing war conditions present.

LIBRARY STAFF

The Library Staff followed an extremely interesting program during the first semester. At the September meeting the staff was organized and in October had the pleasure of hearing as guest speaker, Madame Wilkinson. During Book Week, Nov. 15-21, they presented the well-known Mr. John J. Cronan, of the Boston Public Library.

Claire Wilson, of the Library Staff, was selected from many contestants to deliver her prize-winning book review over station WEEI Nov. 24, on the program, "Of Books and Victory" by Mrs. Alice Dixon Bond, literary editor of the Boston Herald-Traveler.

In December the Victory Book Campaign was launched. This worthy drive to collect books for men in the armed forces surpassed all expectations both as to the quality of the books and the quantity.

Miss Olga Owens was the guest speaker at the annual meeting with the English Club in March. Miss Owens, former literary editor of the Transcript, is now editor of the Boston Post's book section. She delivered a very stimulating address on Books as the first line of Mental Defense.

The staff decided to conclude the year with the March meeting because of lack of time.

BANKING

Coöperation, an anti-friction lubricant, symbolizes the organization, management and operation of the Banking Staff when it serves the war front selling War Savings Stamps and when it serves the home front with School Savings. The savings program for the entire school system, under the direction of Mr. Tyler Kepner, was changed at the beginning of the school year to help the war effort more and the general efforts of peacetime less.

The general excellence of our record, under the direction of our faculty advisor Mr. Blanchard, resulted in the coveted Minute Man Flag being flown from our masthead for the months of January, February and May. Fractions of a per cent were responsible for our failure to obtain the award for March and April.

Many homeroom numbers could be recorded for their consistent attainment in both the quantity of buyers and amount of stamps purchased. Week after week many teachers and housemasters deserve awards for excellence for records of outstanding accomplishments.

The informal but competent spirit with which transactions are handled by the organization is in itself representative of the Democracy for which America Fights!

RED CROSS

This year as never before, the Red Cross is playing one of the most important roles in the war. Without the aid of the Red Cross an incalculable number of lives would be lost because of insufficient supplies and facilities.

Our school, realizing the great need of this organization, has responded magnificently. On October 14 a most successful auditorium period was held to begin the drive. Much of the success of the Red Cross is due to the untiring efforts of Mr. Friedland, faculty advisor of the group. For the past seven years Mr. Friedland has cooperated with the organization giving his time and effort to the benefit of the club. In recognition of his invaluable aid he has been presented with a Red Cross insignia.

Despite the fact that there is a war going on, there are still an appalling number of people here in our own community who are in need of aid. For several years bundles of food and gifts have been prepared on Thanksgiving and Christmas to be given to worthy families. This year the Cooking, Sewing, and Art departments in cooperation with the Girls' League have assembled these baskets to be distributed where they are most needed. The Red Cross has not slacked in its duty and Brookline shall not slack in supporting it.

GIRLS' LEAGUE

The Girls' League, now numbering 750 members, is completing its twenty-second year "of promoting among the girls a spirit of good fellowship and loyalty to each other and to the school."

The regular meetings have been fewer because of the war, but, as usual have been sponsored by the girls of the different Houses and by the large standing committees. The Vocational Talks committee has provided speakers on war-time opportunities in nursing, dietetics, Red Cross activities, secretarial work, and the science fields. All meetings seek to bring out student talent. The Christmas Workshop, the Thanksgiving meeting, the Mothers' Teas were all war casualties. So was the Annual Supper Party which became a very successful afternoon Victory Picnic in the League Room. New, also, was the enlarged program of the Girls' Auxiliary, the war service committee which now organizes student volunteers for war work of all kinds.

The Senior Advisers, the H. R. Representatives, the Lost and Found, the Executive Board (meeting at 7:45 A.M. once a week), share in the responsibilities of developing the broader program the Girls' League is carrying on as its part in the war effort.

BOYS' CLUB

The Boys' Club was founded with the twofold purpose of enabling boys not on varsity teams to engage in the sports they enjoy, and to make available activities not a part of the school's regular extra-curricular program.

Since Edwin Frank, so ably advised by Messrs. Flemings, Friedland, and Seamans, organized the club in 1939, the first organization for boys comparable to the Girls' League, it has grown a great deal in the extent of its activities, the quality of its special programs, and the number of its members. The bowling club which has proved so popular, functioned very successfully again this year. The bicycle group with "Uncle Art" Fleming in charge, has taken many interesting trips, and looks forward to seasons of even bigger and better trips. Ping Pong, stamp collecting, and baseball all have been engaged in by the members of the club, interested in those various activities. Again this year the Boys' Club has offered very worthwhile programs in Roberts Auditorium including speakers, movies, quiz shows, and refreshments.

Much credit for this successful Boys' Club season goes to the club officers who have worked hard along with the Faculty Advisors to make this year the best yet for the Boys' Club.

ORCHESTRA

Most of the assemblies held in Roberts Auditorium are attended and made more appealing by the Brookline High School Orchestra. The orchestra, under the expert leadership of Mr. Joslin, very often livens up many an otherwise dull program.

In February of this year the Orchestra played for the exclusive pleasure of the upper houses. The feature of the program was the first movement of Schubert's 8th Symphony, also known as the "Unfinished Symphony." This is one of Shubert's best works and the B.H.S. Orchestra gave a remarkably fine rendition of it. Tchaikovsky's "Sleeping Beauty Waltz," also a favorite among music lovers was played. To end up a thoroughly charming program, the Orchestra played Carl Friedeman's "Slavish Rhapsody."

Every year at Prize Speaking the Orchestra plays, and at all Dramatic Society performances it plays before, after, and during the performance if necessary.

The most important occasion in a Senior's school career, graduation, is made more memorable by the presence of the Orchestra.

There is no restriction on the membership. Anyone can get in, that is, anyone with talent and ability. There are no formal auditions, except of course, if there are too many erstwhile musicians all playing the same instruments. The most common case of this is piano students.

The Freshman House Orchestra often possesses hidden talent. It's not hidden long though, for Mr. Joslin makes unofficial visits to rehearsals and picks out likely talent.

Faculty Advisor . . . . Mr. Joslin

ORPHEUS ENSEMBLE

In 1935 the Orpheus Ensemble was conceived and born. Any outstanding member of the Orchestra is allowed membership. Merit has been and will be the only membership fee. For this reason membership has always been small, with this year's group numbering only 13. So far, in the eight years of its existence sixty members of the Orchestra have become Orpheus players. Interestingly enough, every winner of the Holtzer Music Prize has been a member of the Orpheus Ensemble.

This year, because of a number of unavoidable incidents, generally related to the war, the Ensemble has not been so busy as it has been in previous years. They did play, however, for the entertainment of the Brookline Women's Club, the Brookline Rotary Club, and the Massachusetts School Masters Association.

The members of the Ensemble are generally picked by inspection . . . Mr. Burbank's inspection. But when, as in the case of students playing the violin there are too many applicants for one position, the students go behind a curtain and the Orpheus members themselves pick out the best player.

The Orpheus Ensemble meets on Wednesdays and it was established primarily for students who take their music seriously.

BAND

What keeps the spirits of the loyal B.H.S.ers keyed up to their customary emotional pitch at all football games? What organization is practically indispensable at patriotic gatherings or parades? There is only one—our Band, led by Mr. Joslin.

Their services, which in former years were limited to holiday festivities, have been extended because of the war. Last December the Band performed in a parade for the Brookline Civilian Defense Council. The members of the Band played at the dedicatory exercises of the Honor Roll tablets which were placed in front of the Brookline Public Library on November 11 of last year. Also, the Brookline Citizens Committee asked for, and received, their aid in giving the Brookline boys, who were leaving for duty with the Armed Services, a cheering send-off. The Band played for them in December, March and May.

The day when William Dawes rode through Brookline to warn the people of the advent of the British, while Paul Revere rode through Lexington and Concord, is also celebrated with the support of the Band. Every April 19, Patriot's Day, the B.H.S. Band plays for the green-clad "Dawes."

The Debating Society, one of the oldest organizations in the High School, serves a noble purpose. It is a haven for all the school's frustrated Daniel Websters and Stephen Douglases. Here you can talk at great length without being interrupted, expound all your pet theories on the state of the world, etc., without being contradicted (until later) and in general develop your lung power.

Meetings are held once a month with five major debates during the year. The varsity team, made up generally of senior debaters, visits various public and private schools around Boston. While the varsity is out winning laurels, the others form teams among themselves and debate intramurally, in preparation for future varsity encounters.

Present conditions being as they are, there is naturally a tremendous field from which to choose the topics for debating. All of these are current problems of one sort or another. One of the best debates of the season was with Browne and Nichols—Resolved, that there be Federal Supervision of Secondary Education.

CHORAL READING

Choral Reading first began as a class conducted by Mr. Arthur Flemings. This was ten years ago. Since then it has been developed as an extra-curricular activity and has been classified as such for the past five years.

The Choral Reading group, still conducted by Mr. Flemings, had twenty-four members this year, all of whom were required to take a part in the productions to retain their membership. This year they produced Murder in the Cathedral by Thomas S. Eliot, a modern, poetic version of the murder of the Archbishop of Canterbury, Thomas à Becket, in the year 1170 A.D. The cast consisted of a chorus of sixteen girls and eight principal male characters.

Apart from this production, the group has participated in many auditorium periods, at which they have presented selections from the poetry of Stephen Vincent Benet, James Whitcomb Riley, Arthur Guiterman and Robert Browning as well as passages from the Bible. These renditions received much favorable comment from the students and faculty, and the Murder, as it is affectionately called, was received with great praise by the general public. From the success of all of its performances, we have but to expect, that Choral Reading will be continued in the school and with as good results as in the past.

STAGE AND ELECTRICAL STAFFS

Much of the success of the Dramatic Society's productions this year, may be attributed to the excellent work which was done by the Stage and Electrical Staffs and the Committees on Costumes and Properties. This was especially noticeable in the production of Murder in the Cathedral in which the superb lighting effects helped to set the various moods of the different scenes. The costumes, which were designed and made by the Art Department under the guidance of Miss F. Horn, were typical of the time. The properties for the play, though few and simple, were well selected, sturdily constructed, and expertly arranged.

Stage Door presented its problems, too! Maybe you remember what seemed to be the simple act of lighting up a room from what appeared to be a wall switch? Actually, three electricians were needed to throw several big switches back-stage simultaneously and on cue from the director, in order to attain the proper effect.

Problems such as these make the Stage and Electrical staffs attractive to the neophyte when he watches them work. Also think of all the fun those stage-hands must have, clambering along the catwalks over the stage and "bombing" those below, and locking the electrician in his iron cage! Oh, yeah!

BHS CHORAL SOCIETY

President	Harvey Titus
Vice-President	Marjorie Chalmers
Librarian	Harvey Bloom
Faculty Advisor	Mr. Burbank

The Choral Society was started two years ago as an outgrowth of Kaarina when the novelty and success of having boys and girls singing together could not be overlooked.

Vocal music is by no means an innovation for, as Mr. Snow says in his report, "Hardly had the high school had time to get well organized in the year of its inception, 1843, before the School Committee recommended that vocal music be taught by a competent singing master. They claimed that most desirable results would follow for they said, 'Music, wherever it had been introduced into the public schools, had been productive of the most happy results, exerting a beneficial influence upon the intellect, taste, morals and physical constitution of the young; it improves the heart, promotes good feeling, pure taste, refined sentiment, cheerfulness and good order.' Although choral singing doubtless failed to prove the cure-all that is implied in this category of good effects, certainly it justified its presence in the early curricula sufficiently to be retained one period a week for many years."

The Choral Society is scheduled to sing on June 10 at the celebration of the 100th Anniversary of the School.

GIRLS' VOCAL ENSEMBLE

The Girls' Vocal Ensemble is a smaller and more concentrated group than the Choral Society. The best singers from the Society are chosen for the Vocal Ensemble.

They sang this year for the Brookline Teachers Club. The Vice Consul of Costa Rica was the eminent guest speaker and the group sang a collection of South American songs in his honor.

The Vocal Ensemble sang at the production of the Dramatic Society's "Taming of the Shrew." Their repertoire includes Elizabethan songs.

The Girls' Vocal Ensemble began four years ago in 1930. Plans had been made for the Ensemble to broadcast over the air this year, but, as with many other peace time activities, this idea had to be shelved "for the duration." The idea of bringing the voices of the Vocal Ensemble to the general citizenry via the airwaves is decidedly an innovation, one which will not be forgotten. When the Office of War Information no longer needs their time, the schedule will go through.

CAMERA CLUB

Starting their successful season under the guidance of Mr. Webber, who has since left the faculty of Brookline High School, the Camera Club conducted many outings and trips which, to the delight of the members, proved to be most interesting and entertaining. Under the council of Mr. Hall, the shutter-fans held several contests among themselves with undisclosed winners, who, for reasons of modesty, prefer to remain in a state of anonymity.

Since the size of the club has fallen off slightly in recent years, President Luster Delaney strove to make the organization more inviting to new members. He accomplished this by attracting the neophytes, the inexperienced owners of Brownies and Kodaks, and pinhole cameras, and instructing them in the finer use of their inexpensive, but nevertheless effective equipment.

Many members will profit by what they have learned in the club; in personal enjoyment for what they have permanently captured on film; possibly in the armed services of the United States where many experienced men carry on important and necessary work in the field of photography.

PRIZE SPEAKING

Prize speaking, the most eagerly anticipated and highly competitive dramatic event of the season, took place this year on Friday evening, April 16.

The program was received with the usual enthusiasm, augmented by a general delight in the slight departure from tradition inaugurated. For the first time the exhibition was divided into three sections: declamation, original selections and extemporaneous speaking. This brought new vitailty and interest to the occasion. Each candidate tried out for the section in which he felt himself best-suited. A winner was selected for each of the three divisions.

In the declamation, Edward Sostek, a newcomer this year to Brookline, won top honors with his moving delivery of a selection from John Brown's Body by Stephen Vincent Benét. Shirley Orenberg, another newcomer, was judged the best in the original selection group. She told My Story. In the third division, Frank Loewenberg, speaking extemporaneously on A Confederation of Europe, won. Honorable mentions were awarded to Myron Markell, Theodora Lehrer, and Florence Cooper.

SAGAMORE

For fifty years a deep-rooted tradition of Brookline High School, The Sagamore emerged this year from the state of lethargy in which it had been during a good part of the last decade.

This emergence, so-called, did not take the form of a sudden and startling change. It was the culmination of a long struggle for existence along with the driving will of the 1942 staff and faculty advisors. This effort succeeded by taking the paper out of the red and putting it over the top with a heightened prestige. In this position The Sagamore set new circulation records with a sharply constructive editorial policy. Now for the first time Brookline High School students are able to voice their opinions about school and civic affairs without faculty restraint. This privilege of "freedom of the press," in keeping with the other principles of student government that Brookline High stands for, is extremely valuable. Brookline students must guard it jealously and future Sagamore editors would do well to follow the lead of previous editors in choosing and presenting matters for discussion.

This year the Sagamore celebrates all at once its finest year, its fiftieth anniversary of publication and Brookline High's centennial.

GIRL SCOUTS

Troop 2

World War II reawakened the Girl Scouts of America to the new significance of their slogan "Be Prepared." They realized that it is their task to care adequately for themselves and their immediate families or neighbors under unusual circumstances. As a result, Troop II has been organized as a Senior Service group in order to render assistance in the war emergency. This has included actual community service such as the making of surgical dressings, helping at the Community Fund office, mounting cartoons and puzzles for a Naval hospital. In addition, the troop has acquired practical knowledge on outdoor cooking and air raid protection.

Troop 10

During the year 1942-3, the Girl Scout Troop 10 had 26 members.

This year they have been engaged mainly in completing badges such as games, home nursing, child care, and bicycle which they hope to use in assisting younger troops. Unfortunately during the last half of the scout year, Miss Sampson, the scout leader, resigned her leadership of the troop. However, the troop went on under the guidance of Mrs. Lyons and Miss Poland.

B. H. S. MARINER SHIP, "WESTWARD HO!"

This year the mariners have been trying to fit themselves to be of definite use in the present emergency. Review work in First Aid, signalling with both Morse and Semaphore codes occupied some of their time at meetings.

One of the most helpful projects undertaken was that of serving as volunteer aides at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Serving in three shifts, the girls have covered all such services from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on every Saturday since January. Now the hospital has been successful in securing full time paid workers for this work and the mariners are planning to help in some other hospital. In addition, mariners have taken charge of the group working in hospital dressings on Tuesdays and Thursdays. So far, these groups have made over 500 such dressings for the Red Cross.

During the year the members of the Ship are called upon frequently to assist the leaders of the younger troops at meetings or on hikes.

As usual their May and June activity turns to sailing. The Ship's crew become members of the Municipal Sailing group in the Charles River Basin and really learn to handle boats.

GIRLS' FOODS CLUB

The Girls' Foods Club is one of the most interesting and satisfying clubs in this school and one that surely must have no trouble in attracting girls to its "rolls"! Ever since the club was first conceived in the minds of six progressive girls about six years ago and was brought before Miss South, who is now its faculty advisor, the club has been very popular even though it affords no points towards Alpha Pi. The members of the organization are not restricted to those who are in Domestic Science courses and any girl who has the first and third Thursdays of each month free from other engagements may join the club.

Two of the most popular of the activities of these girls, are the visits that they pay to the local candy and ice-cream factories. They do this in order that they may observe the methods and conditions whereby these products are manufactured. Then too, the girls arrange out-door suppers and teas; getting practice for any entertaining on their own.

LUNCHROOM STAFF

Scene:

Lunchroom at B.H.S.

Time:

About 5 minutes before the start of the fourth period.

Action:

A few white-clad boys and girls begin to set up the booths with sandwiches, ice cream and other delicacies. Several others stand talking in low tones behind the food counters waiting for the hunger-mad Brookline High gourmands to dash up to the opposite side of the counters. What they have been waiting for comes now. Suddenly the peaceful room is transformed into a veritable mad house! The half-starved students assail the various booths, while the teachers follow. They, the lucky ones, soon disappear into their own private sanctum. As the noise wells up to the ceiling, the lunchroom staff and Mr. Bates' proteges exhort the ravenous eaters to "lower it to a dull roar" and "take those books out of here, or else"!

One would think that the lunchroom attendants would slowly go a little mad after four such nerve-racking experiences every day, but Mrs. Potter and Miss Scannell have things so well planned that nothing can go wrong.

We leave our little mess hall with the feeling that everyone is doing an excellent job in a graceful, pleasing manner. Brookline High School has come through again with a progressive eating system. Even in feeding the students food, our High School is tops, just as in feeding them knowledge.

CENTRAL TREASURY

In the spring of 1935 a new organization began at Brookline High School. It was the central treasury for all activities in the school. With approximately fifty organizations contributing to this treasury, it has proved to be a very unique system. It avoids the service charges on many small bank accounts.

Special deposit slips having a space for the name of the organization are used so that the Central Treasury handles no money except to secure from the bank the small amount that is necessary now and then for a petty cash fund. This arrangement obviates any danger of loss or theft. It also makes it possible for all the faculty advisors of activities, the headmaster, the Superintendent of Schools, and members of the School Committee to receive monthly statements showing receipts, payments and balances of all activities so that they may note what is happening to the funds controlled by high school organizations.

The personnel of the central treasury consists of the following: treasurer, Mr. Atticks; assistant treasurers, Miss Nickerson and Miss Greenshields, who check the bookkeeping entries; and a faculty member for each activity. The students are represented by a student bookkeeper, an assistant bookkeeper, and three typists.

GIRLS' AUXILIARY

Appreciating how important it was to help the girls of Brookline find something worthwhile to do, in 1942 Miss Sawyer and Miss Poland originated the Girls' Auxiliary, the war service committee of the Girls' League, whose purpose is to organize war work for all the girls of the school.

Membership in the Auxiliary is limited to those girls who have received a Red Cross certificate in First Aid, Nutrition, Child Care, or Home Nursing, besides having done outside volunteer work and taken the Recreational Leadership course offered by the Auxiliary. However, the war work is open to all.

This year the scope of the Auxiliary's activities has been greatly increased since the Brookline girls have proved their worth in everything attempted. There are about forty girls doing hospital service, relieving tired nurses; many others are making surgical and hospital dressings, used by the thousands every day. And still others have been doing playground and social agency work, prepared by the Auxiliary's Volunteer Service Course.

The heartiest of congratulations to these girls for the splendid work they have done and are continuing to do.

CHEER LEADERS

Hand in hand with the drum majorettes and band, go the cheer leaders, as they, too, increase school spirit and contribute substantially to the enjoyment of a game or meet.

The idea of having specially trained girls for cheer leaders was inagurated last year and has worked out exceedinly well. The girls are chosen by a process of elimination. All who are interested may try out. After having them go through a few cheers, those who are best suited for the job are decided upon by Mr. Hines and the former cheer leaders, who carefully consider each candidate. Personality, energy, vitality, a sense of rhythm, and ability to cooperate are some of the necessary qualifications.

These girls do an important job in keeping up the team's morale. In recognition of this, a regular varsity letter is awarded to every girl who has been a cheer leader for two years.

An Appreciation

In November 1942, the Layout Committee of the Murivian presented its full plan to the entire committee for purpose of adoption. It was felt that the layout of the book and the theme for the Centennial edition were a very vital part of each other. The cost of such an adoption was more than had been anticipated in the original estimate. Following a discussion, it was voted that the Committee members try to meet the various costs by means of a sponsor group. Another reason for such action was the reduced income from general advertising because of conditions over which the Committee had no control. The faculty advisors recognize the need as one that results from the increased cost of an anniversary edition and war conditions. Grateful appreciation is expressed to the following people for their interest in the 1943 edition of the Murivian and their generosity in assisting the members of the Committee financially.

The Colleges of Liberal Arts, Engineering, and Business Administration are conducted on the co-operative plan. After the freshman year, students, both men and women, may alternate their periods of study with periods of work in the employ of business or industrial concerns at ten-week intervals. Under this plan they gain valuable experience and earn a large part of their college expenses.
